JAN AND JACOBUS STRIJCKER AND SOME OF THEIR DESCENDANTS.

BY HOPPER STRIKER MOTT.

In January, 1643, Jan and Jacobus Strijcker were granted by the States General land in New Amsterdam provided they removed twelve families to the colony at their own expense. It is not known that they took advantage of this opportunity, and it was not until 1651 that the younger brother reached Manhattan. He became the founder of the Knickerbocker family so many of the descendants of which settled in early years in this State and in New Jersey. Jan did not emigrate till the following year.

That they were sons of Gerrit is evidenced by the habit the younger son had of sometimes including in his name the designation Gerritsen. They came of a line which is of remote antiquity in Holland, one branch of which has been seated near The Hague for some eight centuries, and another at Rotterdam. Outside of royalty few families were more highly positioned. Men of influence and position were many, and descendants here will be interested in searching for the tomb in the High Choir, No. 37, in the great Kirke at Haarlem, St. Bavon's, in which the remains of Dirck Strijcker, Knight, were interred in 1677. The coat of arms is in possession of the writer.

With his wife, Lambertje Seubering, two sons and four daughters, Jan Strijcker hailed from Ruinen, in the province of Drenthe. His second wife, Swantje Jans, was the widow of Cornelis de Potter, of Breuckelin. She lived seven years after the marriage on April 30, 1679, and a third dip into the matrimonial pool brought to the surface Teuntje Teunis, of Flatbush, another widow (of Jacob Hellakers, of New Amsterdam. He built the first house at New Utrecht, L. I., and served as magistrate there in 1661 and 1664), whom he married March 31st, 1687. Soon after his arrival (1654) he took the lead in founding a Dutch colony at Midwout (Flatbush), where the same year he was selected as Chief Magistrate of the settlement, an office he generally filled for the next twenty years. JAN AND JACOBUS STRICKER AND SOME OF THEIR DESCENDANTS

By Hoyer Sprick Mott.

In January, 1643, Jan and Jacobus Stricker were granted by the States General land in New Amsterdam provided they removed twelve families to the colony at their own expense. It is not known that they took advantage of this opportunity, and it was not until 1651 that the younger brother reached Manhattan. He became the founder of the Knickerbocker family so many of the descendants of which settled in early years in this State and in New Jersey. Jan did not emigrate till the following year.

That they were sons of Gerrit is evidenced by the fact the younger son had of sonnetines including in his name the designation Gerritsen. They came of a line which is of remote antiquity in Holland, one branch of which has been seated near The Hague for some eight centuries, and another at Rotterdam. Outside of royalty few families were more highly positioned. Men of influence and position were many, and descendants here will be interested in searching for the tomb in the High Choir, No. 37, in the great Kirke at Haarlem, St. Bavon's, in which the remains of Dirck Stricker Knight, were interred in 1677. The coat of arms is in possession of the writer.

With his wife, Lambertje Sanbering, two sons and four daughters, Jan Stricker hailed from Ruinen, in the province of Drenthe. His second wife, Swantje Jans, was the widow of Cornelis de Potter, of Drenckelin. She lived seven years after the marriage on April 30, 1679, and a third dip into the matrimonial pool brought to the surface Teuntje Tennis, of Flatbush, another widow (of Jacob Hellakers, of New Amsterdam. He built the first house at New Utrecht, L. I. and served as magistrate there in 1661 and 1664), whom he married March 4th, 1689. Soon after his arrival (1654) he took the lead in founding a Dutch colony at Midwout (Flatbush), where the same year he was selected as Chief Magistrate of the settlement, an office he generally filled for the next twenty years. He was one of the embassy selected at a convention held December 10, 1653, at New Amsterdam, to be sent to the Lord Mayors in Holland to make complaint and crave assistance because of the colonists' annoyance from the English and Indians. (Vide O'Cal. Col. Hist., Vol. II., p. 374.)

On July 6th, 1663, he appeared as a delegate to the convention which assembled at the capital to engage the several Dutch towns to keep up an armed force for public protection, and he represented his town at the Great Landtdag called by the Burgomasters, which met April 10, 1664, at the Stadt Huys, to consider the precarious condition of the country. As a delegate in the Hempstead convention of 1665, he helped enact the celebrated "Duke's Laws," and appears as a patentee on the Nicolls patent, October 11, 1667, and again on the Dongan patent, November 12, 1685. Prior to this time he had been elected captain of the Midwout militia (October 25, 1673), and on March 26, 1674, was named a deputy to confer with Governor Colve at New Orange (formerly New Amsterdam) when the Dutch came back to their own.

To turn from the civil and military man, we find him in the first year of his residence at Midwout one of the two commissioners appointed by the Director-General (December 17, 1654) to build the Dutch church and parsonage there—the first erected on Long Island. On December 20, 1659, he addressed the "Noble, Rigourous, and Honourable Gentlemen and Honourable Director-General of the Council in Nieuw Nederlandt," saying that the edifice "now, with God's help, nearly completed, requires a coat of colour and oil, being covered on the outside mostly with boards. These materials must necessarily be brought from the Fatherland, and we request it to be done upon your Honour's order to the Honourable Company." The edifice cost 4,057 guilders 9 stuyvers. The site of this church is the corner of Flatbush avenue and Church lane, as now designated. In 1698 a larger structure was erected and stood for ninety-five years. Its bell gave the first warning of the approach of the British when they landed, and after the Battle of Long Island the edifice was used as a temporary hospital. Later the enemy's horses were stabled there, a fate which befell many of the churches. In 1793 the second building was razed and the present church was finished three years later and consecrated in January, 1797. It has been enlarged several times during the century, the centennial celebration of which was observed in 1897. A tablet commemorative of the founding of the First Church on Long Island was placed on its walls April 26, 1902, by the Society of Colonial Daughters of the Seventeenth Century. Jan Strijcker's remains lie in the graveyard at the rear of the church, of which he was an active supporter for many years during the tenure of Domine Johannes Theodorus Polhemus, the pastor.

He had eight children and died circa 1697 at the ripe age of over eighty years, full of the honor which such a new settlement could bestow. He had the satisfaction of living to see his sons settled on valuable plantations and occupying positions of influence in the community, and his daughters marrying into families of note. His eldest child, I., Altje, b. in Holland, mar. Abraham Jorise Brinckerhoff, May 20, 1660. He was born in Flushing, Holland, in 1632, and was an elder in the church and a magistrate at Flatbush in 1673;

He had eight children and died even too at the ripe age of over eighty years, full of the honor which such a new settlement could bestow. He was born in Finkling, Holland, in 1622, and was an elder in the church and a magistrate at Flatbush in 1673;

II., Jannetje, b. in Holland, m. (1) Cornelis Jansen Berrian of Flatbush, who settled there in 1669, but removed to Newtown in 1685. He was a Huguenot from Berrian in the Department of Finisterre, and a gentleman of high character and education; d. in 1689. Samuel Berrian m. Dorcas, dau. of George Tippett of Yonkers, and was the father of Richard Berrian and grandfather of the late Rev. Wm. Berrian, rector of Trinity Church. In 1796 he sold the whole estate of Tippett's Neck (the ancient Nipnichsen of the Mohegans, Konstabelsche Hoek of the Dutch, and later Berrian's Neck—the northern bank at the mouth of Spyt-den-Duyvel Kill), consisting of 200 acres, to his nephew, Abraham Berrian. The latter was the son of Richard Berrian and Grace, dau. of Abraham Riker of Newtown, his wife, and grandson of Cornelis, the son of John, the eldest son of Cornelis Jansen Berrian, who m. Jannetje Strijcker. She m. (2) Samuel Edsall of Newtown (vide Bolton's Westchester County, p. 606; Riker's Annals, pp. 339-41).

III., Garrit Janse, b. in Holland, m. Styntje Gerritse Dorland, December 28, 1683. He was High Sheriff of Kings County, appointed October 11, 1686, and his commission as quartermaster of the troop of horse was made by Governors Andros and Leisler, January 13, 1690. He became Judge of the Court of Richmond County in 1720. When 35 years of age, in 1687, he took the oath of allegiance (vide Year Book, Holland Society, 1896, p. 159). It is of his granddaughter, the dau. of his son Jan, that the following pathetic tale is unfolded:

During the administration of Lord Cornbury the colony was called upon to exert all its energy in furnishing men, provisions and munitions of war for the earlier colonial wars. In connection with this war, tradition has preserved a most romantic and touching episode, which occurred in the town of Bushwyck. Pieter Andriese, a young man of energy and means, was about to be married to the lovely daughter of Jan Strijcker, of Flatbush, when, having become acquainted with one of the newly appointed officers of the expedition, he was induced to enlist in the army. The consternation of his friends and even that of his bride was not able to depress his spirits or to change his purpose, and he departed, leaving them in a fearful apprehension of danger. Days, months and years passed by, his bride every hour expecting to hear of her betrothed, but in vain. At last, overcome by sorrow and hope deferred, death made her his victim, and the same day that she was buried Andriese unexpectedly made his appearance in town. For years he had been a captive among a tribe of Northern Indians and had returned, alas! too late. (Stiles' History City of Brooklyn, p. 353.)

IV., Anjenietje, b. in Holland mar. Jan Cornelise Boomgaert, or Bogaert, of Flatlands. They were members of the Hackensack Dutch Church in 1686, and were witnesses at a baptism there March 30th, 1712 (vide Holland So. Coll. Hackensack Ch. Records). Their

III., Garrit Janse, b. in Holland, m. Sytrytje Gerritse Dorland, December 26, 1683. He was High Sheriff of Kings County, appointed October 11, 1686, and his commission as quartermaster of the troop of horse was made by Governors Andros and Lucas, January 13, 1692. He became Judge of the Court of Richmond County in 1720. When 32 years of age, in 1683, he took the oath of allegiance (vide Van Brunt's Holland Society, 1896, p. 159). It is of his granddaughter, the dau. of his son Jan, that the following pathetic tale is unfolded:

During the administration of Lord Cornbury the colony was called upon to exert all its energy in furnishing men, provisions and munitions of war for the earlier colonial wars. In connection with this war, tradition has preserved a most romantic and touching episode, which occurred in the town of Bushwick. Peter Andrese, a young man of energy and means, was about to be married to the lovely daughter of Jan Strijcker, of Flatbush, when, having become acquainted with one of the newly appointed officers of the expedition, he was induced to enlist in the army. The consternation of his friends and even that of his bride was not able to express his spirits or to change his purpose, and he departed, leaving them in a fearful apprehension of danger. IV., Aeltje, b. in Holland, dau. Jan Cornelis Bogaert, or Bogert, of Flatlands. They were members of the Hackensack Dutch Church in 1686 and were witnesses at a baptism there March 30th, 1712 (vide Holland Soc. Coll. Hackensack Ch. Records). Their

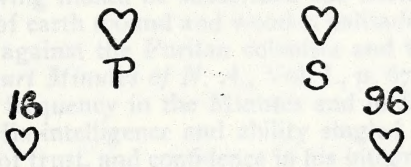
VII., Pieter, b. in Flatbush, November 1, 1653, m. May 29, 1681, Annetje Barends, d. June 11, 1741. He was a deacon of the church founded by his father; was High Sheriff, appointed November 2, 1683; named patentee of the town in the Dongan charter, November 12, 1685; "commissioner" of his town, 1686 and 1688, and captain of Foot Militia, December 27, 1689. He commanded his company that year in an expedition to Albany on the first invasion of Canada. In 1711 (August 13) he joined the officers of the Kings County Militia in signing a petition in relation to the defenses in case of invasion, and in 1713 still held the office of captain. In 1718 a reconciliation of the differences between Flatbush and Newtown concerning boundaries was effected. Strijcker was a trustee representing the former place. Deeds were passed October 30. From 1720 to 1722 he was a Judge of the local court. Gabriel Furman's notes to Gowan's Bib. Amer., No. 1, p. 30, speak of his residence there in these words:

"Among the relics of former days in Flatbush is a long old one-story Dutch brick house, built in the year 1696, which has the date of its erection, with the initials of its original proprietor's name, formed by blue and red glazed bricks, arranged in the following manner on its front":



The writer possesses a picture of this habitation. It was a stately Holland brick building in quaint Dutch style, and was torn down circa 1847. The site was until recently in the family, and may be yet (vide Vanderbilt's Social History of Flatbush, p. 214). He was the founder of the New Jersey branch of the family, having bought, June 1, 1710, four thousand acres on Millstone River, Somerset County. It does not appear that he ever lived there, but his sons, Jacob and Barent, and his grandsons, the four sons of Jan, removed and settled there.

It has not been ascertained which brother brought their sister Agnietje to New Amsterdam. In the marriage records she is put down as of Dwinglo, in Drenthe, where she m. April 5, 1656, Claes Thýssen, of Amsterdam. He had been the husband of Susanna Pieters, whom he m. January 21, 1652. Their son, Mathýs, was bap. December 1, 1652, wits: Jan Gilliszen van Brúg and Cornelia Lúbberts, and another son, Pieter, was bap. April 12, 1654, before Govert Loockermans, Frans Pieterszen and Marritje Tymens. By his second wife he had Thys, bap. June 13, 1657, wits: Jan Strijcker and Tietje Tyszen, and Gerrit, bap. September 15, 1658, wits: Laúrens Corneliszen and Ytie Huyberts. Claes Tysen announced Agnietje's death to the Orphan's Court, Wednesday, January 8, 1659. (Vide Holland Society Year Book, 1900, p. 115, Minutes of the Orphan Masters, p. 62.) He stated that he had accepted Schepen Jacob Strijcker, the brother of the deceased, and Laúrens Cornelisen van der Wel, his brother-in-law, as guardians for the children, two sons, one 19 months old and one 4 months old. General Stryker confounds her with Jan's daughter; he did not have access to the above minutes, which were not published. It is obvious that the sister could not be the daughter, for she d. in 1658, while the latter was of Hackensack in 1686.

Jacob Strijcker, as has been stated, reached New Netherland from the United Provinces in 1651. His wife, Ytie (Ida) Huybrechts and two children, Gerret and Altje, accompanied him. Settling at New Amsterdam he purchased, February 11, 1653, from Hendrick Gerritse, a "lot on the west side of the Great Highway in the cross street running from the said Highway to the shore of the North River, Manhattan Island." We have failed to locate this land. In the following month he subscribed 200 florins to the fund for erecting a wall of earth mound and wooden palisades across Wall street, for defense against the Puritan colonists and the unfriendly Indians. (Vide Court Minutes of N. A., Vol. I., p. 67.) His name appears with great frequency in the Minutes and in Holland Documents and Mss. His intelligence and ability singled him out early as a person worthy of trust, and confidence in his integrity was shown in many cases by his selection by the Court as referee and guardian A few instances will suffice: In November, 1654, he was appointed arbitrator in the suit of William Pietersen, pltf., vs. Jan Jansen Schepmoes, deft., wherein a question relative to "security for Hendrick Jacobson Patervaer's wife" was to be determined. In the following month Isaac Greveraet, as husband and guardian of Lysbert Júriaensen, daughter of Skipper Júriaen Andriessen, deceased, and Daniel Litschoe, as guardian of the son of the aforesaid, requested, by petition, as the skipper's widow was about to remarry, and two proclamations of that fact had been made, that guardians be appointed to conserve the rights of the children in the father's estate. Litschoe and Strijcker were selected and "being called into court," continue the minutes, "and being unprovided with any excuse, they accepted the same and promised to act honestly therein." It has not been ascertained which brother brought their sister Agnietje to New Amsterdam. In the marriage records she is put down as of Dwingelo, in Drenthe, where she m. April 5, 1656, Claes Tryssen, of Amsterdam. He had been the husband of Susanna Pieters, whom he m. January 21, 1652. Their son, Matthys, was bap. December 1, 1652, with: Jan Gillissen van Brug and Cornelia Lubberts, and another son, Pieter, was bap. April 12, 1654, before Govert Loockermans, Frans Pieterssen and Marritje Tymens. By his second wife he had Thys, bap. June 13, 1657, with: Jan Strijcker and Tietje Tyssen, and Cornil, bap. September 15, 1658, with: Lauwrens Cornelissen and Ytie Huybertsz. Claes Tyssen announced Agnietje's death to the Orphan's Court, Wednesday, January 8, 1659. (Vide Holland Society Year Book, 1900, p. 115, Minutes of the Orphan Masters, p. 68.) He stated that he had accepted Schepen Jacob Strijcker, the brother of the deceased, and Lauwrens Cornelissen van der Wel, his brother-in-law, as guardians for the children, two sons, one 19 months old and one 4 months old. General Strijcker confounds her with Jan's daughter; he did not have access to the above minutes, which were not published. It is obvious that the sister could not be the daughter, for she d. in 1658, while the latter was of Hackensack in 1666.

Jacob Strijcker, as has been stated, reached New Netherland from the United Provinces in 1657. His wife, Ytie (Ida) Huybrechts and two children, Cornel and Altje, accompanied him. Setting at New Amsterdam he purchased, February 11, 1658, from Hendrick Gerritse, a "lot on the west side of the Great Highway in the cross street running from the said Highway to the shore of the North River, Manhattan Island." We have failed to locate this land. In the following month he subscribed 200 florins to the fund for erecting a wall of earth mound and wooden palisades across Wall street, for defense against the Indian colonists and the naturally Indians. (Vide Court Minutes of N. A., Vol. I., p. 67.) His name appears with great frequency in the Minutes and in Holland Documents and Mss. His intelligence and ability singled him out early as a person worthy of trust, and confidence in his integrity was shown in many cases by his selection by the Court as referee and guardian. A few instances will suffice: In November, 1664, he was appointed arbitrator in the suit of William Pieterson, plt., vs. Jan Jansen Schepmoes, deft., wherein a question relative to "security for Hendrick Jacobson Paterson's wife" was to be determined. In the following month Isaac Grevenraet, as husband and guardian of Lysbert Juriaensen, daughter of Skipper Jurian Andriessen, deceased, and Daniel Litschoe, as guardian of the son of the aforesaid, requested, by petition, as the skipper's widow was about to remarry and two proclamations of that fact had been made, that guardians be appointed to conserve the rights of the children in the father's estate. Litschoe and Strijcker were selected and "being called into court," continue the minutes, "and being uprightly dealt with any excuse, they accepted the same and promised to act honestly therein." The latter and Grevenraet had been appointed guardians of the child of Ensign Dirck Barensen Smit, to whom was added January 29, 1663, Hendrik Smit, brother of the deceased. As Ensign of the troops of the West India Co., Dirck had served against the Swedes on the South River in 1655 and against the Esopus Indians in following years. Strijcker took the place of Johannes de Peyster as guardian (appointed January 17, 1664) of the minor child of Hendrik van der Walle, during de Peyster's absence in Holland. (Vide Hol. Soc. Year Book, 1900, p. 125.)

After two years of persistent effort on the part of the Burghers to obtain a local Bench, the Amsterdam Chamber wrote Stuyvesant, under date of April 4, 1652, directing him to erect "een banck van Justitia," modeled after the custom of the fatherland. On February 2, 1653, great rejoicing accordingly reigned in the dorp, the birth of a new city, New Amsterdam, and the inauguration of the Court of Burgomasters and Schepens, being celebrated. Just two years later to a day Strijcker was raised to the Magistracy, and this position he filled with evident satisfaction, for he continued in office during 1656, 1658 and 1660. During the absence in 1655 of the Governor-General and his troops on the expedition in which Ensign Smit served, the savages fell on the city "with murder, robbery and fire." Driven from the capital, they proceeded to the western shore, where soon the whole of Pavonia was in flames, large numbers of prisoners were taken, and much destruction of property and life occurred, both there and on Staten Island. It was under this stress of circumstances that the Court met on September 20, and resolved to make extensive repairs to the defensive works. The height of the palisades was raised to between 14 and 15 feet, in order to prevent the overloopen (jumping over) of the savages. It was estimated that this work would cost Fl. 4,000, and this amount, on the return of the victorious governor, was authorized to be raised. The Heer Schepen subscribed on the opening of the list, and the result was gratifying in that, when the subscription closed on October 15, Gl. 6,305 had been obtained.

Valentine's Manual, 1861, p. 582, locates the premises which "the worshipful" bought on May 27, 1656, as being in the vicinity of present Exchange Place, east of Broad street. They were described as being a part of the sheep-pasture and of a plot conveyed by Surgeon Jacob Hendriksen Varrevanger to Jacob Steendam, the later poet of the settlement. On Strijcker's complaint, on November 20 of this year, that the chimney of Jacob Stevensen's house, in Pearl street, was neither repaired nor pulled down, although he had frequently notified the Fire Inspectors, the latter were ordered to forbid within twenty-four hours the said Stevensen and his wife to make any more fire there; or to pull down the chimney if they deemed it necessary. The Magistrate stated that he was the next neighbor, and "nothing else is to be expected, not only by him but by the whole street, but a sudden destruction by fire." Pearl street was known at this early period as the Strand, and the above incident would fix his residence as being on the East River shore. (Vide Court Mins., etc., Vol. 2, p. 230.) The house he occupied at this time, says the Year Book, 1900, Holland Soc, was that of Jan Jansz. Schepmoes, who d. in January, 1656, and was located on Pearl street, south of Fort Amsterdam, a number of blocks away from the site identified by Valentine.

The order of Burghers, which had been established in Amsterdam in 1652, was not introduced into the capital until 1657. The names of twenty individuals were enrolled in the Great Burgher Right within eight days—the time specified therefor. Strijcker took the "proper oath" on April 13. These twenty names, says Stone's History of N. Y. City, p. 33, composed the aristocracy of the period. The "small citizenship," numbering 216, merely gave the right to trade in the colony. There were additions to these original lists, a very few, however, to the Greater class. Of the "Great citizenship" as distinguished from the "small," several names had disappeared by 1668. "How many of them remain in this city," asks General Wilson's Memorial History, Vol. I., p. 351, "and in what walks of life? Stuyvesant, Kip, Strycker, Van Dyck, Bogardus we have—long lived names." Some others could be cited and in the highest walks, among them the de Forests, Van Brughs and Couwenhovens.

In 1660 the Schepen and his wife are listed as members of the Dutch church in Manhattan, and it is noted that they had removed to New Amersfoort (Flatlands). Although never living there heretofore, he early became associated with Long Island because of his brother's residence at Midwout. He must have returned for a time to New Amsterdam, for in 1662 he again became a magistrate there, and the following year was Presiding Schepen, or President of the Court. He was a member of the Convention, representing the Capital, which met July 6 of that year, at which his brother Jan was a delegate, as heretofore mentioned. Having failed of election to the Burgomastership, to which office he was nominated February, 1664 (vide Court Mins., etc., Vol. 5, p. 16), he was appointed Orphan Master, March 18 (vide New Netherland Register, p. 67). In 1667 he had returned to Flatlands, where the church records show that he and his wife were members, and both brothers were numbered as patentees for Midwout in October of that year. Business required his attention, doubtless, up the river at Wildwyck (Kingston), where he rented the "village home" in 1671 (vide Year Book, 1896, Holland Soc.). No sooner had the Dutch commanders, Evertse and Benkes, established themselves in the city, superseding the English, August 12, 1673, than the nearest six towns on Long Island, together with Staten Island, submitted to their authority. Upon their nomination, August 18, Strijcker was selected as Schout-fiscal (Attorney General and Sheriff). (Vide Col. Docs., II., p. 573.) It was gratifying that these Dutch towns in Schout Strijcker's district declared that "the entire of the people" would observe their oaths, and in case of attack, would assist New Orange in resisting the enemy. These loyal towns were accordingly allowed to select their own military officers (vide Col. Docs., II., pp. 577, 643-5-6). Strijcker and his friend, Secretary van Ruyven, were commissioned December 5, 1673, to examine and settle the boundary between the town of New Utrecht and Jan Jansen Veryn's land, and was, again with his brother, a delegate to the convention March 26, 1674, to confer with the new Dutch Governor (Colve).

Jacob was somewhat of an artist, probably an amateur portrait painter. He is called a "limner" in the records, and one of his productions, a presentiment of himself on a wooden panel, has descended in direct line to the present generation, as has also a chair brought by him from Holland. The profession of art he did not follow, but devoted the time not occupied by his judicial and public duties to farming and trading with the Indians, a highly lucrative business in those days. He seems to have been a gentleman of considerable means, of much official influence and of decided culture. We find from the records kept by Domine Casparus van Zuuren that he died in October, 1687.

His oldest child, Gerret, m. Wyntje Cornelise Boomgaert (Bogert) in December, 1673, and d. in 1694. She d. in 1700. They lived in Flatlands, and were both members of the church there in 1677. Governor Dongan appointed him Sheriff of Kings County in 1688. In 1692 he bought a house and farm of 100.8¾ acres in Gravesend for £297.10. Of his nine children we are concerned with the third, Jacobus, who was bap. in Flatbush August 27, 1682. He lived at Gravesend (of which militia company he was ensign in 1713) with Martha, his wife, until 1722, when he removed to Oyster Bay. His will, dated September 27, 1748, when he was "very sick and weak in body," is signed "Jacobus Strycker," and is recorded at Jamaica in L. G. p. 256. Therein testator bequeaths to his daughter, Mercy, "a full Sorting out of Household Goods and other Mouvables Equal to what my Daughter Woanche [Wyntje] Laan Has already Had," and to each £25 paid from the movable estate. To daughter Mercy "my young black mair." All the remaining part of the estate was devised to his sons, Garret and John, in equal shares, subject to the payment by them of £150 to each of their sisters. The sons were made executors.

Mercy m. Cornelius van Cott.

Wyntje (Winifred) m. Tise (Matthias) Laan (Lane).

John m. Sarah Crooker and had son, Sampson, named for Sarah's father, a witness to the will, and bap. at St. George's, Hempstead.

Garret, or as he spelled his name, Gerrit Striker, the great-grandson of the old magistrate, was born May 20, 1726, when his father was fifty-three years of age. This method of writing the family cognomen has been followed by his descendants, the Manhattan branch. He lived at Oyster Bay and was in business at Glen Cove in 1756, with Obadiah Lawrence. In 1764 he removed to New York and purchased (August 8) for £550, from Charles Ward Apthrop, a farm of 50 acres "beginning at the head of a certain cove on the easterly side of the North River" and bounded, northerly, by the land of Humphrey Jones, with the lane leading to the Bloomingdale Road, subject to right of way in the grantor. Here he built his home and named it "Striker's Bay." An indentation from the river formed the cove which recessed the shore to a considerable distance to the east, into which emptied a marshy stream which rose at 104th street, near 10th avenue. A smaller branch of this brook from the neighborhood of the avenue and 95th street joined it at 11th avenue. By his wife Ann, b. July 30, 1734, the daughter of Derick II. and Rebecca (de Grove, b. 1720) Albertson, he had an only child, James, b. September 18, 1755. His father d. September 17, 1775, and his mother's death occurred October 10, 1785. The son inherited the property as heir-at-law. For the de Grove ancestry and James Striker's descendants *vide N. Y. G. and B. SHIELD OF THE BARNS FAMILY, OF EAST WINCH PARISH, NORFOLKSHIRE, ENGLAND.

Thomas Cecil, Earl of Exeter, and eldest son of William Cecil, Lord Burleigh, together with Sir Richard Cecil, aliened Grancourt Manor to William Barnes, Esq., April 20, in the 17th year of King James I.

The church (at Pentney Priory, Norfolkshire, Eng.), is dedicated to All Saints.

"Against the north wall of this church is a mural monument of marble, with the arms of Barns: argent, two bars, counter-embattled sable, in chief three pellets.

"Here lyeth under the foot of this wall the body of Owen Barns, Gent., third son of William Barns, the elder of this place, Esq. After he had lived the space of 52 years, changed this life for a better, 1670.

Quis sim, nosce cujus caro put-
rida, nil nisi vermis, Quisquis, es, hoc de me sit tibi scire satis."*

"On the west wall of this chapel is a neat monument of marble, with the arms of Barns, impaling Shepherd, argent, on a chief, gules, three Danish hatchets, or, and Barns impaling Hovell, sable, a crescent, or.

"Near unto this place lyeth the body of William Barns, Esq., son of Edward Barns, of Soham in Cambridgeshire, Eng., who first married Thomasina, daughter of Richard Hovell, of Willington, Esq., by whom he had 5 daughters, after whose death he took to wife Thomasina, the daughter of Owen Shepherd, of Kirby, in this county, Esq., and (removed his seat to this place) had by her 5 sons and 8 daughters, and did for many years, with great prudence and fidelity, serve his king and country, in the office of justice of the peace, at length such was the iniquity of the times, that loyalty was esteemed a crime, when not allurements, or threats, from him who usurped the highest power, could swerve him from his constant adherence to his abandoned prince, and the persecuted Church of England; he retired to a private life, devoting himself wholly to the service of God and religion, and peaceably departed hence in the 77th year of his age, 1657, expecting a joyful resurrection. To whose memory Frances Stanton, his second daughter, out of her tender love and dutiful affection, erected this monument. Semper Idem."†

THE TRUE ANCESTRY OF EDGAR ALLAN POE.

By Sir Edmund T. Bewley, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S.A.I.

The romance associated with the name of Edgar Allan Poe, has, unfortunately, been imported into the account of his ancestry given by many of his biographers; and statements have been made in respect of it that are not only extravagant and unfounded, but simply impossible.

For these, as will be seen presently, Mrs. Sarah Helen Whitman—who was at one time engaged to be married to the poet—is mainly responsible; but it must be borne in mind that she had been dominated by his personality, and fascinated by the glamour of his genius, and that to her at least he must have seemed at times to be descended from the gods.

But when the genealogist, with unbiassed mind and critical eye, investigates the question of descent, he finds that the paternal ancestry of Edgar Allan Poe cannot be strictly traced further back than four generations.

His great-great-grandfather was David Poe, of Dring, in the County Cavan, Ireland, who early in the eighteenth century was a tenant farmer on the estate of John Maxwell, Esq., M. P., for the County Cavan, afterwards created Baron Farnham.

The farm, which was a moiety of the townland of Dring, contained about 85 acres of rather poor land, and was situate in the parish of Kildallon, not far from the borders of the County Leitrim. David Poe appears to have been a member of the then Established Church, and the first record we have of him is contained in the old Vestry Book of Kildallon Parish, which shows that at the Easter Vestry held on the 18th April, 1720, David Poe, of Dryng, was appointed one of the overseers of roads. This appointment evidences that he occupied a respectable position in the parish, as men of some substance were selected for such a post.

He appears from entries in the Vestry Book to have been reappointed at intervals up to October, 1731, and he attended in person the Vestries held on 5th July, 1725, 12th April, 1726, 5th October, 1731, and 20th April, 1732. He subscribed his name to the Minutes of the 12th April, 1726, as "David Pooe" (sic.); but writing was evidently a matter of difficulty to him, and the signatures "David Poe" affixed to the Minutes of the Vestry Meetings of 1725 and 1732, and "David Pooe" to the Minutes of the Meeting of 1731, are obviously in the handwriting of the Rector of the Parish, the Rev. James Brabazon.

David Poe had three children, viz.: Alexander, who emigrated to

By Sir Edmund T. Bewley, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S.A.

The romance associated with the name of Edgar Allan Poe, has, unfortunately, been imported into the account of his ancestry given by many of his biographers; and statements have been made in respect of it that are not only extravagant and unfounded, but simply impossible.

For these, as will be seen presently, Mrs. Sarah Helen Whitman—who was at one time engaged to be married to the poet—is mainly responsible; but it must be borne in mind that she had been dominated by his personality, and fascinated by the glamour of his genius, and that to her at least he must have seemed at times to be descended from the gods.

But when the genealogist, with unbiassed mind and critical eye, investigates the question of descent, he finds that the paternal ancestry of Edgar Allan Poe cannot be strictly traced further back than four generations.

His great-great-grandfather was David Poe, of Dring, in the County Cavan, Ireland, who early in the eighteenth century was a tenant farmer on the estate of John Maxwell, Esq., M. P., for the County Cavan, afterwards created Baron Farnham.

The farm, which was a moiety of the townland of Dring, contained about 85 acres of rather poor land, and was situate in the parish of Kildallon, not far from the borders of the County Leitrim. David Poe appears to have been a member of the then Established Church, and the first record we have of him is contained in the old Vestry Book of Kildallon Parish, which shows that at the Easter Vestry held on the 18th April, 1720, David Poe, of Dring, was appointed one of the overseers of roads. This appointment evidences that he occupied a respectable position in the parish, as men of some substance were selected for such a post.

He appears from entries in the Vestry Book to have been reappointed at intervals up to October, 1731, and he attended in person the Vestries held on 5th July, 1725, 12th April, 1726, 5th October, 1731, and 20th April, 1732. He subscribed his name to the Minutes of the 12th April, 1726, as "David Poee" (sic.); but writing was evidently a matter of difficulty to him, and the signatures "David Poe" affixed to the Minutes of the Vestry Meetings of 1725 and 1732, and "David Poee" to the Minutes of the Meeting of 1731, are obviously in the handwriting of the Rector of the Parish, the Rev. James Brabazon.

David Poe had three children, viz.: Alexander, who emigrated to America some time before 1741, and settled near Gettysburg; John, the great-grandfather of Edgar Allan Poe; and Anne, who married Archibald Scott. Possibly Mary Cowan, mentioned in his will, may have been another daughter.

In 1741 John married Jane McBride, who was then apparently resident in the parish of Drumully and County Fermanagh; and for the purpose of obtaining a marriage license, John Poe and his father, David Poe, both described as of "Drin in the County of Cavan," entered into the customary bond to the Bishop of Clogher, in whose diocese the marriage was to be solemnized. The bond, the original of which is in the Public Record Office, Dublin, bears date the 31st August, 1741, and the signatures "John Poe" and "David Poe" affixed to it suggest that even the signing of a name was a trouble to John as well as to David. It is noticeable that on this occasion David Poe did not introduce a second "o" into his name. The marriage was solemnized shortly afterwards, and under an agreement then entered into, John Poe was put into possession of one-third part of his father's farm.

David Poe made his will dated 25th August, 1742, being therein described as "David Poe, of Dring, in the parish of Kildallon and County of Cavan, farmer," and he thereby bequeathed to his dearly beloved wife, together with his son-in-law, Archibald Scott, and Anne Scott, his wife, the one-half of his holding, being a fourth part of Dring, together with all moveables then in the Testator's possession; and secondly, to his son Alexander the sum of £5 sterling, in case he came to this country within six years after the Testator's decease; thirdly, the sum of £3, to be paid to Mary Cowan; and fourthly, to the Testator's son John, together with the third he then enjoyed by marriage article, as much of the Testator's holding as would make up the half, being the fourth part of Dring, together with ten head of sheep, and the one-half of all tackling belonging to the plough; and the Testator appointed his wife sole executrix. The will was signed by the Testator merely by a mark.

David Poe died shortly after the execution of his will, and it was proved in the Consistorial Court of the Diocese of Kilmore on the 22nd September, 1742, by his widow, Sarah Poe.

John Poe appears to have remained at Dring for seven or eight years after his father's death, working his portion of the farm, until the pressure of an increasing family, and the example of his elder brother, led him to cross the seas. His wife is believed to have been a daughter of the Rev. Robert McBride, Presbyterian Minister of Ballymoney, County Antrim, and sister of John McBride, who afterwards became an admiral in the British Navy. Owing, no doubt, to his wife's influence, John Poe after his marriage became a member of the Presbyterian Congregation worshipping at Croghan, near Killeshandra, about three miles and a half from Dring; and when children began to arrive—and they came pretty rapidly—they were baptized by the Presbyterian Minister at Croghan.

The old Register of baptisms and marriages of the Croghan Congregation has been preserved, and appears to have begun in February,

His wife is believed to have been a daughter of the Rev. Robert McBride, Presbyterian Minister of Ballymoney, County Antrim, and sister of John McBride, who afterwards became an admiral in the British Navy. Owing, no doubt, to his wife's influence, John Poe after his marriage became a member of the Presbyterian Congregation worshipping at Cregilan, near Killeshandra, about three miles and a half from Dring; and when children began to arrive—and they came pretty rapidly—they were baptized by the Presbyterian Minister at Cregilan.

The old Register of baptisms and marriages of the Cregilan Congregation has been preserved, and appears to have begun in February, 1741-2; but unfortunately one or two leaves containing the earlier baptisms have dropped out, and in this part should have been entered the baptism of David, the eldest son of John and Jane Poe. However, the baptisms of three of their other children appear, viz.: George Poo (sic.), 24th April, 1744; Mary Poo, 19th March, 1745-6; and Jean Poo, 16th February, 1747-8.

There were ten children of the marriage of John and Jane Poe; and as no further baptismal entries of their children are found in this book, we may conclude that the emigration of the family to Pennsylvania took place about 1748 or 1749.

David and George accompanied their parents, being then infants of tender years; and the history of the family from the time it was established in America is not difficult to trace. John Poe settled in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and when David, his eldest son, grew up, he became in the first instance a wheelwright. On moving afterwards to Baltimore, he engaged in some other business, and appears to have met with success.

On the outbreak of the War of Independence he warmly and actively supported the American cause, and in September, 1779, was appointed Deputy Assistant Quartermaster General on the Baltimore lines. From holding this post he was afterwards known in the family as "General Poe." He gained the confidence and esteem of Lafayette, who remained his lifelong friend.

He married Elizabeth Cairnes of Pennsylvania—described as a beautiful woman—and the eldest son of the marriage was David Poe the younger, born in 1786. When he grew up he was trained for the law, but, captivated by the charms of Mrs. Elizabeth Hopkins, an actress, and the widow of C. D. Hopkins, a comedian, he married her, and went on the stage. "General" Poe and the other members of his family were strict Presbyterians, and this marriage and the adoption of the profession of an actor by his eldest son were a great grief to the General, and caused an estrangement between him and his son.

Edgar Poe, born the 19th January, 1809, was the second son of the marriage of David Poe the younger and Elizabeth Hopkins. On the death of his parents in 1811 he was taken charge of by Mr. John Allan, a wealthy tobacco merchant of Richmond, Virginia, and in after life he assumed the additional name of Allan. For the career and works of this gifted but unfortunate genius, reference should be made to the encyclopædias, or to some of the numerous books that deal with his life and works.

In his lifetime the question of his Irish ancestry had become a subject of enquiry. He believed that the Poe family was remotely of German origin, and in an unpublished letter, dated 14th July, 1839, written to his cousin, George W. Poe, of Mobile, Alabama, he thus expresses himself:

"There can be no doubt, I think that our family is originally German, as the name indicates it; it is frequently met with in German works on Natural History, and a Mr. Poe is now living in Vienna, who has much reputation as a naturalist. The name there is spelled with an accent, thus, Poé, and is pronounced in two syllables, "Po-a." As far back, however, as we can trace, our immediate progenitors are Irish." *

Edgar Allan Poe's knowledge of his Irish ancestors did not extend further back than his great-grandfather, John Poe, and of the acquirements and true position of the latter he seems to have been in complete ignorance; for in another passage in the letter quoted above he says:

"John Poe about a century ago was a name of much note in the financial history of Ireland; he was of ancient and noble family, and married the sister of the British Admiral McBride, himself of illustrious descent."

Let us now see how the question of the ancestry of Edgar Allan Poe has been treated by his principal biographers.

In her little book on "Edgar Poe and His Critics," published in New York in 1860, Mrs. Sarah Helen Whitman states:

"Those who are curious in tracing the effects of country and lineage in the mental and constitutional peculiarities of men of genius may be interested in such facts as we have been enabled to gather in relation to the ancestry of the Poet. The awakening interest in genealogical researches will make these acceptable to many readers; and in their possible influence on a character so anomalous as that of Edgar Poe they are certainly worthy of note.

John Poe, the great-grandfather of Edgar Poe, left Ireland for America about the middle of the last century. He was of the old Norman family of Le Poer, a name conspicuous in Irish history. Sir Roger le Poer went to Ireland as Marshal to Prince John in the reign of Henry II, and became the founder of a race connected with some of the most romantic incidents of Irish history. * * * * * * * * * * * *

The family of the le Poers, like that of the Geraldines and other Anglo-Norman settlers in Ireland, passed from Italy into the North of France, and from France through England and Wales into Ireland, where, from their isolated position, and other causes, they retained for a long period their hereditary traits, with far less modification from intermarriage or consociation with other races than did their English compeers. Meantime the name underwent various changes in accent and orthography. A few branches of the family still bore in Ireland the old Italian name of De la Poe.

John Poe, the great-grandfather of Edgar Poe, married a daughter of Admiral McBride, distinguished for his naval achievements, and connected with some of the most illustrious families of England. From genealogical records transmitted by him to his son David Poe, the grandfather of the Poet, who was but two years of age when his parents left Ireland, it appears that different modes of spelling the name were adopted by different members of the same family. David Poe was accustomed to speak of the Chevalier le Poer, a friend of the Marquis of Grammont, as having been of his father's family."

In "The Works of Edgar Allan Poe" (Edinburgh 1874), edited by Mr. John H. Ingram, a memoir of the poet is given, in which the account of his ancestry is founded on Mrs. Whitman's statements. The march of the family from Italy into the North of France and from France through England and Wales into Ireland is retold, and —improving on Mrs. Whitman—it is alleged that a few branches of the family "still bear in Ireland the old Italian name of De la Poë." It is further stated that through her father, Edmund Power, Lady Blessington claimed descent from the same old family.

"A descendant of this famous and high-spirited race was John Poe, who by his marriage with Jane, daughter of the distinguished naval hero, Admiral McBride, became allied with some of the most illustrious families of Great Britain."

Mr. Richard H. Stoddard edited an edition of the "The Works of Edgar Allan Poe" (London 1896), and in his notice of Poe's ancestry he states:*

"This family, which was called De la Poe, must have been very old, if it be true, as we are assured it was, that the name antedated the river Po"; and after describing the change of name to le Poer, and the settlement of le Poers in Ireland, he proceeds:

"It was involved in the internal dissensions of Ireland at a later period; and when that unfortunate country was invaded by Cromwell in 1649, only one of its three leading branches escaped his vengeance. Its name gradually changed, as I have remarked, De la Poe becoming le Poer, and le Poer Power and Poe; and with its change of name there was a change of its employments, the marshals and seneschals of old time subsiding in the last century into a country gentleman who was the father of Lady Blessington; of an attorney, who wrote the song of Gramachree ("as down on Banna's banks I strayed"), and a certain Mr. John Poe, whose only claim to remembrance is that he was the great-grandfather of Edgar Allan Poe."

In "The Life of Edgar Allan Poe," by Colonel John A. Joyce (New York and London, 1901), we read:

"Sir Roger de la Poe, of Italy, accompanied Prince John into Ireland in the year 1185, and the Poer, Poe or Power family continued to flourish in the Emerald Isle until a Roundhead Rough Rider, named Oliver Cromwell, in 1649 ripped up the rebellious Roman Catholics and crushed their civil and religious rights under the iron heel of despotism, murder and robbery in the name of God. It still proceeds.

John Poe, the father of Lady Blessington, and great-grandfather of Edgar Allan Poe, suffered by the Puritan inundation. David Poe, born in Londonderry, the grandfather of the poet, married the daughter of John MacBride, Scotch-Irish Admiral of the Blue. He emigrated to Pennsylvania before our Revolutionary War, and was a wheelwright by trade, and worked at his business in Baltimore, being a leader among the labor fraternities in that city."

All these accounts of Edgar Allan Poe's ancestry might be described in Colonel Joyce's alliterative style, as "romance run riot;" but, as already stated, in Mrs. Whitman's case there are mitigating circumstances.

The other biographers, however, might have been expected to write more soberly, and to investigate the alleged matters of fact, before committing themselves to statements that not only lacked evidence to support them, but were demonstrably absurd.

Mr. Stoddard must have been laughing in his sleeve when he stated that he had been assured that the family antedated the river Po, as every schoolboy knows that the name of the river in ancient times was Padus, and that Po is but the modern form of the name.

As a very large number of surnames are derived from place names, a family illustrious or otherwise might have acquired its name from the river after it had become known as the Po, but unfortunately the name of the river is masculine in Italian—il Po—and the surname of De la Po could not have been derived from it.

As a matter of fact, however, there is no trace of any family of De la Po or De la Poe having ever existed in Italy, or France, or anywhere else; and if there had been such, on no rational principles could the name have been converted into De la Poer or le Poer on a migration of the family to France. The tacking on of the letter r to words ending in a vowel, and the pronunciation of "villa" and "sofa" as "villar" and "sofar" are essentially English and American vulgarisms.

That members of a distinguished family called le Poer passed from Normandy to England and subsequently from England to Ireland is beyond question. But, as has been pointed out more than once by eminent genealogists, "le Poer" in its origin was a purely personal surname,* and perhaps was a form of "le Pohier," i. e., "the native of Poix"; and De la Poer is an absolutely impossible name to have arisen naturally.

In Ireland "le Poer" was gradually changed into "Poore" and "Power"; and had not a member of the Power family by an unfortunate blunder assumed the title of "Count de la Poer," on being created a Count of the Holy Roman Empire, the surname of de la Poer would never have been heard of. But in law he was, of course, entitled to take any name he thought fit.

There is not a tittle of evidence, however, that any member of the Poe family was descended from any le Poer or Power, and the statements as to the identity of the families is without the slightest foundation. But the most ridiculous and audacious assertion made by any of Edgar Allan Poe's biographers is the alleged relationship of the poet's great-grandfather John Poe to "the gorgeous" Lady Blessington. According to Mr. Stoddard, she was a sister of John Poe, while Colonel Joyce represents her as his daughter.

This is a matter whose absurdity could at once have been made manifest if these biographers had taken the trouble to investigate the parentage of Lady Blessington and the date of her birth. Marguerite Power, who by her second marriage became Lady Blessington, was the second daughter of Edmund Power, a small Roman Catholic landowner in the county of Tipperary, by his wife, Ellen Sheehy, who was also of the same faith. The future Lady Blessington was born at Knockbrit, near Clonmel, County Tipperary, on the 1st September, 1789—that is to say, nearly half a century after John Poe's marriage with Jane McBride, and about thirty-three years after his death! The grim Presbyterian farmer would turn in his grave if he learned that this brilliant and fashionable lady—the child of Roman Catholic parents, and the subject of many scandals—had been represented as his sister or daughter; and if he were capable of feeling amused, he would surely grin at hearing that he had been described as a sufferer from the Puritan inundation of Ireland and a victim to Oliver Cromwell's despotism.

A statement of Poe's biographers as to the parentage of Jane McBride, the wife of John Poe, also needs correction.

Admiral John McBride was the younger brother of Dr. David McBride, who was born on 26th April, 1726. He could not have been more than fourteen years of age when John Poe was married, and therefore it is impossible that Jane McBride could have been his daughter. It is now, however, alleged that she was his sister, and a daughter of the Rev. Robert McBride, Presbyterian Minister at Ballymoney. This is possible; but the Rev. Robert McBride was a man of strong views, and it is difficult to understand how his daughter came to be married in the Parish Church of Drumully, County Fermanagh, under a license granted by the Bishop of Clogher, and not in her father's meeting house at Ballymoney, County Antrim.

At the time when David Poe, the great-grandfather of Edgar Allan Poe, was resident at Dring, County Cavan, there were many other Poes living in various parts of Ireland. In the early part of the seventeenth century three brothers, William, Thomas and Anthony Poe, became settlers in the North of Ireland in connection with the Plantation of Ulster. They were sons of Anthony Poe, of Papplewick, in Nottinghamshire, and near relatives of Dr. Leonard Poe, one of the physicians of James I and afterwards of Charles I, a man of eminence in his profession. William and Anthony Poe settled in the County Tyrone, and Thomas Poe in the County Fermanagh. William Poe, while retaining his Tyrone lands, acquired an interest in lands on the Sedborough estate, in the County Fermanagh, to which he gave the name Manor Poe. Much information respecting the principal events of his life can be gathered from the printed calendars of State Papers, the Reports of the Historical MSS. Commission, and from the Public Records; but it is sufficient here to state that he entred the Parliamentary Army in 1642 as a Captain, served for some time with distinction in Cromwell's own regiment, and eventually attained the rank of Major. He returned to Ireland in 1673, and died in 1675, without leaving male issue. His brother, Anthony Poe, served as a Captain in the Parliamentary Army both in England and Ireland, and for his services in Ireland became entitled to a grant of portion of the forfeited estates under the Cromwellian Settlement of Ireland. He was the founder of a branch of the family long seated in the County Louth at Poe's Court, the name given to part of the lands of Drumgooldstown, acquired under the Acts of Settlement.

Thomas Poe, another of the three brothers, suffered great losses in the Rebellion of 1641. He subsequently joined the Parliamentary Army in Ireland, with the rank of Lieutenant, and received for his services a grant of lands in the County Tipperary. He was the progenitor of the Tipperary branch of the family with all its ramifications, which is now represented by the Poës of Riverston, County Tipperary, the Poes of Heywood, Queen's County, the Poes of Harley Park, County Tipperary, and the Poes of Kilkenny.

That David Poe, of Dring, was descended from one of the Poes who settled in Ireland in connection with the Plantation of Ulster is

A statement of Poe's biographers as to the parentage of Jane McBride, the wife of John Poe, also needs correction.

Admiral John McBride was the younger brother of Dr. David McBride, who was born on 20th April, 1728. He could not have been more than fourteen years of age when John Poe was married, and therefore it is impossible that Jane McBride could have been his daughter. It is now, however, alleged that she was his sister, and a daughter of the Rev. Robert McBride, Presbyterian Minister at Ballymoney. This is possible; but the Rev. Robert McBride was a man of strong views, and it is difficult to understand how his daughter came to be married in the Parish Church of Drumtully, County Fermanagh, under a license granted by the Bishop of Clogher, and not in her father's meeting house at Ballymoney, County Antrim.

At the time when David Poe, the great-grandfather of Edgar Allan Poe, was resident at Dring, County Cavan, there were many other Poes living in various parts of Ireland. In the early part of the seventeenth century three brothers, William, Thomas and Anthony Poe, became settlers in the North of Ireland in connection with the Plantation of Ulster. They were sons of Anthony Poe, of Fappiswick, in Nottinghamshire, and near relatives of Dr. Leonard Poe, one of the physicians of James I and afterwards of Charles I, a man of eminence in his profession. William and Anthony Poe settled in the County Tyrone, and Thomas Poe in the County Fermanagh. William Poe, while retaining his Tyrone lands, acquired an interest in lands on the Sedborough estate, in the County Fermanagh, to which he gave the name Manor Poe. Much information respecting the principal events of his life can be gathered from the printed calendars of State Papers, the Reports of the Historical MSS. Commission, and from the Public Records; but it is sufficient here to state that he entered the Parliamentary Army in 1642 as a Captain, served for some time with distinction in Cromwell's own regiment, and eventually attained the rank of Major. He returned to Ireland in 1653, and died in 1675, without leaving male issue. His brother, Anthony Poe, served as a Captain in the Parliamentary Army both in England and Ireland, and for his services in Ireland became entitled to a grant of portion of the forfeited estates under the Cromwellian Settlement of Ireland. He was the founder of a branch of the family long seated in the County Louth at Poe's Court, the name given to part of the lands of Drumgoldstown, acquired under the Acts of Settlement.

Thomas Poe, another of the three brothers, suffered great losses in the Rebellion of 1641. He subsequently joined the Parliamentary Army in Ireland, with the rank of Lieutenant, and received for his services a grant of lands in the County Tipperary. He was the progenitor of the Tipperary branch of the family with all its ramifications, which is now represented by the Poes of Riverston, County Tipperary, the Poes of Heywood, County Clonmel, the Poes of Harley Park, County Tipperary, and the Poes of Kilkenny.

That David Poe, of Dring, was descended from one of the Poes who settled in Ireland in connection with the Plantation of Ulster is a most natural and reasonable supposition, and this view has been taken by some of the biographers of Edgar Allan Poe.

In Appleton's Cyclopædia of American Biography, edited by James Grant Wilson and John Fiske (New York, 1888), it is stated, in the account it gives of Edgar Allan Poe:

"His great-grandfather, John, who came from the North of Ireland to Pennsylvania about 1745, was a descendant of one of Cromwell's officers."

Mr. John H. Ingram, in his later book "Edgar Allan Poe, His Life, Letters and Opinions" (London, 1880), abandons Mrs. Whitman's ideas as to Poe's ancestry, and states:

"It must be confessed that the earliest reliable records do not carry the paternal ancestry of Edgar Allan Poe further back than the middle of the last century; but if his ancestors were descended, as is extremely probable, from the Poes of Riverston (County Tipperary, Ireland), the race may be traced back nearly two centuries earlier."

Mr. James A. Harrison—Edgar Allan Poe's most recent biographer—in his "Life and Letters of Edgar Allan Poe" (New York, 1902 and 1903), has also taken this view of Poe's ancestry. He states:

"The biographers of Poe are indebted to Mr. John H. Ingram for the surest testimony, obtained from the poet's family in Baltimore, as to his ancestry. 'There is no good reason,' says John P. Poe, Esq., of Baltimore, to suppose that the ancestors of Edgar Allan Poe were descended from the la Poers [the Anglo-Norman family who passed from Italy to France, and from France to England, Wales and Ireland, and with whom Mrs. Sarah Helen Whitman, the poet's fiancée in 1848 connected her own and Poe's progenitors.] John Poe, the progenitor of the family in America, emigrated from the North of Ireland a number of years before the Revoluiton, and purchased a farm in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, whence he afterwards removed to Cecil County, Maryland. At the time of the Revolution he was residing in Baltimore. His wife was Jane McBride, believed to be a sister [not a daughter, as frequently stated] of James McBride, Admiral of the Blue, and M. P. for Plymouth in 1785."

But when an attempt is made to trace the descent of David Poe, of Dring, from one of these Cromwellian officers great difficulties present themselves. In the first place, there is a total absence of any evidence on the subject. The rentals of the Maxwell or Farnham estate of David Poe's time are not forthcoming. His farm was probably held under a tenancy from year to year, and no lease or other instrument dealing with it was registered in the Registry of Deeds Office. The old Parish Registers of Kildallon and the neighboring parishes have long since disappeared, and a Hearth Money Roll* of the County Cavan of the year 1664—which gives the names of all householders in the county at that date, down to the occupier of the humblest cottage—does not contain the name of Poe.

But, independently of the failure of proof, there are difficulties of a different nature. From which of the original settlers should descent be traced? Major William Poe may be disregarded, as the terms of his will negative the idea of his having left male descendants. Lieutenant Thomas Poe seems also out of the question, as ample information as to his sons, grandsons and their issue is supplied by wills, deeds and other documents, and no place can be found amongst them for David Poe, of Dring. The same may be said also of Captain Anthony Poe; so that although the hypothesis of the descent of David Poe, of Dring, from one of these northern settlers seems plausible and probable enough, it cannot be accommodated to the facts.* It may be added, too, that a further difficulty arises from the fact that, although "David" occurs three times as a baptismal name amongst Edgar Allan Poe's ancestors, it is not found elsewhere in the Poe family.

Under these circumstances it occurred to the present writer to make a careful investigation as to whether there had been in Ireland any other unattached Poes, i. e., Poes whose relationship to one of the Nottinghamshire settlers could not be made out.

An administration bond found amongst the records of the Diocese of Armagh in the Public Record Office, Dublin, dated 5th February, 1764, and entered into by Grace Poe, widow of Thomas Poe, late of Drummond, in the parish of Clonfeacle, County Tyrone, farmer, on obtaining letters of administration of the effects of her deceased husband, led to an examination of the Parish Registers of the Parish of Clonfeacle.

Clonfeacle is a large parish situate partly in the Barony of Oneiland West, and County Armagh, and partly in the Barony of Dungannon, and County Tyrone. Amongst the townlands in the Tyrone portion of the parish are Drummond and Ballymackleduff. The Parish Registers go back to a much earlier date than is ordinarily found in country Parish Registers in Ireland. The Register of Baptisms begins in 1743, but both in it and in the Register of Burials there are at times serious gaps.

The earliest entry in the Registers relating to a Poe is as follows:

> "Jan. 4, 1761:
> There was married by the Rev. Mr. James Dobbins, Thomas Poe and Grace McAttaggart, of Drummond."

This was, of course, the Thomas Poe whose widow Grace obtained letters of administration in 1764.

We next find from the Registers that James Henderson and Jane Poe, of Ballymackleduff, were married by license on 7th April, 1809, and that John Kerr and Mary Poe were married by license on 15th July, 1814.

On the 19th March, 1820, Thomas, son of William Poe, of Ballymackleduff, was baptised, and on the 26th July, 1825, there is an entry of the baptism of William, son of William and Sarah Poe, of Ballymackleduff.

In 1822 the curate of the parish of Clonfeacle made a house-to-house visitation of the parish, and took a census of all who were attendants at the Parish Church, recording the particulars thus ascertained in the Parish Register.

* Elaborate pedigrees of the several branches of the Irish Poës have been carefully compiled from wills, deeds, Parish Registers, marriage license bonds and grants, bills in Chancery and in Equity Exchequer, and other documents, supplemented by information obtained from members of the Poë family, and will be soon published together with the early history of the family.—E. T. B.

Amongst those in the townland of Ballymackleduff appear:

"William Poe and wife and one child.
2 Communicants,"

to which the curate has added, "offended with the Rector."

These were William and Sarah Poe, and the youthful Thomas Poe, who had been baptized on the 19th March, 1820.

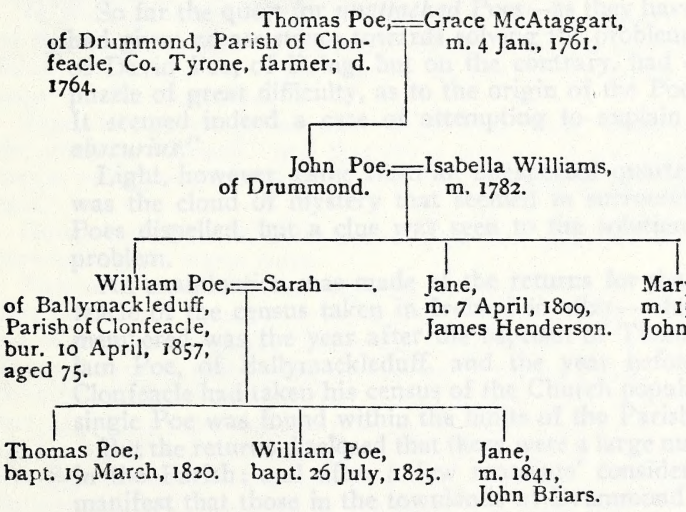
On the 10th April, 1857, is entered the burial of William Poe, of Ballymackleduff, aged 75.

This information, gathered from the Parish Registers, may be supplemented by the following marriage license bonds amongst the records of the Diocese of Armagh.

Bond dated 27th June, 1782, by John Poe, of Drummond, Parish of Clonfeacle, and County of Tyrone, and another, on the issue of a license to solemnize matrimony between John Poe and Isabella Williams, of Drummond, spinster.

Bond dated 13th April, 1841, by John Briars, of Kilmore, in the Parish of Aghaloo, and County Tyrone, and William Poe, of Ballymackleduff, in the Parish of Clonfeacle, and County Tyrone, farmer, on the issue of a license for the marriage of John Briars and Jane Poe, of Ballymackleduff, spinster.

From these materials the following conjectural pedigree of the Poes of the Parish of Clonfeacle might be sketched out:



There is also a marriage license bond amongst the Armagh Diocesan Records, dated 18th December, 1836, entered into by Thomas Poe, of Drummond, in the Parish of Clonfeacle, and John Burgess, of Finlay, in the same parish, on the issue of a license to solemnize matrimony between Thomas Poe and Susan Burgess, of Finlay, spinster; and this Thomas Poe might be tacked on tentatively to

to which the curate has added, "offended with the Rector."

On the 10th April, 1857, is entered the burial of William Poe, of Ballymacladuff, aged 75.

This information, gathered from the Parish Registers, may be supplemented by the following marriage license bonds amongst the records of the Diocese of Armagh.

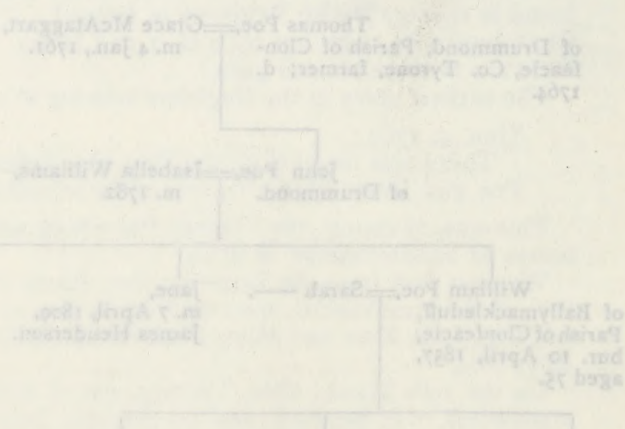
Bond dated 13th April, 1821, by John Briers, of Kilmore, in the Parish of Aghaloo, and County Tyrone, and William Poe, of Ballymacladuff, in the Parish of Clontaeale, and County Tyrone, farmer, on the issue of a license for the marriage of John Briers and Jane Poe, of Ballymacladuff, spinster.

From these materials the following conjectural pedigree of the Poes of the Parish of Clontaeale might be sketched out:



There is also a marriage license bond amongst the Armagh Diocesan Records, dated 12th December, 1836, entered into by Thomas Poe, of Drummond, in the Parish of Clontaeale, and John Burgess, of Finlay, in the same parish, on the issue of a license to solemnize matrimony between Thomas Poe and Susan Burgess, of Finlay, spinster; and this Thomas Poe might be tacked on tentatively to the foregoing pedigree as a grandson of Thomas Poe and Grace his wife by a younger son of theirs.

However, for the present purpose it is enough to state that for what is substantially a century, viz., from the marriage of Thomas Poe, of Drummond, and Grace McAtaggart, in 1761, to the burial of William Poe, of Ballymackleduff, in 1857, a number of persons bearing the name of Poe lived in the parish of Clonfeacle, County Tyrone, whose connection with Major William Poe or one of his brothers cannot be shown. But it may also be added that the Poes of Dring, County Cavan, and the Poes of Clonfeacle, are the only Poes in Ireland hitherto noticed in the Public Records of whom such a statement can be made.

Whence, then, did these Poes come? They did not spring from the ground like mushrooms in a night, and at a time when travelling was difficult and expensive they are not likely to have migrated to those inland localities from any great distance.

The Hearth Money Rolls of Tyrone for the years 1665 and 1666, and many Subsidy or Tax Rolls of earlier date, have been examined, and no Poe has been found in them. The Hearth Money Rolls of about the same period for the counties which surround Tyrone, viz., Monaghan, Fermanagh, Donegal, Londonderry and Armagh, have also been examined, but with a like negative result; and, as already stated, the Cavan Hearth Money Roll of 1664 does not contain any Poe.

So far the quest for unattached Poes—as they have been termed—had given no assistance towards solving the problem of the ancestry of David Poe, of Dring, but on the contrary, had evolved another puzzle of great difficulty, as to the origin of the Poes of Clonfeacle. It seemed indeed a case of attempting to explain "obscurum per obscurius."

Light, however, came from an unexpected quarter; and not only was the cloud of mystery that seemed to surround the Clonfeacle Poes dispelled, but a clue was seen to the solution of the original problem.

An examination was made of the returns for the parish of Clonfeacle of the census taken in Ireland in 1821—which it will be remembered was the year after the baptism of Thomas, son of William Poe, of Ballymackleduff, and the year before the curate of Clonfeacle had taken his census of the Church population—and not a single Poe was found within the limits of the Parish!

But the returns disclosed that there were a large number of Powells in the Parish; and after a few moments' consideration it became manifest that those in the townlands of Drummond and Ballymackleduff included persons who have been already referred to as Poes.

For example, in Ballymackleduff the inhabitants of one house were returned thus:

"William Powell, aged 34, farmer.
Sarah Powell, wife, 27, flax spinner.
Thomas Powell, son, 1.
Elizabeth Carter, 25, flax spinner, servant."

These are, of course, the "William Poe and wife and one child" mentioned in curate's census of 1822; the "William and Sarah Poe" whose son William was baptized on the 26th July, 1825; the "William Poe" whose burial at the age of 75 is recorded in the Parish Register under the date of the 10th April, 1857; and "Thomas, son of William Poe, of Ballymackleduff," baptized on the 19th March, 1820.

Three families named Powell were at this time living in Ballymackleduff and three in Drummond; and in the returns for the latter townland, "John Poe, of Drummond," who was a party to the marriage license bond of the 27th June, 1782, now appears as "John Powell," and his wife, whose maiden name had been Isabella Williams, is now set down as Isabella Powell.

In the census of 1831 these same Poes or Powells are found, but now figuring under the name of Poel.

In the census papers for 1841, the enumerator by whom the papers were issued had indorsed that for William Poe or Powell (the husband of Sarah and father of Thomas) as being for "William Poel," but the head of the family signs it as "William Powel." In the townland of Drummond three of the returns are indorsed respectively "Richard Poe," "William Poe" and "Thomas Poe;" but though Richard and Thomas sign the returns as "Powel," and William as "Poel," the indorsements furnish strong evidence that amongst their neighbors they were known by the name of Poe.

In the census return for 1851 William Poe, or Powell (husband of Sarah, and father of Thomas), and the several members of his family are entered as "Poel," but he, as head of the family, signs the paper as "William Pole."

From all this we gather that "Poel" and "Pole" were variants of the surname "Powell," and that for a century, if not longer, "Poe" was a well known abbreviated form of the name in this part of Ireland.

Going back now with the knowledge thus acquired we find this corroborated in many ways.

Thomas Poe, of Drummond, who was married to Grace McAtaggart on the 4th January, 1761, obtained the marriage license by virtue of a bond dated 4th December, 1760, made out in the name of Thomas Powell, and signed by him as "Thomas Pooel." A will of John Poell, of Drummond, dated 2nd October, 1781, bears the signature of John Poole; and the marriage license bond dated 13th April, 1841, already mentioned, executed on the issue of a license for the marriage of John Briars, with Jane Poe, daughter of William Poe, of Ballymackleduff, is signed by the latter "William Pul."

But, on the other hand, the marriage license bond, dated 27th June, 1782, entered into on the issue of the license for the marriage of John Poe, of Drummond, and Isabella Williams, bears the signature "John Poe," and the marriage license bond of 18th December, 1836, executed before the marriage of Thomas Poe, of Drummond, and Susan Burgess, is signed "Thomas Poe."

It is quite clear, therefore, that several of the Northern Powells

These are, of course, the "William Poe and wife and one child" mentioned in curate's census of 1822; the "William and Sarah Poe" whose son William was baptized on the 26th July, 1825; the "William Poe" whose burial at the age of 75 is recorded in the Parish Register under the date of the 10th April, 1852; and "Thomas, son of William Poe, of Ballymackdeduff," baptized on the 19th March, 1820.

Three families named Powell were at this time living in Ballymackdeduff and three in Drummond; and in the returns for the latter townland, "John Poe, of Drummond," who was a party to the marriage license bond of the 27th June, 1782, now appears as "John Powell," and his wife, whose maiden name had been Isabella Williams, is now set down as Isabella Powell.

In the census of 1831 these same Poes or Powells are found, but now figuring under the name of Poel.

In the census papers for 1841, the enumerator by whom the papers were issued had indorsed that for William Poe or Powell (the husband of Sarah and father of Thomas), as being for "William Poel," but the head of the family signs it as "William Powel." In the townland of Drummond three of the returns are indorsed respectively "Richard Poe," "William Poe" and "Thomas Poe," but though Richard and Thomas sign the returns as "Powel," and William as "Poel," the indorsements furnish strong evidence that amongst their neighbors they were known by the name of Poe.

In the census return for 1851 William Poe, or Powell (husband of Sarah, and father of Thomas), and the several members of his family are entered as "Poel," but he, as head of the family, signs the paper as "William Pole."

From all this we gather that "Poel" and "Pole" were variants of the surname "Powell," and that form century, if not longer, "Poe" was a well known abbreviated form of the name in this part of Ireland.

Going back now with the knowledge thus acquired we find this corroborated in many ways.

Thomas Poe, of Drummond, who was married to Grace McAlargart on the 4th January, 1761, obtained the marriage license by virtue of a bond dated 4th December, 1760, made out in the name of Thomas Powell, and signed by him as "Thomas Powl." A will of John Poell, of Drummond, dated 2nd October, 1781, bears the signature of John Poale, and the marriage license bond dated 13th April, 1811, already mentioned, executed on the issue of a license for the marriage of John Binns, with Jane Poe, daughter of William Poe, of Ballymackdeduff, is signed by the latter "William Pole."

But, on the other hand, the marriage license bond, dated 27th June, 1782, entered into on the issue of the license for the marriage of John Poe, of Drummond, and Isabella Williams, bears the signature "John Poe," and the marriage license bond of 18th December, 1836, executed before the marriage of Thomas Poe, of Drummond, and Susan Burgess, is signed "Thomas Poe."

It is quite clear, therefore, that several of the Northern Powells were baptized, married and buried under the name of Poe, and that some of them made use of the name when signing formal legal documents.

Powell is a name met with in the County Armagh at an early period. William Powell, described as of "Castlepark, Tutberry (Tutbury), in the County of Stafford, Esq,"—one of the equerries of James I—was one of the original undertakers in the Plantation of Ulster, and was granted the "great proportion of Ballyworran" (now Ballyvoran), in the Barony of Oneiland, and County Armagh. He disposed of his interest before long to Michael Obbyns, but many persons bearing the name of Powell—not necessarily, however, related to him in any way—settled early in the seventeenth century as tenants on the Plantation estates in the North of Ireland. This we know from a record still extant of the musters of tenants and retainers held about the year 1630 in the several escheated counties. Powells then appeared, armed with swords, pikes, and other weapons, in the newly created manors in the counties of Cavan, Fermanagh and Armagh; but when the rebellion of 1641 broke out, they were despoiled of their goods, driven from their homes, and at least two of their number murdered. After the insurrection was suppressed, Powells were still found in the County Armagh, but the Hearth Money rolls of 1664-1668 of Cavan and Fermanagh show that they had then disappeared from these counties.

In the Hearth Money Roll for the County Armagh of the year 1665 Patrick Powell appears at Magherlecoomore, in the Barony of Oneiland West, and William Powell at Ballymatrons, in the Barony of Armagh. In the Hearth Money Roll for 1664 the name of the latter is given as "William Pole."

As already stated, part of the Parish of Clonfeacle is in the Barony of Oneiland West, County Armagh; and as no persons of the name of Powell, or any variant of it, appear in the Parish of Clonfeacle, or anywhere else within the county, in the Tyrone Hearth Money Rolls of 1665 or 1666, it is obvious that the Powells who are found there afterwards were a branch of the County Armagh family.

Amongst the soldiers who served in one of the regiments of the Parliamentary Army in Ireland in suppressing the Rebellion of 1641, and thus became entitled to share in the distribution of the forfeited lands, were Jonathan Powell and David Powell. The association of the two names should be noticed, and the Christian names are such as might well belong to members of the same family. The names are found in a certificate of the Court of Claims, dated the 2nd of January, 1668-9. This dealt with the claims of Colonel Henry Pritty, Captain Benjamin Barry and the officers and soldiers of the same regiment, who had consented that the certificate should be granted to Henry Pritty, Benjamin Barry and the well known Sir William Petty, author of the Down Survey, and their heirs, in trust for the numerous persons therein mentioned, according to their respective rights.

Each officer and soldier had received from the authorities a debenture for his arrears of pay, and was entitled to have the amount

Powell is a name met with in the County Armagh at an early period. William Powell, described as of "Castlepark, Tuthery (Tutbury), in the County of Stafford, Esq."—one of the esquires of James I—was one of the original undertakers in the Plantation of Ulster, and was granted the "great proportion of Ballywoman" (now Ballywoman), in the Barony of Orneland, and County Armagh. He disposed of his interest before long to Mildred Obyns, but many persons bearing the name of Powell—not necessarily, however, related to him in any way—settled early in the seventeenth century as tenants on the Plantation estates in the North of Ireland. This we know from a record still extant of the musters of tenants and retainers held about the year 1630 in the several escheated counties. After the insurrection was suppressed, Powells were still found in the County Armagh, but the Hearth Money rolls of 1663-1668 of Cavan and Fermanagh show that they had then disappeared from these counties.

In the Hearth Money Roll for the County Armagh of the year 1663 Patrick Powell appears at Magherlocomore, in the Barony of Clankland West, and William Powell at Ballymartrons, in the Barony of Armagh. In the Hearth Money Roll for 1663 the name of the latter is given as "William Pole."

As already stated, part of the Parish of Clonfeacle is in the Barony of Oneiland West, County Armagh; and as no persons of the name of Powell, or any variant of it, appear in the Parish of Clonfeacle, or anywhere else within the county, in the Tyrone Hearth Money Rolls of 1663 or 1666, it is obvious that the Powells who are found there afterwards were a branch of the County Armagh family.

Each officer and soldier had received from the authorities a debenture for his arrears of pay, and was entitled to have the amount satisfied out of the forfeited lands; but soldiers whose claims were small in amount sold their claims either to their officers or to outside purchasers, and did not actually receive any grant of lands. In the present case the total amount of the claims certified was £28,913:-16:9½, and the proportion of this due to Colonel Henry Pritty was £2,604:2:1; to Jonathan Powell, £11:19:4; and to David Powell, £61:8:2. The lands allotted, out of which the claims were to be satisfied, were situate in the County Kerry, and the greater portion of them seem to have been eventually granted to Sir William Petty, the purchaser of the rights of most of the claimants, and no doubt they now form part of the extensive estates of his descendant, the Marquis of Lansdowne.

On the 7th of June, 1693, Jonathan Powell, described as of Ballyaghy, County Armagh, gent, obtained from the Archbishop of Armagh two leases of See lands in the County Armagh; one, a renewal of a former lease of the two townlands of Ballymatron Oughtra and Ballymatron Eightra, and the other, a demise of the townlands of Ballyaghy, Ballybrolly, and others.

The two townlands of Ballymatron were in the occupation of William Powell at the time the Hearth Money Roll for the County Armagh was compiled in 1665, no doubt under the lease which was renewed in 1693, and Jonathan Powell was, we may feel sure, a son of William.

This Jonathan Powell left four daughters and no son, but the line of the family was continued through his brother, Arthur Powell, whom we find as a party to several leases and deeds in the early part of the eighteenth century, and who lived at Drumbee, in the Parish and County of Armagh.

The foregoing facts establish that there was a family named Powell in the County Armagh in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and that a branch of it penetrated into a portion of the County Tyrone, bordering on Armagh, and was there known from time to time as Powell, Poel, Poole and Poe. The question then suggests itself: is there evidence that any member of this family migrated to the County Cavan, and to the locality in which David Poe of Dring is found?

An answer to this can be given with certainty. On the 8th of March, 1719, a license was issued by the Consistorial Court of the Diocese of Kilmore for the marriage of Jonathan Powell of the parish of Armagh and County of Armagh, gentleman, and Margaret Bennett, of the Parish of Drumlane, County of Cavan, and Diocese of Kilmore.

This Jonathan Powell without doubt was a son of Arthur Powell of Drumbee and a nephew of Jonathan Powell of Ballyaghy and Ballybrolly. After this marriage he moved to Corr, in the Parish of Templeport, County Cavan, which adjoins the Parish of Kildallon, in which the townland of Dring is situate.

Jonathan Powell of Corr made his will, dated the 31st of August, 1756, and the provisions of it show that he was a tenant farmer of much the same class as David Poe of Dring, and with about the satisfied out of the forfeited lands; but soldiers whose claims were small in amount sold their claims either to their officers or to outside purchasers, and did not actually receive any grant of lands. In the present case the total amount of the claims certified was £28,013:-16:0½, and the proportion of this due to Colonel Henry Fitzy was £3,604:2:1; to Jonathan Powell, £11:19:; and to David Powell, £01:8:2. The lands allotted, out of which the claims were to be satisfied, were situate in the County Kerry, and the greater portion of them seem to have been eventually granted to Sir William Petty, the purchaser of the rights of most of the claimants, and no doubt they now form part of the extensive estates of his descendant, the Marquis of Lansdowne.

On the 7th of June, 1693, Jonathan Powell, described as of Ballyagly, County Armagh, gent, obtained from the Archbishop of Armagh two leases of See lands in the County Armagh; one, a renewal of a former lease of the two townlands of Ballymaston Cughtra and Ballymaston Eighra, and the other, a demise of the townlands of Ballyagly, Ballybrolly, and others.

The question then suggests itself: is there evidence that any member of this family migrated to the County Cavan, and to the locality in which David Poe of Dring is found?

same moderate amount of education. A bequest to his three sons, Thomas, Jonathan and William, of certain boards, planks and joyce (i. e., joists), refers to some of them as having been brought by him out of the County Armagh and identifies him as a member of the Armagh family of Powell.

Can there be any reasonable doubt, then, that David Poe of Dring was also a member of the Powell family in whose case the custom existed—as with some of the Powells of Clonfeacle—to use the contracted form of the name?

The signature—such as it is—appended to the minutes of the vestry meeting of the 12th of April, 1726, represents the name as "Pooe," while in the marriage license bond of the 31st of October, 1741, it appears as "Poe."

The "David" and "Jonathan" of Dring and Corr—living almost cheek by jowl—recall to mind the fellow soldiers David Powell and Jonathan Powell to the certificate of the Court of Claims: and it seems highly probable that David Poe of Dring was in fact a brother of Jonathan Powell of Corr and another son of Arthur Powell of Drumbee. In the case of the Clonfeacle family we find one brother signing his name as Poe, while another, living in the same parish, always made use of the original name of Powell.

If the foregoing views are accepted, the remote ancestors of Edgar Allan Poe are to be sought for in the Powell family and probably had their origin in Wales.

The surname Powell came from Ap-Howell, i. e., the son of Howell, just as Pritchard came from Ap-Richard, Bowen from Ap-Owen, and Pugh and Pue from Ap-Hugh. David, too, is a characteristic Welsh name.

If Edgar Allan Poe was descended from the Powells, he may have had not only bards but princes amongst his ancestors, and some of his admirers may imagine that this may have had some influence on his talents or his character. Others, however, though admitting that some qualities of mind and body may be transmissible, will hold that genius does not depend on parentage or ancestry, and whenever and wherever it is found, one must feel thankful for it, without attempting to speculate too much on the human sources from which it has come.

Recent investigations by the present writer show that there are good reasons for believing that the Nottinghamshire family of Poe also derived its name from Powell; and if this turns out to be correct, it will strongly support the views above expressed.

Therefore, although, as already stated, the paternal ancestry of Edgar Allan Poe cannot be strictly traced for more than four generations, there is a presumption—approaching almost to a certainty—that the Poes of Dring, from whom he was descended, were a branch of the Powells of the County Armagh.

The foregoing pages may not have added very much to our knowledge of the early ancestors of Edgar Allan Poe, but they have at least corrected some errors, and pointed out the direction that future investigations on the subject should take.

EDITORIAL.

We understand that a bill has been prepared by Senator Lodge, to be introduced during the present session of Congress, to establish a Board of Record Commissioners who shall have sole legal custody of all books of record and filed papers belonging to the United States; also to provide for a suitable Record Office building to which, when completed, all books and files in the custody of the Board of Record Commissioners shall be transferred. Unquestionably such a bill would be acceptable to the historical and genealogical societies of the country as well as to all who appreciate the importance of collecting and preserving public records. It is noteworthy that this bill has been prepared by the senator from Massachusetts—a State that has set so noble an example with regard to the collection and printing of its vital statistics and historical records, which other States, save Rhode Island, have been slow to follow. It is for the effect upon the rest of the States that we desire to see the bill enacted, and a Record Office established by the Federal Government. For such action on the part of the United States would be an object lesson to State governments and should stimulate them to greater activity in the same direction. Unhappily the importance of preserving and publishing historic records and vital statistics is not appreciated by the majority of the people, and it may be long before we see the matter properly attended to.

Meanwhile the task which should be undertaken by the State is left to private enterprise, and to the historic-genealogical societies. But these are unable to accomplish it. They have neither the funds nor the equipment needful to prosecute it with energy and dispatch. So, while the work languishes the golden opportunity passes. The tragedy of the Sibylline Books is re-enacted. Records and vital statistics now available are being destroyed, and, when at last the priceless value of what has been irretrievably lost is realized, the opportunity to obtain them will be gone forever! This is especially true concerning the vital statistics of the State of New York, for these—at least the older statistics—are mainly to be found in church and cemetery records, which are peculiarly liable to loss or obliteration. What should be done for their preservation must be accomplished soon. The New York Genealogical and Biographical Society has become fully alive to this necessity. It has set before it the transcribing of the church and church-yard records of the State as the chief object of its mission. Already it has gathered into its archives nearly two hundred copies of such records, many of which it desires to publish. It has recently elected corresponding members in almost every county of the State in order to advance this work. But the funds needful to further its mission are still wanting. Is not now the time for the Society to appeal to its members and to public spirited citizens to come to its assistance?

The Executive Committee reported the resignation of Robert De Puy Farlee had been received Sept. 10, 1906.

The speaker of the evening, Prof. Herschel C. Parker, Ph. D., of Columbia University, was then introduced, and gave a most interesting lecture, entitled "Alaska, and Explorations of Mt. McKinley," illustrated by many beautifully colored stereopticon views.

The subject, Alaska and Mt. McKinley, was particularly attractive on account of the recent discoveries in that region.

On account of the long rainy season, the hardships of the explorer are many. Much of their traveling has to be done by water, and at times it is absolutely impossible for them to proceed by boat, owing to the huge glaciers they encounter.

Frequently, strapped to their staunch Indian ponies, they have to swim miles at a time. If, by accident, pony and rider become separated, it means almost certain death, as no man can long hold out against this swiftly moving icy water.

Prof. Parker, who had recently visited Alaska, showed many beautiful colored views of this interesting country in all its varying characteristics which compared favorably with Norway in grandure of scenery, and in some cases even surpassed it.

The native Indians, he said, were adverse to civilization, and rather shunned the white man. Although they seriously objected to have their pictures taken, the Professor had obtained several good ones, both of the Indians and their tents. The Totem Poles illustrated were most remarkable, and some of unusual size.

The lecture certainly was a delightful treat, and every one appreciated it. The audience was one of the largest ever gathered together in our hall.

At the close of the lecture a resolution of thanks was tendered to Prof. Parker.

According to Art. VII., Sec. 3, By-Laws, the President appointed the following Nominating Committee, to nominate five (5) Trustees for the term 1907–1910:

HOPPER STRIKER MOTT, Chairman.
JOSEPH COLLINS PUMPELLY.

Hall Rents to Dec. 1, amount to $1,015.00, being an increase over last year of $216.00; the Room Rents amount to $158.50 per month, being an increase per month of $31.50.

The growing cost of the RECORD was also referred to at length.

3 U. S. Steel Bonds, ...	$1,466.25
Cash on hand, ...	382.49
	$1,848.74

On motion report was received and ordered on file.

The Librarian reported that the number of books received had been fully up to the record, the visitors numerous, and that through the assiduity of the Assistant-Librarian thirteen (13) new members had been gained during the year.

Mr. Wright on behalf of the Publication Committee stated that the 1906 volume of the RECORD was the largest ever issued; its alphabetically arranged index comprised about 12,000 names, and that the publication was in good condition and with an abundance of mortuary records on hand.

President Dwight spoke as to the securing of material for the RECORD, and the portrait illustrations.

President Dwight reminded the Board that the generous offer of Archer M. Huntington, of a building site on Washington Heights, which called for an answer.

On motion of Mr. Wright the Huntington proposition was referred to Mr. Drowne, the object in view being to hold the matter in abeyance for a short time longer, and to report at the next meeting.

Dr. Dwight reported writing to Mrs. Russell Sage, having received a reply from her Secretary, and had prepared a letter setting forth the growing needs of the Society and its future sphere of usefulness.

Her genealogy goes back on both her paternal grandfather's and grandmother's side to the Tudors who married into the royal family of England. Her father, Frederick Tudor, was the son of Frederick Tudor, the son of William Tudor, a colonel of the Revolutionary army under Washington, who was the son of John Tudor, a descendant of Owen Tudor of Windsor, Ct. He was graduated from Harvard University with the class of 1893, and inherited an estate estimated at $3,000,000. After his graduation he entered upon a successful business career in banking and stock transactions and added to his fortune. He became known as a horseman of discriminating taste and published a book entitled "The Private Stable," for Randolph-Macon, Madeweyer and Higgins, 1904. He was also an enthusiastic yachtsman. In 1901 he became the editor of the New England Magazine and continued in that position until his failing health compelled him to relinquish it. He was a member of the Union Club, the New York and Seawanaka Yacht Clubs, the Players, Studiers, Knickerbocker and Myopia Clubs of New York City, as well as of other clubs in Boston.

James A. Garland married in Sept., 1893, Marie L. Tudor of Brookline, Mass., who survives him. Her genealogy goes back on both her paternal grandfather's and grandmother's side to the Tudors who married into the royal family of England. Her father, Frederick Tudor, was the son of Frederick Tudor, the son of William Tudor, a colonel of the Revolutionary army under Washington, who was the son of John Tudor, a descendant of Owen Tudor of Windsor, Co. Besides his widow he leaves two children, James Albert, Tudor, Charles, Hamilton and Hope Garland.

HICKS, BENJAMIN DOGGETT, a life member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society since 1888, died Sept. 19, 1905, at his home in Wes-bury, L. I., aged seventy years. He was born Feb. 24, 1836, in New York City. He belonged to the Hicks family of Long Island, and, like the others, was a prominent member of the Society of Friends. This family traces its ancestry to a family of English gentry settled at Tortworth, Co. Gloucester, England, whose earliest known ancestor was Sir Ellis Hicks who was knighted by the Black Prince at the battle of Poitiers, 1356. The first of the family to come to America was Robert Hicks, one of the "forefathers," who came in the ship Fortune, 1621, to Plymouth, Mass., and cast his lot with the Pilgrims of the Mayflower. John Hicks, the second son of Robert, was one of the patentees to whom Governor Kieft, in 1645, granted the township of Flushing, L. I., and took a prominent part in the affairs of the settlement. His name and that of his only son Thomas, who was appointed the first Judge of the County, appears in connection with almost every public measure for many years.

His father, Benjamin D. Hicks, 1797–1835, was the son of Isaac Hicks, a noted ship owner of New York, by his wife, 1767–1820, Sarah Doughty; son of Samuel Hicks, 1741–1819, and Phoebe Seaman; son of Benjamin Hicks, 1713–1744, and Phoebe Titus; son of Jacob Hicks, 1669–1755, and Hannah Carpenter; son of Judge Thomas Hicks, 1640–1741, and Mary Washburn; son of John Hicks, the patentee of Flushing, L. I., by his first wife, Horod Long; son of Robert Hicks, the emigrant, by his first wife, Elizabeth Morgan; who was the son of James and Phoebe Hicks; the son of Baptist Hicks of Tortworth, England, by his wife Mary Everard, daughter of James Everard, Esq.; the son of Thomas Hicks of Tortworth and Margaret Atwood; the son of John Hicks of Tortworth, who died in 1492, and was a lineal descendant of Sir Ellis Hicks, who was knighted at Poitiers, 1356, for bravery in capturing a set of colors from the French. His mother, Elizabeth T. Hicks, was a distant cousin of his father, being descendant from Judge Thomas Hicks and Mary Washburn.

Mr. Hicks inherited a competent fortune, and instead of engaging in mercantile pursuits devoted himself to public affairs and charitable undertakings. He made his home in New York City until 1870, when he removed to Westbury on Long Island. Throughout his whole life he was one of the most diligent and public spirited members of society. He took part in the earliest formation of the Republican party, and was the secretary of the first Republican club organized in New York City. For thirty years an active worker in the Republican ranks. For ten years he was a member of the Republican State Committee of the First Congressional District, and was intimately associated with the leaders of that party in his State, but never a candidate for office. He was a life-long friend of George William Curtis, and actively supported him in his campaign for civil service reform. He joined with Henry Bergh in organizing the first Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, of which he became the vice-president. He was also an active vice-president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, both in New York and Brooklyn, and was one of the organizers of the Queens County Branch of the State Charities Aid Association.

Mr. Hicks served as Lieutenant in the Civil War, and was a member of Elijah Ward Post, G. A. R., also a member of the Society of Colonial Wars. He was a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, a director of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, the Bond and Mortgage Company, the Realty Association, the Capital Company, and the Long Island Securities Company. He was also interested in a number of local institutions, being president of three banks, the Roslyn Savings Bank, Nassau County Bank, and Bank of Hempstead Harbor. He was also an interested member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, and found time for genealogical and historical research. In 1894, he edited and published at his own expense the records of the towns of Hempstead and North Hempstead—a monumental work to which Mr. Hicks. assisted by his wife, had devoted several years of their lives. Every line of the old and almost illegible records, that had to be deciphered with a magnifying glass, was gone over carefully and conscientiously transcribed.

Benjamin D. Hicks was twice married. His first wife was Maria Louise Herrick, only daughter of Elias Hicks Herrick of New York. She died in 1861. In 1883 he married Alice Albertson, eldest daughter of Thomas W. Albertson of Mineola, N. Y. Having no children by either marriage, he

Their only child, John Frelinghuysen Jackson Randell, died in 1865.

QUERIES.

CORNELL.—I would be glad to learn anything relating to Cornelius Cornell (Cornel), of Flatbush, L. I., and of his brothers Jacob, of New Lotts, L. I., John, of Big Bush, Jamaica Road, Adrian, William and Gilliam, of S. Hampton, Pa., and Simeon, of Lancaster, Pa., or of his sister Margaret, who was the wife of Remsen Vanderbelt.

VAN DER LINDE.—Among the early settlers of Schenectady, N. Y., was Teunis Cornelissen Swart, who m. Elizabeth Van der Linde, and became the father of Pieternelle, whose husband, Gerrit Van Vliet, was probably the eldest son of Adrian and Agatha (Jans Spruyt) Van Vliet. Does anyone know who were the ancestors of this Elizabeth? MARTENSE HARCOURT CORNELL, Wappingers Falls, N. Y.

PALMER.—Particularly wanted ancestry of James Palmer, of Westchester Co., New York, also maiden name of wife Elizabeth ——. Wanted, ancestry of Sarah Flewwilling (spelled so in deed or will), wife of Ajah Palmer (son of the above James), any dates of birth, marriages, deaths or revolutionary records. E. COWING, 24 E. Bayard St., Seneca Falls, N. Y.

SMITH-CROPLEY.—Information wanted of Mrs. Hannah Smith (widow) and of William Cropley, who were married Feb. 10, 1779 (New York Marriages, p. 93). MRS. SARAH D. CROPLEY, Marblehead, Mass.

STEWART.—Can anyone give me any information about the ancestry of Admiral Charles Stewart, born in Philadelphia July 18, 1778; died in Bordentown, New Jersey, Nov. 7, 1869? His daughter, Delia Tudor, was the mother of Charles Stewart Parnell.

Charles Stewart entered the merchant service at the age of 13, and rose from cabin-boy to commander of an Indiaman. He at one time commanded the Constitution, "Old Ironsides." He was the youngest member of the family, and was the son of Irish parents. I would like to know the names of his brothers and sisters, and the dates of their birth.

Charles Stewart, eldest son of Oliver Stewart, a Revolutionary soldier, was born (probably in New Jersey) about 1778. He entered the navy as cabin-boy, at the age of 13, on a ship commanded by his uncle. His children were: Ezra, John, Bruce, Charles, Wallace, Amanda, Ruth Ann, Melvina, Marcena, Martha.

The coincidence that two Charles Stewarts, of Irish lineage, born about the same year, entered the maritime service as cabin-boys at the age of 13, and that both families lived in New Jersey, leads me to infer that they were near relatives, if not the same person. I would greatly appreciate any information relative to the family of Admiral Charles Stewart, or of Oliver Stewart. It is my opinion that the admiral was uncle to Charles Stewart, who was uncle to my grandfather, Oliver Stewart Edson. GEORGE THOMAS EDSON,

This gossippy little book is made up of mingled traditions and history, and therefore contains much of interest not considered important enough for more formal works. It tells of Killingworth and its birds, of whaleboat privateersmen of the Revolution, of the frogs of Windham, and discourses in a pleasant way of various other things, half-forgotten, which it is good to call to remembrance.

KINGDON-GOULD. Grafton Press, N. Y. City. 1906. Pp. 25, folio-cloth.

This work is the first of the "Visitations of New York" to issue from the Grafton Press. These visitations when completed are intended to cover the pedigrees of all the old and prominent families of New York City and State. A sketch of the Kingdon coat-of-arms is given with history of its origin, and the pedigree of the present generation of Kingdon-Gould blood is therein given, tracing the Kingdon line back to the remote period of the 12th century. The pedigree of the Kingdon-Gould line seems to be authentiatively established back to John Kingdon of Coleridge, Co. Devon, 1596, and back of that upon fair presumptive evidence to the 12th century. The authorities for each claim in the pedigree are quoted at full in the back of the work. The line established differs from that given in Burkes' Commoners, but the variance is accounted for by quoted authorities.

The general scheme of these visitations is heartily commended, and the fuller the authorities quoted in each case, the more valuable each work becomes and the greater credit they reflect upon those responsible therefor.

CHRONICLES OF A CONNECTICUT FARM, 1769-1905. Compiled by Mary E. Perkins (author of "Old Houses of the Ancient Town of Norwich"), for Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mitchell, the present proprietors of the Mumford and Woodbridge Homesteads. With maps, portraits and genealogical charts. Boston. Privately printed. The Merrymount Press. 1905.

This work is a limited edition of fifty (50) copies, and is a beautiful example of the possibilities of modern press work. It contains a complete history of the original estate of Col. William Browne of Salem, Mass.—map of same given—with boundary lines indicating subsequent divisions thereof, and the subject matter giving full information as to the successive ownership of the various subdivisions. There are also charts of the Mumford family, and Christopher families, in so far as they apply to the ancestry of Mr. Mitchell, with finely executed plates of various of his ancestors along these two lines. The work is fully indexed, and as an example of exhaustive narrative of a special line of ancestry, in a most artistic form, is unexcelled. Others able so to do should follow Mr. Mitchell's example, and leave to posterity memorials, of such undoubted merit and value, of their own particular families.

THE HILLS FAMILY IN AMERICA. The Ancestry and Descendants of William Hills, the English emigrant to New England in 1632; of Joseph Hills, the English emigrant to New England in 1638; and of the great-grandsons of Robert Hills, of the Parish of Wye, County of Kent, England, emigrants to New England, 1794-1806. Compiled by William Sanford Hills and edited by Thomas Hills. New York. The Grafton Press. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. xx+713.

In this comprehensive work the attempt has been made, with considerable success, to account not only for the Hills families enumerated in the sub-title, but also for a number of recent emigrants of that name, and for partial lines which cannot be traced to the emigrant. In the introduction the origin of the name, the common English ancestor and his coat-armor, are described and illustrated, and the appendix goes quite thoroughly into a report of the results of the searches in England made by the late Dr. George W. Marshall, York Herald. In the body of the book, all descendants of the Hills name are numbered in Arabic numerals, and are brought forward, whether any more is known of the individual or not. The children of daughters have Roman numerals, and are not carried forward. The book is well made and printed, and has a triple index.

Others able so to do should follow Mr. Mitchell's example, and leave to posterity memorials of such undoubted merit and value, of their own particular families.

THE HILLS FAMILY IN AMERICA. The Ancestry and Descendants of William Hills, the English emigrant to New England in 1635; of Joseph Hills, the English emigrant in New England in 1638; and of the great-grandsons of Robert Hills, of the Parish of Wye, County of Kent, England, emigrants to New England, 1701–1800. Compiled by William Seward Hills and edited by Thomas Hills. New York. The Grafton Press. 1905. 8vo, cloth, pp. xxx–715.

In this comprehensive work the author has been made, with considerable success, to account not only for the Hills families emigrated in the 17th cty., but also for a number of recent emigrants of that name, and for partial lines which cannot be traced to the emigrant. In the introduction the origin of the name, the common English ancestor and his coat-of-arms are described and illustrated, and the genealogies are quite thoroughly into a report of the results of the searches in England made by the late Dr. George W. Marshall, F.S.A. Herald. In the body of the book, all descendants of the Hills name are numbered in Arabic numerals, and are brought forward, whether any more is known of the individual or not. The condition of dwellers have Roman numerals, and are not carried forward. The book is well made and printed, and has a triple index.

THE ROBINSON FAMILY AND THEIR KINSFOLK, THIRD SERIES, JULY, 1906. The Robinson Family Genealogical and Historical Association, Officers, Constitution and By-Laws, Secretary's Report, Historical Sketches, Illustrated, Members of Association. New York. Published by the Association. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 130.

Following the By-Laws and Secretary's report, the genealogical part of this work begins with biographical sketches of Rowland Robinson of Rhode Island and his more important descendants, written by members of his family, and accompanied by a genealogy of the line. The second part of the book deals with George Robinson of Watertown, Mass., and William Robinson of Dorchester, Mass., and with various other founders of families, with a good deal of genealogy, and some excellent illustrations of coats of arms, homesteads and other congenial subjects. The book is a model for other family associations, and, had it an index, would be almost perfect.

HISTORIC HADLEY. A Story of the Making of a Famous Massachusetts Town. Alice Morehouse Walker. New York. The Grafton Press. 1906. 12D, cloth, pp. xii+130.

This is the second of the Grafton Historical series under the able editorship of Dr. Henry R. Stiles. It is written to inculcate love of one's own town, and to present in a simple form a narrative that any one may find time to read. In both these objects the author would seem to have succeeded. Hadley people as well as others must surely be edified by this sprightly little volume, with its good index.

A HISTORY OF THE FAMILY OF CAIRNES OR CAIRNS, AND ITS CONNECTIONS. H. C. Lawler. London. Elliot Stock. 1906. Quarto, cloth, pp. xiv+292.

This valuable family history, accompanied by genealogies and illustrated by charts and beautiful representations of arms, castles and ancient family portraits, is a pleasant and romantic change from the usual genealogy. The Carnys of that Ilk go back to the respectable antiquity of the years 1300–1310, and the account of the family in its Castle of Cairns, with a chapter on Some Contemporary Scottish History, is of much interest. Willie Nicol, friend of Robert Burns, married a Cairns, and appears in this book; and Sir Robert Maxwell, whose romantic career was the foundation of Sir Walter Scott's novel "Guy Mannering." The volume is very attractive, but the index is insufficient. In the list of pedigrees may be found those of the families of Carnys of that Ilk, and Crichton of Carnys; Cairnes in Galloway; Cairnes of Monaghan and Westenra, Lords Rossmore; Cairnes of Killyfaddy, Savile Lodge and Stameen; and Cairns of Kipp, Torr and Girstingwood.

HISTORY OF THE OHIO SOCIETY OF NEW YORK, 1885–1905. Prepared and compiled under the direction of Henry L. Burnett, Warren Higley, Leander H. Crall, Committee on Publication, by James H. Kennedy, Historian. New York. The Grafton Press. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 663.

In this handsome memorial an account of the organization of the Society is followed by its Proceedings by years from 1886 to 1905, inclusive. The Ohio Society was founded in 1885 under the name of the Ohio Association in New York, with General Thomas Ewing as its first president. A few days later the title was changed to The Ohio Society of New York. The success of this organization seems to have been assured from the start. Its membership has been recruited from among the most famous of Ohioans living in New York, and before it have appeared, as orator or guest, almost every man great in National affairs in the last twenty years. Many of the speeches are reproduced, and the appendix contains valuable papers, such as "The Ordinance of 1787" and the "War of 1861," by General Wager Swayne, and "The Struggle for Freedom in Kansas," by General Thomas Ewing. The gentlemen engaged in the production of this work have ably fulfilled their duty. The letter-press, illustrations and make-up are all excellent.

COLLECTIONS OF THE NEW BRUNSWICK HISTORICAL SOCIETY, No. 5. Saint John, N. B. 1904. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 139–280.

"A Sketch of the Province of Nova Scotia, and chiefly of such parts as are settled, 1783," written in that year by Col. Edward Winslow, is the first document submitted, followed by Monckton's Report of his expedition against the French on the St. John in 1758, and John Mitchel's diary and field book of his survey of Passamaquoddy in 1764, both edited by W. F. Ganong. The most important part of the pamphlet to American readers is the article by W. O. Raymond, LL.D., on Loyalists in Arms, with a roll of officers.

HISTORY OF THE OHIO SOCIETY OF NEW YORK, 1887–1905. Prepared and compiled under the direction of Henry L. Burnett, Warren Higley, Lander Cullen, Committee on Publication, by James H. Kennedy, Historian. New York. The Grafton Press. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 663.

In this handsome memorial an account of the organization of the Society is followed by its Proceedings by years from 1890 to 1905, inclusive. EXECUTIVE JOURNAL OF IOWA, 1833-1841. GOVERNOR ROBERT LUCAS. Edited by Benjamin F. Shambaugh. Iowa City. Published by the State Historical Society of Iowa. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. xxv+341.

A valuable historical document containing the above record of executive acts has recently been discovered, which throws much light on the territorial period of Iowa history. It contains lists of Militia Officers and others commissioned by the governor, and its value to the historian will increase with the lapse of time.

SUFFOLK DEEDS, LIBER. XIV. Boston. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 185.

The period covered is 1681-1697. This is one of the best county publications now in hand. It is greatly to be hoped that New York State will eventually follow her New England sisters in the publication of deeds and vital records, and that they may in turn emulate us in the publication of wills and records of military and civil service.

COVERT ANCESTRY. Compiled by Edson Salisbury Jones. New York. Tobias A. Wright. 1906. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 20.

This is a reprint from the RECORD, and is a study of the family which will be of assistance to those dealing with the genealogical difficulties of Westchester County.

A SUPPLEMENT TO THE GENERAL REGISTER OF THE SOCIETY OF COLONIAL WARS. Boston. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 386.

This supplemental volume contains a good deal of additional material in the list of ancestors, and shows a considerable growth in membership since the last year book. It is attractively bound in white and red, and is well printed.

MEMORANDA RELATING TO THE MCVICKAR FAMILY IN AMERICA. Edward McVickar and William Constable Breed. New York. 1906. 8vo, pamphlet.

The founder of this well-known New York family was Archibald McVickar, whose son Archibald and grandson John came to this country. The genealogy was compiled in order to settle an estate, and may therefore be relied upon as accurate. The pamphlet is attractively put together, with the McVicar arms on the cover.

COLLECTIONS OF THE NEW YORK HISTORICAL SOCIETY FOR THE YEAR 1898. Publication Fund Series. Abstracts of Wills, Vol. VII. New York. 1899. 8vo, cloth, pp. 553.

In the present volume are Wills from June 6, 1767, to November 29, 1771, with Letters of Administration from January 6, 1767, to January 11, 1773. The publication of these wills, with their valuable cross-referencing, is of immense help to the genealogist, and will increase in interest and value when the difficult period in and after the Revolutionary War is reached.

MINUTES OF THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, 1675-1776. Published under the authority of the City of New York. New York. Dodd, Mead and Company. 1905. 8 volumes, 8vo, cloth.

The records printed in these volumes occupy a rare place in the history of municipal affairs in this country, since only Albany and Philadelphia can compare with them. From the beginning of the final English occupation to its close, the records are complete, and form a panorama of one hundred years of the city's life. The topical index is thoroughly well done.

WILLIAM YATES AND HIS DESCENDANTS. Compiled by Edgar Yates. Old Orchard, Me. Put in type and printed by Edward M. Yates and Edgar Yates. 1906. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 47.

William Yates, the founder of this family, was born August 30, 1772, but the exact place of his birth is not known. It is said that he was born in Scotland. He married Martha Morgan, and her descent from Robert Morgan of Beverly is shown.

Frederick D. Thompson

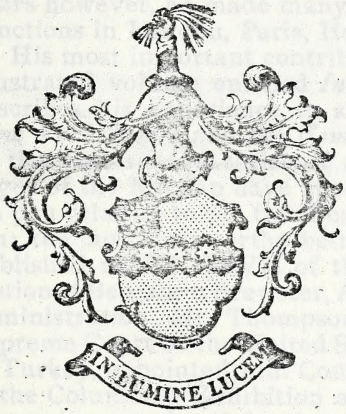
THE NEW YORK

Genealogical and Biographical Record.

VOL. XXXVIII. NEW YORK, APRIL, 1907. No. 2

FREDERICK D. THOMPSON.

BY GEN. JAS. GRANT WILSON.



By the death of Frederick Diodati Thompson, the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society loses one of its trustees, a valued member for twenty-nine years who had its best interests at heart, and one who had also held the office of Secretary, performing his duties with zeal and intelligence.

Mr. Thompson was born in this city, December 17, 1847, in Lafayette Place, then a fashionable quarter. He was the youngest son of David Thompson and his wife Sarah Diodati Gardiner. It was there amid a delightful harmonious home circle that the greater part of his life was passed, and until the character of Lafayette Place changed under the northward expansion of trade. One after another of the old-fashioned brick houses were either transformed for business purposes or replaced by commercial buildings until the neighborhood bore but little resemblance to its former condition. Impelled by the changes, Mr. Thompson removed with his family to No. 17 West 36th Street, where he passed away, unmarried, October 10, 1906, after a long illness, endured with remarkable fortitude.

Mr. Thompson's education was obtained in one of the leading private schools of the day, and in moral training he had all that was the best in the example of the Christian lives of his parents. As a pupil he was obedient and diligent, evincing a special interest in history, an aptitude for which he probably inherited from his mother, the daughter of John Lyon Gardiner, seventh proprietor of Gardiner's Island. She was a lady of unusual gentleness and sweetness of character, endowed with a remarkably retentive memory for much that appertained to the traditionary history of Connecticut and Long Island, but especially to that beautiful and romantic domain—the home of her girlhood. Of numismatics he was fond, and while still a boy, he formed the nucleus of what later became a valuable collection of coins and medals.

On the completion of his studies, he entered the law school of Columbia College, from which institution he was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Laws. Though admitted to the bar of New York, he never practiced his profession, but relinquished it to engage in financial pursuits. For a number of years he was identified with the Bank of America. Retiring from active business, Mr. Thompson devoted his time to literary pursuits; to travel at home and abroad; to the publication of the Magazine of American History, which he owned, and to the management of his estate on Long Island. His summers were generally spent at Bar Harbor, Newport and Lenox. During the last fifteen years however, he made many visits abroad, taking part in social functions in London, Paris, Homburg and Aix-les-Bains.

His most important contribution to literature is a beautifully illustrated volume entitled In the Track of the Sun, in which he describes his experience in a tour around the world. For the New York Times and the Commercial Advertiser he contributed in the year 1900, a series of articles on the Orient, and in the pages of the RECORD have appeared at various times papers from his pen relating to the families of Diodati, Gardiner and Thompson; the most noteworthy being an exhaustive one on the latter published in Vol. XXVII of the RECORD for January, 1896. On motion of Benjamin Brewster, Attorney-General during Harrison's administration, Mr. Thompson was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States; and Abdul Hamid II, Sultan of Turkey, appointed him Commissioner of the Ottoman Empire to the Columbian Exhibition at Chicago in 1893. In recognition of services rendered in that connection, the Sultan bestowed upon him the Imperial Ottoman Order of the Medjidie, and at a subsequent time that of the Osmanli.

Mr. Thompson never turned a deaf ear to the appeals of charity, but was always ready to assist in the amelioration of the indigent. Nowhere was he more appreciated as a philanthropist than in Lucca, Italy, the home of his Italian ancestors, to which he presented in 1900 the sum of 50,000 lire for the construction of an ambulance and for the extension of humane work.

For his aid as a philanthropist in Italy, Pope Leo XIII, conferred upon him the title of Count of the Holy See; and in virtue of his descent from the family of Diodati of Lucca, the title of count was also bestowed upon him by the present ruler of Italy. The ancestral seat of the Thompsons of Long Island is Sagtikos Manor, situated at West Islip, County of Suffolk. It comprises a tract of over 1,200 acres, including a neck of land called Appletree Wicke, the title to which was granted June 2, 1697, by King William III to Col. Stephanus Van Cortlandt, and by him sold in 1758 to Jonathan Thompson. In Sagtikos Manor Mr. Thompson took a very just pride, a century and a half having elapsed since it came in the possession of his family. The house built in 1697, has lately been enlarged, the design of the new part being in strict accordance with its prototype, thus insuring to the whole the character of a mansion of the Colonial period. It witnessed many stirring events during the War of the American Revolution, and Washington spent a night there after his first election to the presidency. It is filled with mementos of the past, family portraits, and souvenirs of foreign travel.

Frederick Diodati Thompson was descended from the Rev. William Thompson, a native of Winwicke in Lancashire, England, of a family originally of Northumberland, born in 1597; and of John Thompson, the ancestor of the Thompsons of the County of Suffolk, who came to Long Island in 1656. On his mother's side he was ninth in descent from Lion Gardiner and Mary his wife, daughter of Dericke Willemson Deurcant, of Woerden, Holland. Lion Gardiner was an Englishman, a military engineer who came to this country in 1635, and after constructing works of defense at the mouth of the Connecticut river, settled at Monchonac, now Gardiner's Island, which he purchased of the Indians in 1639. Gardiner's Island was the first English settlement in the State of New York, and is still in the undivided possession of the Gardiner family, a genealogical notice of whom appeared in Vol. XXIII of the Record for October, 1892.

From the family of Diodati of Lucca, Mr. Thompson was descended through his maternal grandmother, Sarah Griswold of Lyme, Connecticut, who married John Lyon Gardiner of Gardiner's Island. Her mother was a daughter of Rev. Stephen Johnson of Lyme, and his wife Elizabeth Diodate of New Haven, whose father William Diodate came from England, where his name was anglized. He was descended from Cornelio Diodati who settled in Lucca in 1300. The Diodati family is now extinct in all the male branches except one in Switzerland, the head of which is Count Gabriel Diodati of Geneva.

Mr. Thompson was a well-read man, and having travelled in many lands, besides passing much of his time in Europe, where he enjoyed an acquaintanceship with men prominent in art, letters and science, he was an agreeable and cultivated companion. In temperament he was calm, self-reliant, logical in his reasoning, and possessing qualities peculiarly his own. Though by nature conservative, in his sentiments he, nevertheless, kept abreast of the progressive spirit of the age, viewing all matters of public and private interest in an unprejudiced, broad-minded light. United to these attributes were his sterling qualities of honesty

BAXTER FAMILY NOTES.

COLLECTED BY JAMES W. T. SCOTT, PHILADELPHIA.

The original purpose in compiling the Baxter Genealogies and Notes published in this magazine in 1900, was discovery of the parents of Mary Schuyler, who m. Capt. John Baxter, and had a son Schuyler Baxter, b. April 10, 1761. That purpose has not been attained, but it is hoped that hereafter some information about her may be found, and that the finder will communicate it to THE NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD.

Since 1900 the following notes have accumulated:

"Allice" Baxter and John Hunt, the latter described as of Westchester, were licensed to marry, June 15, 1670, by a document addressed "To the Justices of the Peace and Ministers in the Province of New Jersey or to either of them," and signed by Carteret with the seal of the province. They were m. by James Ballen, Justice, June 16, 1670. (At Perth Amboy?). New Jersey Grantees, Liber 3, p. 35.

In April, 1763, there was an Indian alarm at Burnet's Ford, German Flats, Mohawk valley. Eckerson and Thomas Baxter responded to the call to arms April 24 to 28, with Capt. Jacob Klock's Company. Roger and John Baxter and Pieter Schuyler, Jr., did not, but subsequently were lawfully excused.

Oliver Baxter lived in or near Westchester, N. Y., Dec. 24, 1779, when Gen. Pattison, British Commander of New York, ordered the militia colonel commanding, to send him to the city, to testify in Watts vs. Dickinson.

Who was this Mrs. Baxter? "June 6, 1789, Mr. Bell called and represented Mrs. Baxter's situation as so low that I might never see her if I did not do it soon. I agreed to meet him in the ferry house (New York) for Elizabethtown Point and accompany him home. 'Twas night when we came to Mr. Bell's. Poor Mrs. Baxter lay a skeleton indeed—she may never recover—but much indeed does it seem against her. She too was gay and she is yet young. Useful lesson to the fluttering females of the neighborhood, if lesson were of any service in these giddy times. Most of the representatives of South Carolina were floating in this neighborhood this evening and all Sunday. The house was filled with decent visitants, mostly, however, females and charmingly did they chat it. The almost only subject was the measures that were pursued to detain Congress in New York. June 8, set off for the Point in a chair (sedan?) which broke down. Upon the whole the jaunt was a disagreeable one, but it was right to see the poor, languid perhaps dying Mrs. Baxter. How lately was she as gay as the summer insect and how soon may any of us be as she is." Diary of Senator William Maclay of Pennsylvania, 1789–1791. It seems to have taken from eleven o'clock a. m., to five p. m., to reach Elizabethtown Point with a high wind direct ahead from New York.

In 1790, Levi Baxter of Hartford County, Conn., settled in Sidney, N. Y. The Baxter mill site was near the mouth of Carr's Creek, Delaware County, N. Y.

In 1654, Mr. Baxter was a planter in Connecticut. "The prefix Master (Mr.) belonged to all gentlemen. Master corresponds very nearly in meaning to the English word gentleman. In Connecticut it embraced clergymen and planters of good family and estate who were members of the General Court, those bred at a university; those of sufficient education to manage the general affairs of the colony, either in a civil or ecclesiastical way, and those who had been sufficiently well born. Comparatively few of the representatives from the several towns, even though they might be returned year after year, were honored with the title. It may be observed by referring to our colonial records that there were scores of men of good family and in honorable stations who still did not possess all the requisite qualifications. It was seldom that young men of whatever rank were called masters." Hollister's Connecticut.

In May, 1761, the town of Hartland, Hartford County, Conn., was organized. July 14 the first town meeting was held in the house of Simeon Baxter.

March 31, 1749, Elizabeth Baxter was appointed executrix of the estate of James Danford, Burlington County, New Jersey.

John Baxter of Morris County, was in the New Jersey State Troops, and William Baxter in Capt. Bond's Company, Fourth Battalion, Second Establishment, New Jersey Continentals.

Elizabeth Baxter m. Thomas Rogers. They emigrated from Londonderry to Boston in 1721, and moved to Philadelphia in 1728. She d. in the latter city June 4, 1770, and was buried in the First Presbyterian Church burial ground. Their dau. Margaret m. Capt. John Macpherson (d. Phila., Sept., 1792), brother of Macpherson, Montgomery's aid killed at Quebec.

S., in 1783, and who m. Mrs. Mary Gookh in New York, Oct. 7, 1780.

Thomas Baxter of the Fifth Pennsylvania, was in the Invalid Regiment, Philadelphia, April, 1779. This was organized in conformity to a resolution of Congress, passed June 23, 1777, and at first composed of invalids and men within twenty miles of Philadelphia incapable of field service, but strong enough for garrison and guard duty. Col. Lewis Nicola was in command.

Thomas Baxter, weaver, West Town, Chester County, Pa., made a will probated Feb. 25, 1791, devising clothes to cousin John Mullin, and his watch and other property to his wife Rachel, who was made executrix.

In 1806, Joseph Baxter m. Mary McMillan, b. April 20, 1761. He was her second husband. They moved from York County, Pa., to Miami, Ohio, in 1806.

March 26, 1756, the Maryland General Assembly passed an act to raise supplies for His Majesty's Service "towards securing and protecting the frontiers, engaging the friendship of the southern indians and removing His Majesty's ambitious and perfidious enemies from their impertinent encroachment on his domain." Among duties laid was one on bachelors twenty-five years old and upwards worth £100 and less than £300, who were to pay five shillings. If worth more than £300 they had to pay twenty shillings. In 1669, Edward Baxter was master of the ship "Albemarle" which the proprietors sent from England to South Carolina with colonists.

John Baxter, one of Marion's band, is called captain, major, lieutenant colonel, and colonel. When Marion retreated into North Carolina Baxter accompanied him. He was of gigantic size, and being dressed in full uniform at the battle of Shubrick's farm, S. C. (Quimby Bridge), 1780, was so conspicuous that he was wounded five times. THE FOUNDERS OF THE BECK AND MABIE FAMILIES IN AMERICA.

CONTRIBUTED BY CATHARINE T. R. MATHEWS.

It is only purposed in this article to give the first two or three generations of these families in order to prove the connection between them. It is hoped that fuller genealogies of both families will be compiled at some future day.

BECK.

The Beck family was in England at an early date; in the Roll of Battle Abbey it is spelled Beke. Toustan du Bec was a distinguished warrior, and follower of William of Normandy. Among the companions in arms of William the Conqueror was Gaultier du Bec, who obtained a grant of the Manor of Eresby in Lincolnshire. This family is extinct, but there are several families of Beck in England, and all are supposed to be of foreign origin.

THE FOUNDERS OF THE BECK AND MARIE FAMILIES IN AMERICA.

CONTRIBUTED BY CADWALLADER T. R. MATHEWS.

It is only purposed in this article to give the first two or three generations of these families in order to prove the connection between them. It is hoped that fuller genealogies of both families will be compiled at some future day.

Beck.

The Beck family was in England at an early date; in the Roll of Battle Abbey it is spelled Beke. Tonstan du Bec was a distinguished warrior, and followed William of Normandy. Among the companions in arms of William the Conqueror was Gualtier du Bec, who obtained a grant of the Manor of Bracsby in Lincolnshire. This family is extinct, but there are several families of Beck in England, and all are supposed to be of foreign origin.

1. Henry Beck was the first of his name in America. He was from Dover, England, he came in July, 1635 (aged 17 years), on the Blessing and settled on Sagamore Creek near Portsmouth, N. H., on property that remained in the family until a recent date.

In Hotten's Immigrants to America, page 108, is as follows: "Thus under written names are to be transported to New England imbarqued in the Blessing, John Lester Mr. the parties have brought Cert. from ministrs, and justices of their conformitie in Religion and that they are no Subsidy Men." Of these Henry Beck was one. He died at his home in 1727–8 at the great age of 110 years.

In the Portsmouth Church Records of 1693, we find that "Henry Beck occupied a seat under the pulpit." He married Anne Frost of Piscataqua, and had issue:

Joshua.[2]
Thomas, b. 1657; d. 7 Nov., 1734. His widow Anne d. 25 Feb., 1753, aged 94 years, at Newbury, Mass., where their descendants are to be found.
2 Caleb, m. Anna Mabie.
Henry.
Mary, m. Deacon White.

2. Caleb[2] Beck was a master mariner. He was living in Portsmouth, 1674–9. The town records have the following items: "May 8, 1674 Laid out to Caleb Beck 13 acres beginning at his father Henry Beck's land. A Rebate to Caleb Beck 15 March, 1679." He married Anna Mabie. It is supposed that she came as a passenger on his vessel. Her identity with the Mabie family of the State of New York is not established,—although there are reasons for believing that she was of that family.

The portraits of Caleb[2] and Anna Beck are in the possession of the Van Cortlandt family at Croton-on-Hudson. They were the great-great grandparents of the late Theodric Romeyn Beck, M.D., LL.D., of Albany, the distinguished author of Beck's Medical Jurisprudence, who was the father of the late Mrs. Pierre Van Cortlandt. The portrait of Caleb[2] has a ship in full sail in one corner—a quadrant in the other; Anna Beck is dressed in the flowing robe of the period. There is a tradition that she objected to her husband's calling, and dreaded each voyage; at last he promised to make but one more—from that one he never returned. There is no record of more than two children having been born to them.

3 Caleb.[3]
Thomas.

The records of Portsmouth are meagre, many having been destroyed.

It s supposed that Caleb[2] and Anna both died prior to 1698, for at that date their son Caleb left Portsmouth, and under the Mayoralty of Johannis de Peyster in 1698, he was made a freeman in New York.

In 1701 he sold to his brother Thomas at Portsmouth "The land lying between the middle of my grandfather Beck's sixty acres, which was granted to my father Caleb Beck by the town of Portsmouth and upon record," &c. This deed is in the possession of the daughters of Capt. Andrew Beck of Portsmouth, who recently died there the last of his name in that vicinity.

3. Caleb[3] Beck was also a master mariner, but he gave up the sea when he left Portsmouth. He married in New York 2 Nov.,

2. Caleb[2] Beck was a master mariner. He was living in Portsmouth, 1672-9. The town records have the following items: "May 8, 1672 Laid out to Caleb Beck 13 acres beginning at his father Henry Beck's land. A. Rebate to Caleb Beck 15 March, 1679." He married Anna Mable. It is supposed that she came as a passenger on his vessel. Her identity with the Mable family of the State of New York is not established,—although there are reasons for believing that she was of that family.

The portraits of Caleb[2] and Anna Beck are in the possession of the Van Cortlandt family at Croton-on-Hudson. There is no record of more than two children having been born to them.

3 Caleb,
Thomas.

The records of Portsmouth are meagre, many having been destroyed.

It is supposed that Caleb[2] and Anna both died prior to 1695, for at that date their son Caleb left Portsmouth, and under the Mayoralty of Johannis de Peyster in 1695, he was made a freeman in New York.

This deed is in the possession of the daughters of Capt. Andrew Beck of Portsmouth, who recently died there the last of his name in that vicinity.

3. Caleb[3] Beck was also a master mariner, but he gave up the sea when he left Portsmouth. He married in New York, 2 Nov.,

1703, Anna (Mol) Fairly, incorrectly called "Hannah Harley" in Dutch Ch. Marriages. In her baptism, on page 134, Dutch Ch. Baptisms, by a clerical error, her father is called Jan Pietersen instead of Jan Jansen. She was the eldest daughter of Jan Jansen Mol, and Engeltie Pieterse Mabie. She married (1) in New York, 5 July, 1699, John Fairly, an Englishman; another evidence of the transposition of names is that in Supplement to Marriage Licenses, p. 31:

1699, July 5. Anne Mool
and John fforlissom

In Dutch Church Baptisms:

	OUDERS	KINDER	GETUYGEN
May 5 1700	Jan Farrlis Anna Mol	Jan	Jan Piero Engeltje Pieters h. v. van Jan Mol

In the Beck family bible at Croton-on-Hudson, the first entry made by Caleb[3] Beck was his stepson's baptism as follows:

"John Fairly bp. New York 5 May 1700"

which proves the foregoing records.

Caleb[3] and Anna Beck settled in Schenectady immediately after their marriage, where her uncle Jan Pietersen Mabie had already located himself. They had issue all born at Schenectady:

Anna,[4] bap. 7 Oct., 1704; m. Jacobus Van Vorst.
Caleb, bap. 21 June, 1712; d. y.
4 Caleb, bap. 24 May, 1714; m. Elizabeth Truax.
Engeltie, bap. 15 Dec., 1715; m. Isaac Abramse Truax.
Margaret, m. John W. Brown.

In Capt. Caleb Beck's will, proved 8 May, 1733, he calls himself "Caleb Beck of Schenectady Gentleman—wife Anna—daughter Engeltie—Son-in-law John Fairly named as heirs of all real and personal property." Pearson says that Caleb[3] Beck had another daughter who married John Fairly; this is an error. He called him "son-in-law" as it was then the custom to so call stepsons.

4. Caleb[4] Beck, only son of Caleb and Anna Beck, bap. 24 May, 1714; d. 9 Dec., 1787; m. 1 Nov., 1747, Elizabeth, dau. of Abraham Truax and Christina de la Grange. She was b. 19 May, 1723; d. 5 May, 1797. They had nine children. Of their descendants a partial genealogy is to be found in Pearson's First Settlers of Schenectady.

Mabie.

Pieter Casparzen Van Naerden, sometimes recorded as Pieter Casparsen, was in New Amsterdam 1647. He is supposed to have been the son of Caspar Mabille, who is recorded as "Sergeant Caspar," and as "Caspar the Sergeant," and who was a witness of the baptism of the child of Joris Homes (George Holmes) on 6 Nov., 1650. He also in 1652 brought a suit against Jan Peek (after whom Peekskill was named). It is noteworthy

1703, Anna (Mol) Fairly, incorrectly called "Hannah Harley" in Dutch Ch. Marriages. In her baptism, on page 134, Dutch Ch. Baptisms, by a clerical error, her father is called Jan Pieterse instead of Jan Jansen. She was the oldest daughter of Jan Jansen Mol, and Engelitie Pieterse Mabie. She married (1) in New York, 5 July, 1699, John Fairly, an Englishman; another evidence of the transposition of names is found in Supplement to Marriage Licenses, p. 31:

1699, July 5. Anne Mool
and John Horlisson

In Dutch Church Baptisms:

May 5	ouders	kinder	getuyken
1700	Jan Parrlis	Jan	Jan Piero
	Anna Mol		Engelitie Pieterse
			b. v. Jan Mol

In the Beck family bible at Croton-on-Hudson, the first entry made by Caleb Beck was his stepson's baptism as follows:

"John Fairly op. New York 5 May 1700"

which proves the foregoing records.

Caleb and Anna Beck settled in Schenectady immediately after their marriage, where her uncle Jan Pieterse Mabie had already located himself. They had issue all born at Schenectady:

Anna, bap. 7 Oct. 1704; m. Jacobus Van Voost.
Caleb, bap. 21 June, 1712; d. y.
4 Caleb, bap. 24 May, 1714; m. Elizabeth Truax.
Engelitie, bap. 15 Dec. 1715; m. Isaac Abramse Truax.
Margaret, m. John W. Brown.

In Capt. Caleb Beck's will, proved 8 May, 1744, he calls himself "Caleb Beck of Schenectady Gentleman—wife Anna—daughter Engelitie—Son-in-law John Fairly named as heirs of all real and personal property." Pearson says that Caleb Beck had another daughter who married John Fairly; this is an error. He called him "son-in-law" as it was then the custom to so call stepsons.

4. Caleb Beck, only son of Caleb and Anna Beck, bap. 24 May, 1714; d. 9 Dec. 1781; m. 1 Nov. 1747, Elizabeth, dau. of Abraham Truax and Christina de la Grange. She was b. 19 May, 1723; d. 5 May, 1797. They had nine children. Of their descendants a partial genealogy is to be found in Pearson's First Settlers of Schenectady.

Mabie.

Pieter Casparsen Van Naerden, sometimes recorded as Pieter Caspersen, was in New Amsterdam 1647. He is supposed to have been the son of Casper Mabilie, who is recorded as "Sergeant Casper," and as "Casper the Sergeant," and who was a witness of the baptism of the child of Joris Homes (George Holmes) on 6 Nov. 1650. He also in 1651 brought a suit against Jan Peek (after whom Peekskill was named). It is noteworthy that the suit was brought in English and he was ordered by the Court to translate it into Dutch, this proving that he was not a Dutchman. He has been supposed to be identical with the Huguenot Pierre Gaspar or Caspar, who in 1621 signed at Leyden the Walloon petition. This has not been proved.

The Mabies of Putnam County, direct descendants of Pieter Casparzen Van Naerden, have a tradition that "their ancestor served on a cruiser on the coast of America which took a Spanish Prize near New York." In 1633, the West India Co's Ship Soutberg, which brought Director Genl. Van Twiller, Govert Loockerman, and others to this country, captured a Spanish caraval the St. Martin, bringing it safely to New Amsterdam. It was probably the Soutberg on which Sergeant Caspar came here.

There seems no doubt that they were of French origin and that their name was Mabille, Pieter Casparzen Van Naerden being the name given him by the Dutch, and both Dutch and English converted the name Mabille into Mabie. His sons called themselves Mabie. His daughter Metje is entered on both Dutch and French Church Records as Meby and Maybie.

There were Mabies in Scotland at an early date. At Prestonpans 30 March, 1615, is recorded the marriage of Thomas Drummond and Janet Mabie. This does not prove however that the name was not originally Mabille. The whole Mabie family believe themselves of French ancestry.

Of the sons of Pieter Casparzen, Jan Pietersen Mabie was the progenitor of all of that name in Schenectady and vicinity. His house is still standing in good condition in the Mohawk Valley, and is the oldest house there. He bought land in Schenectady before 1690. He was a surveyor, and we find, page 425 Eng. Col. Mss. 1 Jan., 1715, that "Fees on John Peter Mabies' warrant of survey" were paid.

Caspar[2] Pieterse Mabie settled in Orange County and from him descend all the Mabies and Mabys of Orange and Rockland Counties. "The '76 House" at Tappan where André was a prisoner was owned by his grandson Caspar Mabie. Hamilton Wright Mabie, so well known in the literary world, is Caspar's direct descendant.

Pieter Casparzen married about 1651, Aechtje Jans, widow of Abraham Williamzen of Amsterdam. At her first marriage, 27 April, 1647, she is called Aechtje Jans Van Naerden, showing that she and Pieter Casparzen were from the same place in Holland—that they were friends is shown by his having been a witness, 10 April, 1650, at baptism of her son Abraham Williamzen, Jr.

The children of Pieter Casparzen and Aechtje Jans were:

Marritje,[2] bap. 12 Sept., 1652; m. 8 April, 1671, Jan Peters Bant.

Jan, bap. 4 Oct., 1654; d. at Schenectady, 8 April, 1725; m. about 1684, Anna Borsboom. Issue, bap. at Albany and Schenectady:

Peter,[3] bap. 20 Jan., 1686.

Catharine, bap. 1691.

that the suit was brought in English and he was ordered by the Court to translate it into Dutch, this proving that he was not a Dutchman. He has been supposed to be identical with the Huguenot Pierre Gaspar or Caspar, who in 1671 signed at Leyden the Walloon petition. This has not been proved.

The Mabies of Putnam County, direct descendants of Pieter Caspersen Van Naerden, have a tradition that "their ancestor served on a cruiser on the coast of America which took a Spanish Prize near New York." In 1693, the West India Co's Ship Sparberg, which brought Director Genl. Van Twiller, Govert Loockermans, and others to this country, captured a Spanish caravel the St. Martin, bringing it safely to New Amsterdam. It was probably the Sparberg on which Spergeant Caspar came here.

There seems no doubt that they were of French origin and that their name was Mabille, Pieter Caspersen Van Naerden being the name given him by the Dutch, and both Dutch and English converted the name Mabille into Mabie. His sons called themselves Mabie. His daughter Metje is entered on both Dutch and French Church Records as Meby and Mybie.

There were Mabies in Scotland at an early date. At Prestonpans 30 March, 1615, is recorded the marriage of Thomas Drummond and Janet Mabie. This does not prove however that the name was not originally Mabille. The whole Mabie family believe themselves of French ancestry.

His house is still standing in good condition in the Mohawk Valley, and is the oldest house there. He bought land in Schenectady before 1690. He was a surveyor, and we find, page 415 Liv. Co. Mar. 1 Jan., 1715, that "Fees on John Peter Mabies' warrant of survey" were paid.

Caspar Pieterse Mabie settled in Orange County and from him descend all the Mabies and Mabys of Orange and Rockland Counties. "The 70 House" at Tappan where André was a prisoner was owned by his grandson Caspar Mabie. Hamilton Wright Mabie, so well known in the literary world, is Caspar's direct descendant.

Pieter Caspersen married about 1651, Aechtje Jans, widow of Abraham Williamsen of Amsterdam. At her first marriage, 17 April, 1647, she is called Aechtje Jans Van Naerden, showing that she and Pieter Caspersen were from the same place in Holland—that they were friends is shown by his having been a witness, 10 April, 1650, at baptism of her son Abraham Williamsen, Jr.

The children of Pieter Caspersen and Aechtje Jans were:

There are still Mabilles in France, well known families, several coats of arms are to be found, and undoubtedly the Mabies are of one of these Mabille families.

A strong proof that Anna Mabie who m. Caleb' Beck was of same family as that of Peter Caspareen is that on his son's arrival in New York, he sought out the Mabie family, and later m. the granddaughter of Peter Caspareen. A stranger in New

THE ANCESTRY OF LIEUT. HEMAN ROWLEE, SR., OF ORANGE COUNTY.—A GENEALOGICAL PROBLEM.

CONTRIBUTED BY PROF. W. W. ROWLEE, ITHACA. N. Y.
Dept. of Botany, Cornell University.

Mr. Brainard's article in the N. Y. GEN. AND BIOG. RECORD, Vol. XXXVII, makes it possible to connect many descendants of the present day with the pilgrim, Henry Rowley. The period of migration, i. e., the last half of the eighteenth century, scattered families so that especially in the pioneer districts, the evidence of genetic connection is scant or lost altogether. Among the several pioneer Rowley families in New York State, the one to which the writer belongs has been most difficult of connection. This is the more remarkable because of the early date to which the family records, extant, run back, i. e., 1746.

The Christian name "Heman" is rare in colonial records. Gen. Heman Swift of Cornwall, Conn.; Heman Allen of Cornwall, Conn.; Heman Ely of W. Springfield, Mass.; and Heman Smith of Milford, Conn., a colonial soldier; were all nearly contemporaneous with Heman Rowlee. Although the name has been used frequently among his descendants, no Rowlee before him, had so far as we know, borne it.

The family name is spelled differently from the commonly accepted English form. The spelling "Rowlee" is used the first by Moses in signing his will, and his son Matthew signed in the same form, as a witness. During the eighteenth century, the spelling "Rowlee" was used by a considerable number of families, some of whom afterward returned to the original "ley." Heman's children and grandchildren were always insistent that "Rowlee" was right. One of his grandsons, Charles S. Rowley, wrote as follows in a letter to his aunt, dated Nov. 21, 1854: "You will observe that I spell our surname a little different from the old way. After I grew up, I saw some one write it in this way and it took my fancy and I have written it so since some ten or fifteen years."

It seems therefore, probable that the spelling "Rowlee" has been used by some of his descendants continuously since the time of Moses, son of Henry the Colonist. It also appears that officials: ministers, justices and clerks, most often used the English spelling "Rowley," although the persons themselves persisted in writing the name "Rowlee."

Family records, Surrogates' and County Clerks' records of Orange Co., all concur in showing that:

Heman Rowlee was b. Nov. 14, 1746; he d. Dec. 26, 1818, and with his wife is buried in the Amity burying ground; m. Jan. 9,

It also appears that officials; ministers, justices and clerks, most often used the English spelling "Rowley," although the persons themselves persisted in writing the name "Rowlee."

Family records, Surrogates' and County Clerks' records of Orange Co., all conspire in showing that:

Heman Rowlee purchased 105¾ acres of land in Warwick, Orange Co., and gave a mortgage upon it Nov. 16, 1769, to William Wickham of same precinct for £133. This mortgage was paid Dec. 13, 1775. Heman Rowlee (a mason) and wife sold to John Post of Warwick (a farmer), 6½ acres in the town of Warwick for £45, 10 s., on May 29, 1800. Heman Rowlee took a mortgage from Wm. x. Elizabeth, b. Aug. 29, 1791; d. Oct. 19, 1879; m. May 17, 1810, Daniel Coe.

There were other Rowlees or Rowleys contemporaneous with Heman in Orange Co.:

Shubell Rowlee. He and his wife, Joanna, mortgaged to David Johnson of New York City, for £72 106½ acres of land in the precinct of Goshen, May 22, 1775. The land was purchased of the said David Johnson on May 22, 1775. This mortgage was paid and discharged in 1786. (Orange County Clerk's Office.)

Shubell Rowlee. His will dated May 21, 1795, and probated Sept. 21, 1799, alludes to himself as "weak in body," gives to his wife Joanna, and his son Jonathan, as heirs, his farm in the town of Warwick, Orange Co. He makes his son Jonathan and Frances Armstrong executors. (Surrogate's Office, Orange Co.)

Jonathan Rowlee. He is recorded in the family records of Heman Rowlee as follows: "Jonathan's son, Shubell Arnold, b. June 10, 1792." (Family records of Heman Rowlee.)

Amy Rowlee. (Possibly wife of Jonathan) Daughter of Caleb Smith of Warwick. Caleb Smith d. 1818. Lydia Rowlee (dau.

1776, Lydia Seely, b. Dec. 26, 1746. She had a sister, Charlotte, who m. Isaac Seaman. His will in the Surrogate's office of Orange Co. is dated June 13, 1817, probated Jan. 2, 1819. He was a Revolutionary soldier, Lieut. in the Florida & Warwick Co. of the 4th Reg't, Orange Co. Militia, serving under Col. Hathorn. Herman Rowlee purchased 105¾ acres of land in Warwick, Orange Co., and gave a mortgage upon it Nov. 16, 1769, to William Wickham of same precinct for £133. This mortgage was paid Dec. 13, 1775. Herman Rowlee (a mason) and wife sold to John Post of Warwick (a farmer), 8¾ acres in the town of Warwick for £45, 10 s., on May 10, 1800. Herman Rowlee took a mortgage from Wm. Adams of Warwick, upon 52¾ acres, 32 rds., for $145, Jan. 5, 1808. He and his wife deeded to Herman Rowlee, Jr., 25¾ acres in Warwick, June 15, 1814, for $[illegible]. Their children were:

i. Sarah, b. May 10, 1771; d. May 16, 1801; m. —— Curtiss.
ii. Lois, b. Nov. 16, 1773; d. April 1, 1847; never m.
iii. Charles, b. Jan. 14, 1774; d. Dec. 19, 1799; m. Feb. 1797, Chorsish Roads, b. Jan. 15, 1782. He was drowned.
iv. Matthew, b. Sept. 30, 1777; d. June 28, 1851; m. Jan. 15, 1801, Elizabeth Beers.
v. Elijah, b. Jan. 8, 1780; d. about 1860; m. Millicent, dau. of Jonathan Shepperd.
vi. Nathan, b. April 6, 1782; d. Feb. 15, 1839; m. (1) about 1803, Dorothy Carr, b. 1785; d. 1834; m. (2) —— Graham.
vii. Mary, b. April 15, 1785; d. Sept. 19, 1847; m. John Hanvelt.
viii. Herman, b. Aug. 27, 1787; d. May 30, 1866; m. Ruth Cooley; d. before her husband. No children.
ix. Lydia S., b. Feb. 5, 1788; d. Aug. 10, 1852. Never m.
x. Elizabeth, b. Aug. 20, 1791; d. Oct. 19, 1879; m. May 17, 1810, Daniel Coe.

There were other Rowlees or Rowleys contemporaneous with Herman in Orange Co.:

Sussex Rowlee. He and his wife, Joanna, mortgaged to David Johnson of New York City, for £72 106¾ acres of land in the precinct of Goshen, May 22, 1775. The land was purchased of the said David Johnson on May 22, 1775. This mortgage was paid and discharged in 1786. (Orange County Clerk's Office.)

Sussex Rowlee. His will dated May 21, 1795, and probated Sept. 21, 1799, alludes to himself as "weak in body," gives to his wife Joanna, and his son Jonathan, as heirs, his farm in the town of Warwick, Orange Co. He makes his son Jonathan and Frances Armstrong executors. (Surrogate's Office, Orange Co.)

Jonathan Rowlee. He is recorded in the family records of Herman Rowlee as follows: "Jonathan's son, Shubell Armold, b. June 10, 1792." (Family records of Herman Rowlee.)

Amy Rowlee. (Possibly wife of Jonathan) Daughter of Caleb Smith of Warwick. Caleb Smith d. 1813. Lydia Rowlee (dau.

of Heman) witness to Caleb Smith's will in 1818. (Private records of J. C. Coleman.)

Harris Rowley and wife ——, had a son Reuben Milford, bap. Aug. 6, 1825; son Lorenzo, bap. Aug. 6, 1825. (Church Records, Orange Co.)

William Rowley and his wife, Margaret Smith, had son William Smith, b. Jan. 24, 1776; bap. March 23, 1781. (Church Records, Orange Co.)

Constant Rowlee. He was witness to the will of Robert Finn, April 25, 1780. (Private records of J. C. Coleman.)

That Heman Rowlee and Shubell Rowlee were of close kinship appears evident from the fact that the names of both appear in the same family records, namely Heman's. They might have been brothers but from the dates, and the text of their wills, it seems more probable that Shubell was Heman's uncle.

Matthew and Shubell Rowlee signed a call in 1755–6, for Mr. Ebenezer Knibloe as pastor, from the Western Society of Philippi (Carmel).

The Register of Baptisms in the West. Soc. of Philips Patent has: Shubel Rowlee and his spouse had their daughter Patience baptised April 11, 1756. Matthew Rowlee and his spouse had their son Elijah baptised Jan. 2, 1757.

Marriage Records of Amenia by Rev. Ebenezer Knibloe (N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record, XXXIII, 47): Nathaniel Rowlee m. Kezia Davis, Sept. 11, 1765. Abel Rowlee m. Susannah Connet, April 15, 1773.

Military Records from Bureau of Pensions, Washington: Daniel Rowlee enlisted at Fredericksburg three successive years, 1776, 1777, and 1778. His residence is given at Fredericksburg, Dutchess Co. His date of birth is April 20, 1759. He served the last year in Capt. David Hecock's Co.

Elijah Rowley also enlisted from Pawling in Capt. Hecock's Co.

The following connection between the Orange Co. and Dutchess Co. families seems most likely: Shubell of the two places is identical. Heman of Orange Co. is son of Matthew of Dutchess Co. Nathaniel, Abel, Daniel and Elijah may also have been sons of Matthew.

Evidence of the connection of the Rowlees of Southern Dutchess Co. with their ancestors, is equally difficult. It seems most likely that Matthew and Shubel were sons of Shubel Rowley, Jr., and Hannah Brown, who as Brainard states (page 100): "In 1734 Shubel Rowley appears to have been living in North Castle, Westchester Co." The records of the town of North Castle reveal the following:

April 6, 1736, Shubel Rowley was elected Assessor, or as it is recorded (Sessor), and Highway Master.

April 5, 1737, Shubel Rowley was elected Fence Viewer and Appraiser (Prisor) of damages for the old Poundridge.

April 4, 1738, Shubel Rowley was elected Fence Viewer and Appraiser of damages for old Poundridge.

April 3, 1739, Shubel Rowley was elected Appraiser of damages and Fence Viewer for old Poundridge.

Shubel Rowley and Hannah Brown had a son, Matthew, b. in Colchester, Ct., Oct. 8, 1720. If they had a son Shubel, he must have been b. after 1723, and probably after they left Colchester. Shubel Rowley of Orange Co., alludes to himself in his will as "weak in body" in 1795. He would have been 70 years old if b. in 1725.

The writer has put forth every effort to bridge the two gaps but so far has failed to secure direct tangible evidence. It may possibly be that he is on the wrong track, but no other line seems to offer so much circumstantial evidence.

Any information regarding the ancestry of this family will be most gratefully received.

Annual Meeting of the Society, January 11th, 1907.

The Thirty-eighth Annual Meeting of the Society was held on Friday evening, January 11th, 1907. President Dwight in the chair.

The death was announced of John Aspinwall Hadden, a member of the Society, who died December 21st, 1906, aged 83.

The Executive Committee reported the election of Rev. John Cornell, Annual Member, Waldorf-Astoria, City, proposed by T. A. Wright.

The Annual Report of the Secretary, Mr. Drowne, was as follows: Our membership now consists of 9 Honorary, 126 Life and 273 Annual Members, making a total of 408, being a gain of 4 names, and in addition thereto there are 91 Corresponding Members. The additions for the year 1906 consisted of 1 Honorary, 5 Life, 29 Annual and 80 Corresponding Members. 12 deaths have been announced, and two members were transferred from the Annual to the Life Membership class. Seven regular meetings were held during the year, at which interesting papers were read, and the attendance proved larger than ever before. The Board of Trustees had decided that the proposed consolidation of our Society with the New York Historical Society would not be to our best interest. They had adopted a new constitution and By-Laws, which had been published in the Year Book for 1906. The Society is to be congratulated that its revenues for 1906 showed an increase over those of 1905, and that we are free from debt.

Capt. Totten, as Chairman of the Executive Committee, reported in detail as to the changes in our Membership Roll and the revenue derived from the membership account, also as to the present standing of the RECORD account and the revenue derived therefrom.

The Revenues from the Dutch Church Marriages and Baptisms, back numbers of the RECORD, Pedigree Charts, Advertisements in the RECORD, Library Duplicates, and the agency of De Vroedschap Van Amsterdam were also stated in full.

The Hall rents amounted to $1,166.50, being a gain of $226.50 for the year, and the room rents $1,606.50, showing a gain of $107.50.

The members are earnestly requested to support the RECORD by subscribing to it, and an appeal was also made for donations to the Library.

In response to the aid solicited for Mrs. Holton some $455.00 had been received, to date, which would be devoted to her welfare.

As Librarian, Capt. Totten reported as follows: Total accessions to the Library for 1906, 1,413, of which 1,228 had been donated, that the books and pamphlets in Library now amounted to 14,594, $86.80 had been expended for binding, and $308.13 for 102 new books. The visitors for the year were 1,636.

The report of the Treasurer, Mr. Morrison, was next in order. He called attention to the fact that since 1904 the Society had set aside for Permanent Investment $1,998.74 in addition to paying all debts and expenses. The net assests of the Society are $73,429.37, being a gain for the year 1906 of $2,767.35. The cash balance on hand was $659.74, and in the investment fund we had 3 U. S. Steel 5% Bonds which cost $1,466.25. A full detail of receipts and expenses of the Society, with trial balance was presented—same having been duly audited.

Capt. Totten then spoke as follows:—"It has been my pleasure during the past three years to be associated with Mr. George Austin Morrison, Jr., in his capacity as Treasurer, and also as a member of the Executive Committee, and I feel sure that I voice the unanimous spirit of the Officers and Members of the Society in expressing great regret that necessity compels him to cease to serve as Treasurer of the Society, and I move a vote of thanks to Mr. Morrison for the careful, conscientious and correct manner in which he has safeguarded the interests of our Society during his term of office." This was seconded by Mr. Wright and unanimously carried.

The Necrologist, Rev. M. E. Dwight, read memorials of the following members who had died during the year: Isaac Townsend Smith, Edwin Babcock Holden, Walter Seth Logan, Russell Sage, Eugene Schieffelin, Abraham Van Wyck Van Vechten, James Albert Garland, Benjamin Doughty Hicks, Frederick Diodati Thompson, Mrs. Anna Jackson Randall, John Franklin Plummer and John Aspinwall Hadden.

The Secretary read the report of the Registrar of Pedigrees, Mr. Winchester Fitch. He stated that 110 Pedigree Charts had been sold during 1906 bringing in $92.00, being double the previous year, and that 60 charts are now on file.

President Dwight, as Chairman of the Publication Committee, reported that it was the mission of the RECORD to publish as much as possible of the

The Executive Committee reported the election of Rev. John Cornell, Annual Member, Waldorf-Astoria, City, proposed by T. A. Wright.

The Hall rents amounted to $1,166.50, being a gain of $246.50 for the year, and the room rents $1,003.50, showing a gain of $107.50.

The members are earnestly requested to support the RECORD by subscribing to it, and an appeal was also made for donations to the Library.

In response to the aid solicited for Mrs. Holton some $455.00 had been received, to date, which would be devoted to her welfare.

As Librarian, Capt. Totten reported as follows: Total accessions to the Library for 1906, 1,413, of which 1,232 had been donated, that the books and pamphlets in Library now amounted to 14,500, $86.60 had been expended for binding, and $308.13 for 102 new books. The visitors for the year were 1,650.

The report of the Treasurer, Mr. Morrison, was next in order. He called attention to the fact that since 1904 the Society had set aside for Permanent Investment $1,008.74 in addition to paying all debts and expenses. The net assets of the Society are $71,129.17, being a gain for the year 1906 of $2,707.45. The cash balance on hand was $550.74, and in the investment fund we had 3 U. S. Steel 5s Bonds which cost $1,000.25. A full detail of receipts and expenses of the Society, with trial balance was presented—same having been duly audited.

Capt. This was seconded by Mr. Wright and unanimously carried.

The Necrologist, Rev. M. E. Dwight, read memorials of the following members who had died during the year: Isaac Townsend Smith, Edwin Babcock Holden, Walter Seth Logan, Russell Sage, Eugene Schieffelin, Abraham Van Wyck, Van Vechten, James Albert Garrand, Benjamin Dougherty Hicks, Frederick Diodati Thompson, Mrs. Anna Jackson Randall, John Franklin Plummer and John Aspinwall Hadden.

The Secretary read the report of the Registrar of Pedigrees, Mr. Winchester Fitch. He stated that 110 Pedigree Charts had been sold during 1906 bringing in $92.00, being double the previous year, and that 60 charts are now on file.

President Dwight, as Chairman of the Publication Committee, reported that it was the mission of the RECORD to publish as much as possible of the valuable material contained in the archives of the Society. That the great number of names that appeared in the material selected for 1906 added twelve (12) extra pages to the index which entailed much additional expense and that the publication had contained 324 pages of reading matter and 49 pages of index during the past year.

He announced that a complete subject index of the whole thirty-seven volumes of the RECORD had been prepared and would shortly be published.

Dr. William Austin Macy, Historian and Chairman of the Research Committee, stated that Corresponding Members had now been secured representing nearly every County in the State, and during 1907 he expected considerable activity would be shown in gathering church records.

Gen. James Grant Wilson, Chairman of the Committee on Heraldry, reported "progress."

On motion the foregoing reports were duly received and ordered on file.

The report of the Nominating Committee was read, and the following nominations presented for Trustees for the term of 1907–1910:

HENRY RUSSELL DROWNE.
GEORGE AUSTIN MORRISON, JR.
ELLSWORTH ELIOT, M.D.
WILLIAM BRADHURST OSGOOD FIELD.
HOPPER STRIKER MOTT.

No further nominations being made, the Secretary was on motion authorized to cast one ballot, and the election of these persons was duly announced.

The lecturer of the evening, Josiah Collins Pumpelly, A.M., LL.B., was then introduced, who addressed the Society on "Washington at Morristown, N. J., Winter of 1779–80." He described at length Washington's headquarters at Morristown, now over one hundred and thirty-three years old, having been erected by Col. Ford in 1774. This fine example of Colonial architecture had been well cared for and carefully preserved as a Memorial of Washington by the Washington Association of New Jersey. Attention was called to the original furniture still in the building, as well as to its large and valuable collection which included the original Commission of General Washington as Commander-in-Chief, dated June 19, 1775, and signed by John Hancock; as well as the costume and sword worn by Washington at his first inauguration in 1789.

Mention was made of all those connected with the Revolution who were present at Washington's Headquarters during the War. The character of Washington, his life at Morristown, Mrs. Washington, and others were described.

At the close of the address President Dwight made a few appropriate remarks as to the tribute to Washington's headquarters, and on a motion of Hon. Asa Bird Gardiner a resolution of thanks was unanimously passed, and the Society then adjourned.

He announced that a complete subject index of the whole thirty-seven volumes of the RECORD had been prepared and would shortly be published.

Dr. William Austin Macy, Historian and Chairman of the Research Committee, stated that Corresponding Members had now been secured representing nearly every County in the State, and during 1907 be expected considerable activity would be shown in gathering church records.

Gen. James Grant Wilson, Chairman of the Committee on Heraldry, reported "progress."

On motion the foregoing reports were duly received and ordered on file.

The report of the Nominating Committee was read, and the following nominations presented for Trustees for the term of 1907-1910:

HENRY RUSSELL DOWNE,
GEORGE AUSTIN MORRISON, Jr.
ELLSWORTH ELIOT, M.D.
WILLIAM BRADHURST OSGOOD FIELD,
HOPPER STRIKER MOTT.

No further nominations being made, the Secretary was on motion authorized to cast one ballot, and the election of these persons was duly announced.

The lecturer of the evening, Josiah Collins Pumpelly, A.M., LL.B., was then introduced, who addressed the Society on "Washington at Morristown, N. J., Winter of 1779-80." He described at length Washington's headquarters at Morristown, now over one hundred and thirty-three years old, having been erected by Col. Ford in 1772. This fine example of Colonial architecture had been well cared for and carefully preserved as a Memorial of Washington by the Washington Association of New Jersey. Attention was called to the original furniture still in the building, as well as to its large and valuable collection which included the original Commission of General Washington as Commander-in-Chief, dated June 19, 1775, and signed by John Hancock; as well as the costume and sword worn by Washington at his first inauguration in 1789.

Mention was made of all those connected with the Revolution who were present at Washington's Headquarters during the War. The character of Washington, his life at Morristown, Mrs. Washington, and others were described.

At the close of the address President Dwight made a few appropriate remarks as to the tribute to Washington's headquarters, and on a motion of Hon. Asa Bird Gardiner a resolution of thanks was unanimously passed, and the Society then adjourned.

OBITUARY.

KING, ROBERT MORROW, died at his late home, 62 Madison Avenue, New York City, on Tuesday evening, January 1, 1907. He was born at Albany, New York, July 26, 1819, and was the son of Vincent Tuttle King and Phoebe Wiggins Youngs, of Orient, Long Island. Mr. King was a descendant through both paternal and maternal lines of the old colonial King family of Massachusetts, the head of which was William Kinge, an English Puritan, who sailed from Weymouth, Dorsetshire, in March, 1635, and settled upon his grant at "Royall Side," now Beverly, near Salem (see King Pedigree).

Mr. King's entire life, with the exception of the last few years, was spent at Albany, where from early youth he was prominently identified with the business interests of the city, taking an active part in all its charitable and public matters, and being a generous contributor to all movements for its advancement and improvement. He was public spirited, yet not desirous of publicity; a man of strong, natural ability with clear views on all subjects; true to the principles of the party with which he acted for over sixty years, yet universally declining when offered political preferment. Outliving almost his entire generation, the last years of his advanced age were spent in comparative privacy, but with a mind unclouded and ever alert, he followed the questions of the day, never losing his interest in contemporary matters. A courteous gentleman moving thus quietly in the busy walks of life, cherished by his friends and beloved by his family, Mr. King leaves the memory of a pure life

A courteous gentleman moving thus quietly in the busy walks of life, cherished by his friends and beloved by his family, Mr. King leaves the memory of a pure life and the priceless legacy of an untarnished name. He was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church of Albany.

Mr. King was twice married. His first wife was Harriet Morgan Steele, daughter of Lemuel Steele, Jr., of Albany (a descendant of Mr. John Steel, the first Colonial Secretary of Connecticut, 1636, through his grandson Samuel Steel of Hartford, who married Mary Bradford, granddaughter of Governor Bradford of the Mayflowre—Steele Gen.), by his wife Tabitha Barnard of Hartford, Conn., granddaughter of Capt. John Barnard of the Revolutionary Army, and a member of the Society of Cincinnati. Mr. King had four children by this marriage, three of whom survive him: Frank Barnard, Florence Steele and Harriet Gertrude. His second wife was Susan Benedict Barnum, only surviving child of Egbert Westcott Barnum of Albany (grandson of Lieut. Eli Barnum of the Revolution, and a descendant of Thomas Barnum of Fairfield, Conn., 1685), by his wife Caroline Matilda Benedict, daughter of Lewis Benedict, Sr., of Albany (a descendant of Lieut. Thomas Benedict, born 1617, and Mary Bridgum, the colonists—see Benedict Gen.), and Susan Stafford, eldest child of Spencer Stafford of Albany, and Dorothea Hallenbake (a descendant of Caspar Jacobse Halenbeek, an early settler at Albany; will dated 1685), and granddaughter of Joab Stafford, Esquire, of Stafford Hill, Cheshire, Mass., a Colonel in the Revolution—see Stafford Gen. Mr. King had four sons by this marriage, three of whom are living: Robert Vincent, Egbert Barnum and Gerard Stafford.

HALLEY FAMILY.—Of direct bearing on the history of the Halley and McPike families, as printed in the RECORD, Vols. XXIX, pp. 13–18; XXXIV, pp. 52–56, 106–108; XXXVII, p. 237, is the recent discovery of the will of Sybilla Halley, proved Nov. 13, 1772, P. C. C., Register Taverner, folio 406, which mentions her two granddaughters, Sybilla Parry and Sarah Parry, who, therefore, were great-granddaughters of Dr. Edmond Halley (1656–1742).

"THE CONQUEST OF QUEBEC."

MR. EDITOR:—I have just completed a sketch of Dr. Thomas Young, one of the Revolutionary patriots, who was active in public affairs in Boston with Otis, the Adamses, Quincy, Warren, and the rest, during the eventful years 1768–1774. This sketch is soon to appear in the Transactions of The Colonial Society of Massachusetts. In the preparation of this sketch I have found several references to an epic poem which Dr. Young wrote entitled "The Conquest of Quebec." One or two lines from this poem were quoted by Egbert Benson in an address which he delivered before the New York Historical Society in 1816; and I have found other references to it. My efforts, however, to find the full text of the poem have been unsuccessful. Mr. Wilberforce Eames of the Lenox Library, and Mr. Herbert Putnam of the Library of Congress, are desirous, as I am, of securing the text of this poem, which may have appeared only in the newspapers of about 1760 or '61. At that time Dr. Young was living in Amenia in Dutchess County, and naturally would have used either the Albany or New York City newspapers, unless a newspaper was published in some city or town nearer to Amenia than the two places I have named.

I venture to ask you to insert in THE NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD a query asking for the text of Dr. Young's poem, or for a reference to a newspaper or other place where it would be found.

Very truly yours,
HENRY H. EDES, 28 State Street Boston, Mass.

This genealogy treats of William and Thomas Rix (and their descendants), sons of Robert Rix of Canninghall, England, the only ones coming to this country spelling their name "Rix." The compiler makes apology in his preface for the incompleteness of the record, but the work itself shows painstaking care and method in arrangement. The book is well printed and bound, has a complete index of names. It is illustrated with a beautiful print in colors of the family coat-of-arms and many half-tone portraits. There is more than the usual amount of biography in this book which will interest members of the family.

Here is another genealogy compiled because the compiler loved the work. There is an appendix containing short records of four allied families, and a very good index.

Compiled by Franklin C. Prindle, U. S. N. New York. The Grafton Press. 8vo, cloth, pp. xvii+335.

After an interesting preface on the history of the Pringle family in Scotland, the book contains the genealogical record of the descendants of William Pringle, or Prindle, the emigrant ancestor and progenitor of the family in America, who settled in New Haven, Conn., where he took the oath of fidelity to the New Haven Jurisdiction, April 4, 1654, followed by an account of unlocated branches of the family and an appendix of miscellaneous records and biographical notes, in which may be found a list of those soldiers whose names appear upon the official records of the Pension Office, War and Treasury De-

THE OGDEN FAMILY IN AMERICA, ELIZABETHTOWN BRANCH. Compiled by the late William Ogden Wheeler and edited by Lawrence Van Alstyne and Rev. Charles Burr Ogden. Philadelphia. J. P. Lippincott Company. 1907. 2 vols. Quarto, cloth.

The result of many years of patient effort made by the late William Ogden Wheeler in tracing his mother's descent from "Good Old John Ogden" of Elizabethtown, N. J., will be seen in these volumes. After the death of Mr. Wheeler, the immense amount of genealogical information collected by him was entrusted by his sisters to Mr. Lawrence Van Alstyne of Sharon, Conn., and to the Rev. Charles Burr Ogden, Ph.D., of Woodstown, N. J., for preparation for the press. Although Mr. Wheeler had spent many years in endeavoring to connect the immigrant John Ogden with his English ancestry, it was not until after several years of further research that this was accomplished, and the family traced back five generatiens in England, as is shown in the present volume. Special care has been taken to make this work pleasing to the eye, and the coat-of-arms and title-page, executed in colors, and the head-pieces for the introductory chapters, and succeeding chapters, with many portraits and views, will be found to add greatly to its attractiveness. Volume I sets forth the history and genealogy of the family, and Volume II consists of 38 charts, which exhibit the English ancestry and the connection with other Ogden families. The genealogy is sold at $7.50 and the charts at $2.50, and the volumes may be bought separately. Unbound charts may also be had at fifty cents each, of Mr. Lawrence Van Alstyne, Sharon, Conn.

THE HOMES OF OUR ANCESTORS, STONINGTON, CONN. Grace Denison Wheeler. Salem, Mass. Newcomb & Gauss. 8vo, cloth, pp. 286.

This very pleasing volume was intended as a companion book to Judge Wheeler's "History of Stonington," as that valued work is without illustrations. Some hundred and sixty illustrations of old or famous Stonington houses illuminate the text, which is full of genealogical and historical material. The book is tastefully bound and well printed, and should be owned by anyone who possesses a copy of the History of Stonington.

ANNALS OF OXFORD, NEW YORK, WITH ILLUSTRATIONS AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF SOME OF ITS PROMINENT MEN AND EARLY PIONEERS. Compiled, edited and published by Henry J. Galpin, Oxford, N. Y. Times Book and Job Printing House. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 568.

A large amount of interesting and varied material is gathered here, not in the orderly sequence of an historical narrative, but as a collection of notes and reminiscences of the town and townsfolk, interspersed with considerable genealogy. Oxford is situated in that part of Chenango County included in the "Chenango Twenty Towns," which were ceded to the State by the Oneida Indians in a treaty by Governor George Clinton in 1788. The town was formed in 1793. It will thus be seen that a volume of New York town history beginning at this date will account for many New Englanders who disappear from the records of their native towns. Among famous New England families whose Oxford genealogy is contained herein, are, Bulkeley, Dickinson, Baldwin, Cary, partments, and of the States of Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and New York, together with a brief transcript of records of service rendered by them in the achievement of American independence. The book is well printed and bound and the names are indexed.

THE JOURNAL OF A VOYAGE FROM CHARLESTOWN, S. C., TO LONDON, UNDERTAKEN DURING THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, BY A DAUGHTER OF AN EMINENT AMERICAN LOYALIST (LOUISA SUSANNAH WELLS), IN THE YEAR 1778, AND WRITTEN FROM MEMORY ONLY IN 1779. New York: Printed for the New York Historical Society. 1906. Large 8vo, cloth, pp. 121.

This volume completes the second publication of the John Divine Jones Fund Series, and is reproduced from a vellum copy of the original by Mr. W. C. Aikman, great grandson of the authoress. The index is by the Librarian of the Society.

THE OGDEN FAMILY IN AMERICA. ELIZABETHTOWN BRANCH. Compiled by the late William Ogden Wheeler and edited by Lawrence Van Alstyne and Rev. Charles Burr Ogden. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott Company. 1907. 2 vols. Quarto, cloth.

The result of many years of patient effort made by the late William Ogden Wheeler in tracing his mother's descent from "Good Old John Ogden" of Elizabethtown, N. J., will be seen in these volumes. After the death of Mr. Wheeler, the immense amount of genealogical information collected by him was entrusted by his sisters to Mr. Lawrence Van Alstyne of Sharon, Conn., and to the Rev. Charles Burr Ogden, Ph.D., of Woodstown, N. J., for preparation for the press. Although Mr. Wheeler had spent many years in endeavoring to connect the immigrant John Ogden with his English ancestry, it was not until after several years of further research that this was accomplished, and the family traced back five generations in England, as is shown in the present volume. Special care has been taken to make this work pleasing to the eye, and the coat-of-arms and title-page, executed in colors, and the head-pieces for the introductory chapters, and succeeding chapters, with many portraits and views, will be found to add greatly to its attractiveness. Volume I sets forth the history and genealogy of the family, and Volume II consists of 35 charts, which exhibit the English ancestry and the connection with other Ogden families. The genealogy is sold at $7.50 and the charts at $2.50, and the volumes may be bought separately. Unbound charts may also be had at fifty cents each, of Mr. Lawrence Van Alstyne, Sharon, Conn.

PAPERS AND ADDRESSES. William Gilbert Davies, S. B., LL. D. New York. Robert Grier Cooke. 1907. 12D, cloth, pp. 353.

The author has here presented a collection of his scattered publications, which cover a wide range of subject and treatment. Some of them deal with early history and customs of New Netherland, and some were read before the St. Nicholas Club. Those essays most pertinent to the history of this colony and State are, The Settlement of New Amsterdam, Historical Sketch of Christ Church, New York City, Ticonderoga and Crown Point, and New York in 1801. The type and general make-up of the book are excellent, and the essays will prove to be most pleasant and instructive reading.

HISTORICAL AND GENEALOGICAL MISCELLANY. Data Relating to the Settlement and Settlers of New York and New Jersey. John E. Stillwell, M. D. Vol. II. New York. 1906. Quarto, cloth, pp. 503.

This eagerly-awaited work justifies one's ardent expectations. This volume is rich in Monmouth County material, as the following excerpts from the table of contents will show. Records of the Baptist Church, Middletown, N. J., Inscriptions, Burying Grounds of Monmouth County, Bible Records, Patents for Lands in Quit Rents, Abstracts from Men's Monthly Meetings, Shrewsbury, besides Church, Court and Tombstone Records of Burlington, N. J. The work will prove a mine of information for students of New Jersey records, and its compilation and arrangement reflect the greatest credit upon Dr. Stillwell.

THE JOURNAL OF AMERICAN HISTORY. Produced by the Associated Publishers of American Records, New Haven, Conn. Quarterly, $2.00 per annum.

This is the first number of a quarterly magazine de luxe, and is a very beautiful production. The leading article is on the American Flag, telling the story of its evolution, handsomely illustrated in color. From its long table of contents we glean the following: The First American Soldiers, Journal of Peter Pond, Letters of a Sergeant in the War of 1812, Memoirs of a Southern Congressman, and The "Miracle" of the First Steamboat. The illustrations are numerous and well executed, the type and paper are good, and the cover shows a production in color of the arms of Thomas Hooker, one of the five authors of "the first written constitution in the world, creating a government," and not the only author, as the index appears to state.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE NEW YORK STATE HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION. Including Indian Geographical Names, by E. M. Ruttenber. Vol. VI. Newburgh. Journal Print. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 243.

The first part of this volume contains an account of the seventh annual meeting, with constitution, by-laws and list of members. There are also articles on The Character of Gen. Sullivan, the Organization of Sullivan's Expedition, and a Bibliography thereof, with numerous other short articles of interest. Mr. Ruttenber's scholarly work on Indian Geographical names occupies about half of the volume, and will be found of great interest and value.

THE VOUGHT FAMILY, BEING AN ACCOUNT OF THE DESCENDANTS OF SIMON AND CHRISTINA VOUGHT. William Gordon Ver Planck. Edition of one hundred copies. Tobias A. Wright. 1907. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 27.

This is the genealogy of a Palatine family, which, after suffering the unmerited hardships thrust upon the early Lutheran emigrants, at sea and after their landing in New York, settled in Western New Jersey, in either Middlesex or Hunterdon County. The pamphlet exhibits considerable research, resulting in a good deal of biographical and other material, and its statements are most careful and exact. There is a good index.

A CENTURY OF MERIDEN. "THE SILVER CITY." Issued as the Official Souvenir History by Authority of the General Committee at the Centennial Celebration, June 10 to 16, 1906. Compiled by C. Bancroft Gillespie. Early History by George Munson Curtis. Meriden. Journal Publishing Co. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 434-608-184.

In this very complete volume the material has, probably for convenient reference, been divided into three parts. The first part contains a full and interesting early history of Meriden, with vital records, tombstone inscriptions, muster rolls, with personal notices of the soldiers, and lists of public officials, with town maps, birds-eye views and many pictures of old houses. Part II has an article on Meriden in the Civil War, by Col. Charles L. Upham, and one on the Spanish-American War, and contains a large number of biographies. Part III deals with the manufactories of Meriden. Each part is separately indexed, but the indices are all placed in the back of the book. The second and third parts of the history are also fully illustrated, and the whole publication is very creditable to those engaged in its production.

A HISTORY OF MATTITUCK, LONG ISLAND, N. Y. Rev. Charles E. Craven. Published for the author. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 400. Price, $1.50 and $2.50.

Mattituck is described by the author as being one of the second generation of villages in Suffolk County, N. Y., and he defines this grouping by saying that the second generation comprises the earliest settlements apart from the town centres. The earlier villages, having their town records, afford much more material for the historian than the later group. In spite of this serious drawback Mr. Craven has been able to compile a very complete and valuable history. Amongst the genealogical treasures contained in it are some 150 pages of church records of baptisms, marriages and deaths, never before printed. Mr. Craven is evidently a genealogist, and he deals with that part of his history so as to tell us the things we most desire to know. The book will give great pleasure to the people of Mattituck, Aquebogue (Jamesport) and neighboring towns, as well as to students. The illustrations are numerous and good, the index, which does not cover the church records, is otherwise excellent, and the price of the book is remarkably low. Copies may be had of the author.

Anthony; The Ancestral Home of Washington, by Thos. M. Peck, and an obituary minute on Rev. Wm. K. Hall, D.D. This publication maintains its interest, and, it is to be hoped, will long continue its existence.

THE CAMBRIDGE HISTORICAL SOCIETY'S PUBLICATIONS, I. Proceedings, June 19, 1905–April 24, 1906. Cambridge, Mass. Published by the Society. 1906. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 102.

This new Society is constituted for the purpose of collecting, publishing and distributing Cambridge records, and any resident of that city is eligible for membership, except that its regular membership is limited to two hundred. Its first President is Richard Henry Dana, and its Vice-Presidents are Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Alexander McKenzie and Archibald M. Howe. The Secretary is Frank Gaylord Cook. This number contains a paper by Professor Charles Eliot Norton, and addresses by various members and others. A list of seventy-nine historic sites is given. We hope that all encouragement will be given to the new Society by its neighbors, and that it may have a long and successful life.

REVEREND THOMAS ROBBINS, D.D. An Address delivered before the Connecticut Historical Society, Hartford, October 2, 1906. Rev. W. DeLoss Love, Ph.D. Hartford. Published by the Society. 1906. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 35.

In this memoir, full credit is given Dr. Robbins for the founding of the Connecticut Historical Society, of which he was the first Corresponding Secretary, and afterwards, for twelve years, its Librarian. It was in 1822 that he made his memorable address advocating the formation of such a Society in Hartford, and after its foundation its welfare was very dear to him. The deposit of his library of about 7,000 volumes with the Society was of great benefit to it at a critical time, and helped to give it its present high standing.

COLORADO VOLUNTEERS IN THE CIVIL WAR. THE NEW MEXICO CAMPAIGN IN 1862. William Clarke Whitford, D.D. Denver. The State Historical and Natural History Society. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 159.

At the outset of the Civil War, it was the confident hope of Southern leaders to split off from the Union the territories of Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and a large part of the Pacific Coast. Their reasons for this hope and the means they adopted to fulfill it, with the great issues turning upon the Union victory of La Glorièta, are most interestingly set forth in this work, which gives us insight into war-time conditions but little known in the East. The book is fully illustrated, one of the most interesting portraits being that of the famous "Kit" Carson. A photograph of the battleflag of the First Colorado Regiment is reproduced as a frontispiece.

THE HISTORY OF REDDING, CONNECTICUT. Charles Burr Todd. New York. The Grafton Press. 1906. Quarto, cloth, pp. v+303.

This is the second edition of this work, the first having appeared in 1880, and it contains a great deal of genealogical material, including Revolutionary data, not printed in the earlier publication. The present issue also gives us fourteen pages of index. The parish registers of the Congregational Church of Redding from 1734 to 1780 is included. Some notes on the condition and present whereabouts of public records of Redding are given at pp. 221, 222, and the thoughtfulness of the author in printing these may well be emulated by others.

REGISTER OF THE SOCIETY OF SONS OF THE REVOLUTION IN THE STATE OF MISSOURI, 1904–1906. Compiled by Henry Cadle, Secretary. St. Louis. Woodward & Tiernan Printing Co. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 212.

The greatest credit is due to the Secretary of the Missouri Society for giving us in this volume what is probably the most historically valuable production of its kind. There are almost as many illustrations as pages of reading matter, and these are portraits of Revolutionary ancestors, pictures of old homesteads, arms, family Bible records, and heirlooms of varions kinds. THE ORIGIN AND EARLY HISTORY OF THE FAMILY OF POË OR POE, WITH FULL PEDIGREES OF THE IRISH BRANCH OF THE FAMILY, AND A DISCUSSION OF THE TRUE ANCESTRY OF EDGAR ALLEN POE, THE AMERICAN POET. Sir Edmund Thomas Bewley, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S.A.I. Dublin. Printed for the author by Ponsonby & Gibbs. 1906. Quarto, cloth, pp. xiv+88.

The compiler sets forth the history of various families of this name, and biographies of the more important members are given. There are also notes on the Powell family, from which some Poes are derived. The question of the ancestry of Edgar Allan Poe having been fully discussed by the same author in the January RECORD, the subject will not be treated here. There is a good index, and three charts setting forth all known Poe descendants of Anthony Poe of Popplewick, Notts, complete the book.

"THE HOUSE OF GOD." HISTORICAL DISCOURSE ON THE SESQUI-CENTENNIAL OF THE OLD SOUTH MEETING-HOUSE OF NEWBURYPORT, MASS. By the Pastor, Horace Carter Hovey, D. D. Newburyport(?). 1907(?). 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 27.

This is an historical account of the Presbyterian denomination in its early struggles in Newbury, when it paid taxes to four different parishes and in other ways found existence difficult. A few notes of the more prominent members of the congregation are included.

THOMAS JONES, FORT NECK, QUEENS COUNTY, LONG ISLAND, 1695, AND HIS DESCENDANTS, THE FLOYD-JONES FAMILY, WITH CONNECTIONS FROM THE YEAR 1066. Thomas Floyd-Jones. New York. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 185.

The compiler completely discredits the story that the first Thomas Jones was a pirate, and thereby lays a picturesque ghost. The descendants of Major Thomas Jones of Massapequa, and Freelove Townsend, his wife, have always been among the best-established families on Long Island, and have intermarried with the best-known people there. Notes on some of these families appear in the present volume. There is no index.

A SUPPLEMENT TO THE GENERAL REGISTER OF THE SOCIETY OF COLONIAL WARS, A. D. 1906. Published by Direction of the General Council. Boston. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 386.

The object sought in the publication of this useful volume is to furnish the names of those who have joined the Society since the Register of 1902 was issued, together with accompanying genealogical data. Some errors have been allowed to stand, no doubt through an oversight; notably the case of Lieut. John Hollister, proven to have died in 1665, but who is quoted at page 324 as a lieutenant in King Philip's War of ten years later. The book is most attractive in its crimson and white binding, and will prove, as its predecessor, of great assistance to the searcher.

HISTORY OF SAINT ANDREW'S SOCIETY OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, 1756–1906. George Austin Morrison, Jr., Secretary to the Society. New York. Evening Post Job Printing Office. 1906. Quarto, cloth pp. 294.

Clad in its sober and dignified cover, this history of a great charitable society presents a pleasing appearance. A succinct outline of the history of the society is followed by brief biographies, accompanied by excellent portraits bearing facsimile signatures of its presidents, beginning with Philip Livingston, President 1756–1757, and ending with W. Butler Duncan, 1905–1906. George Austin Morrison, Sr., father of the present Secretary, was President 1893–1895. The latter part of the work contains the charter, officers year by year, and members. The Seals of the Society are illustrated in gold and silver as a frontispiece, and there is also a representation of the badge. Mr. Morrison's style is clear and forcible, and his book represents long and thorough research, brought in this volume to a successful issue.

later portion of the book the obituaries of members are accompanied by their portraits. The flag of the General Society is shown in color as the frontispiece.

THE ORIGIN AND EARLY HISTORY OF THE FAMILY OF POE OR POE, WITH FULL PEDIGREES OF THE IRISH BRANCH OF THE FAMILY, AND A DISCUSSION OF THE TRUE ANCESTRY OF EDGAR ALLEN POE, THE AMERICAN POET. Sir Edmund Thomas Bewley, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S.A.I. Dublin. Printed for the author by Ponsonby & Gibbs, 1906. Quarto, cloth, pp. xiv+88.

The compiler sets forth the history of various families of this name, and biographies of the more important members are given. There are also notes on the Powell family, from which some Poes are derived. The question of the ancestry of Edgar Allan Poe has been fully discussed by the same author in the January RECORD, the subject will not be treated here. There is a good index, and three charts setting forth all known Poe descendants of Anthony Poe of Poplewick, Notts, complete the book.

"THE HOUSE OF GOD." HISTORICAL DISCOURSE ON THE SESQUICENTENNIAL OF THE OLD SOUTH MEETING-HOUSE OF NEWBURYPORT, MASS. By the Pastor, Horace Carter Hovey, D.D. Newburyport(?), 1907(?). 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 27.

This is an historical account of the Presbyterian denomination in its early struggles in Newbury, when it had taxes to levy different parishes and in other ways found existence difficult. A few notes of the more prominent members of the congregation are included.

THOMAS JONES, FORT NECK, QUEENS COUNTY, LONG ISLAND, 1695, AND HIS DESCENDANTS. THE FLOYD-JONES FAMILY, WITH CONNECTIONS FROM THE YEAR 1066. Thomas Floyd-Jones. New York: 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 185.

The compiler completely discredits the story that the first Thomas Jones was a pirate, and thereby lays a picturesque ghost. The descendants of Major Thomas Jones of Massapequa, and Freelove Townsend, his wife, have always been among the best-established families on Long Island, and have intermarried with the best-known people there. Notes on some of these families appear in the present volume. There is no index.

A SUPPLEMENT TO THE GENERAL REGISTER OF THE SOCIETY OF COLONIAL WARS, A. D. 1906. Published by Direction of the General Council. Boston: 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 386.

The object sought in the publication of this useful volume is to furnish the names of those who have joined the Society since the Register of 1905 was issued, together with accompanying genealogical data. Some errors have been allowed to stand, no doubt through an oversight; notably the case of Lieut. John Hollister, proven to have died in 1685, but who is quoted at page 324 as a lieutenant in King Philip's War of ten years later. The book is most attractive in its crimson and white binding, and will prove, as its predecessors, of great assistance to the searcher.

HISTORY OF SAINT ANDREW'S SOCIETY OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, 1756-1906. George Austin Morrison, Jr., Secretary to the Society. New York: Evening Post Job Printing Office, 1906. Quarto, cloth pp. 274.

Clad in its sober and dignified cover, this history of a great charitable society presents a pleasing appearance. A succinct outline of the history of the society is followed by brief biographies, accompanied by excellent portraits bearing facsimile signatures of its presidents, beginning with Philip Livingston, President 1756-1757, and ending with W. Butler Duncan, 1903-1906. George Austin Morrison, Sr., father of the present Secretary, was President 1893-1895. The latter part of the work contains the charter, officers year by year, and members. The Seals of the Society are illustrated in gold and silver as a frontispiece, and there is also a representation of the badge. Mr. Morrison's style is clear and forcible, and his book represents long and thorough research, brought in this volume to a successful issue.

BENJAMIN D. HICKS.

BY FREDERICK C. HICKS.

One year after the famous Mayflower landed her sturdy band of Pilgrims upon the bleak and forbidding shores of New England, a second ship, the Fortune, dropped anchor off the little settlement at Plymouth.

Among this second body of Puritans seeking liberty of thought and action in the wilds of a New World was Robert Hicks, the founder of the family in America, descendant from a family of English gentry settled at Gloucester. The earliest known ancestor was Sir Ellis Hicks, who was knighted by the Black Prince on the battle field of Poictiers in 1356, for bravery in capturing a set of colors from the French, in honor of which the fleur de lis was placed upon the family coat-of-arms.

Margaret, the second wife of Robert, the pioneer, came from England on the ship Ann, which arrived in Plymouth during the latter part of June, 1622.

About 1642, two of the sons, John and Stephen, left their father's home in Duxbury, Mass., where the family had resided a number of years, and came to Long Island. John Hicks, the second son of Robert, was one of the patentees to whom Gov. Kieft, in 1645, granted the township of Flushing, and who took an active part in the affairs of the settlement. His name and that of his only son, Thomas, who was appointed the first judge of Queens County, appears in connection with almost every public measure for many years, and from then to the present day the Hicks family has taken an active part in the history of the Island.

In the old Seventh Ward of New York City, which was then a Quaker neighborhood, Benjamin D. Hicks was born, Feb. 24, 1836. It was here that his grandfather on his mother's side, Whitehead Hicks, a former Mayor of the City, once owned a farm. Isaac Hicks, his paternal grandfather, was also a well known man, being a prominent merchant and ship-owner of New York, and one of his ships first carried the newly adopted American flag to the Black Sea, to commemorate which event the owner was presented with a large pitcher, by the Chamber of Commerce of the State.

BENJAMIN D. HICKS.

By Frederick C. Hicks.

One year after the famous Mayflower landed her sturdy band of Pilgrims upon the bleak and forbidding shores of New England, a second ship, the Fortune, dropped anchor off the little settlement at Plymouth.

Among this second body of Puritans seeking liberty of thought and action in the wilds of a New World was Robert Hicks, the founder of the family in America, descendant from a family of English gentry settled at Gloucester. The earliest known ancestor was Sir Hilis Hicks, who was knighted by the Black Prince on the battle field of Poictiers in 1356, for bravery in capturing a set of colors from the French, in honor of which the fleur de lis was placed upon the family coat-of-arms.

Margaret, the second wife of Robert, the pioneer, came from England on the ship Ann, which arrived in Plymouth during the latter part of June, 1623.

About 1640, two of the sons, John and Stephen, left their father's home in Duxbury, Mass., where the family had resided a number of years, and came to Long Island. John Hicks, the second son of Robert, was one of the patentees to whom Governor Kieft, in 1645, granted the township of Flushing, and who took an active part in the affairs of the settlement. His name and that of his only son, Thomas, who was appointed the first judge of Queens County, appears in connection with almost every public measure for many years, and from then to the present day the Hicks family has taken an active part in the history of the Island.

In the old Seventh Ward of New York City, which was then a Quaker neighborhood, Benjamin D. Hicks was born, Feb. 24, 1836. It was here that his grandfather on his mother's side, Whitehead Hicks, a former Mayor of the City, once owned a farm. Isaac Hicks, his paternal grandfather, was also a well known man, being a prominent merchant and ship-owner of New York, and one of his ships first carried the newly adopted American flag to the Black Sea, to commemorate which event the owner was presented with a large pitcher, by the Chamber of Commerce of the State.

Elias Hicks, the noted preacher, after whom the Hicksite branch of the Quakers is named, was a cousin of his, and throughout life Benjamin D. Hicks remained true to the faith and teachings of his ancestors, ever striving to heed that inner light which the Father has placed in the heart of every one; yet so broad in his religious views that creed and sect were to him but a name; believing that a life conscientiously lived was sufficient preparation for the spirit in the world to come. For thirty years he attended the Westbury Meeting, and was one of the active workers in the Society.

His mother, Elizabeth T. Hicks, was a distant relative of his father, being a descendant from Judge Thomas Hicks and Mary Washburn. His father died a young man, and throughout the life of his mother, his devotion to her, and solicitude for her welfare was most pronounced.

Inheriting a competency from his father, he devoted his time to public affairs and philanthropic matters. He was conscientious never to waste time, and was always occupied with something. His conviction was that duty should be considered first and always; when that was properly performed, pleasure could be enjoyed with added zest. Throughout his whole life he was one of the most dilligent and public spirited members of society.

He made his home in the City until 1870, when he went to Westbury, L. I., and at once entered into the activities of the County. When eighteen years of age he entered political life and took part in the formation of the Republican Party when it meant far more than we can now realize to stand for the freedom of the slave. He was Secretary of the first Republican Club organized in New York City, and in those early days of the party's history, it was not unusual to have the meetings broken up by mobs, and the officers threatened with personal violence.

In his early political life he was intimately associated with General Fremont, Secretary Seward, Governor Morgan and Governor King, and later with Senator Conkling, President Arthur, Governor Dix and Governor Cornell. He was a life long friend of George William Curtis and ardently supported him in his campaign for Civil Service Reform. For thirty years he was an active worker in the Republican ranks, but was never a candidate for office, and would never accept the high political appointments that vere tendered him, yet he gave freely of his time and money for the promotion of the cause of the party and its highest and best principles.

He was for ten years a member of the Republican State Committee from the First Congressional District, and with John M. Clark, Isaac H. Cocks and Henry W. Eastman, was for many years one of the leaders of the Party in the town of North Hempstead.

He was an ardent American, loved his country and believed in it, and with the breaking out of the War of the Rebellion volunteered his services and was commissioned a lieutenant in the Navy; but, owing to the illness and anxiety of his mother who depended upon him absolutely, resigned before seeing active service. This was a severe blow to him, as he had been a staunch supporter of the Free Soil movement and an enthusiastic advocate of all the principles of the Republican Party.

Although not a college graduate, he was a close student and wide reader, surrounding himself with books, pictures and scientific instruments. While his general reading and research led him into all fields of knowledge, science and astronomy were his favorite subjects.

While a large part of his early life was devoted to matters of a public nature, in later years he gave attention to business affairs, and at his death was connected with a number of financial institutions. He was one of the organizers of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co., and of the Bond & Mortgage Co., of New York, and a director in both. He was President of the Roslyn Savings Bank, Nassau County Bank and Bank of Hempstead Harbor.

Being of an extremely sympathetic nature, and feeling keenly for the sufferings of animals under cruel treatment, he came into association with Henry Bergh, and the friendship thus formed remained through life. Associating themselves with other gentlemen who manifested a similar interest, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was formed with Mr. Bergh as President and Mr. Hicks as Vice-President. He was an active worker in the Society until within a few years of his death, and travelled long distances to warn or punish those who were guilty of inhumane treatment of animals.

When the Queens County Agricultural Society made its permanent home in Mineola, Mr. Hicks became interested in it and devoted much time to the development of its grounds, and establishing it upon a firm financial basis.

Genealogical matters and the preservation of old records were always of interest to him, and he collected much valuable data, not only to his family, but of interest to the historian of the Island. His monumental work is the Records of the Towns of Hempstead and North Hempstead, published in eight volumes. Mr. Hicks had long felt that the old records should be transcribed and published before time had so faded and obliterated the old writings as to make them unintelligible and valueless. For years he and his wife, whose constant help and devoted self-sacrifice made it possible for him to carry out the great work, labored upon the self-imposed task. Every line and often each word and letter of the old and often illegible records, with their misspelling and wretched writing which had to be deciphered with the aid of a magnifying glass, was carefully gone over and conscientiously transcribed. As the years pass, this great work will be more and more appreciated and will be of value to the historian of the future.

Always interested in art, he was for fifty years a fellow of the National Academy of Design, and gave much assistance and encouragement to young and struggling artists. Through his genealogical research he became a member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society and took an active interest in its work, besides being a member of a number of historical

In the life of Benjamin D. Hicks the virtues and the sterling qualities of a line of sturdy ancestors were exemplified. Generous to a fault, anxious to assist those who had his confidence, staunch in his devotion to his friends, his life will ever remain an inspiration for the future.

"His was a simple, tender character placing always the welfare of others before that of himself. His thoughtfulness of the little courtesies, and his personal kindnesses endeared him to those he familiarly met. In all business matters he was punctilious in his attention to whatever of duty was assigned to him in the management of the numerous financial corporations in whose activities he took part. While he yielded readily to others in matters affecting his personal convenience, he stood as firm as a rock if he believed a question of principle was involved."

Public spirit, loyalty to duty, faithfulness to friends, charity and sympathy for all, were the conspicuous characteristics of his life, and these coupled with a loving and kindly disposition, will make his name, for years, a cherished memory.

THE KING FAMILY IN ENGLAND.

The King Family of London, Middlesex and St. Albans, Hertfordshire.

1. Jean Le Roy, a French Huguenot, was b. at Rouen, in Normandy, in 1515. He fled from France in 1572, shortly after the massacre of St. Bartholomew, and came to London, where he married Mary Heller (or Hiler), the daughter of James Heller, an elder of the French Church in London. Shortly after his arrival in London he anglicized his name of LeRoy to that of King. He d. in Lime Street, London, 11 Oct., 1615, and was buried at St. Andrew's Undershaft 14 Oct., 1615. He left issue, as only son.

John,[2] b. 7 Aug., 1604(?).

2. John[2] King (John[1]), was b. in Lame St., London, on 7 Aug., 1604(?). He was a physician, and practiced at Hertford, St. Albans, and later at Aldersgate St., London. He m. (1) in 1632,

Elizabeth Hale, daughter of John Hale, of London, Merchant She d. on 15 Jan., 1636, and he then m. (2) on 22 Feb., 1637, Anne Roberts, dau. of Barne Roberts of Willesden, Middlesex. She was a sister of Sir William Roberts, Bart., and d. on 6 Feb., 1661. He lived at St. Albans, Herts, for many year, practicing his profession there, and took an active part in the Civil War, being a partisan of the Cromwellian party and serving on various county committees.

Dr. King left a will in which, among other provisions the following clause appears, viz.: "I doe give and bequeathe unto my grandsonne, John King, the second sonne of my late sonne, Sir John King, all my books that are Manuscripts and not printed and his Father's picture in Oyle, with two Epitaphs of his Father's Elogium, one in Latine and the same in English, in two figures of his Father's monument in the Temple Church, in two frames covered with glass and all the printed pictures covered with glass and the coat-of-arms of me and the Roberts in Oyle in my Dyneing Room (except that picture covered with glass which hath a parchment book in it conteyning a narrative of the said Sir John King's life and death) * * * which said last picture I give to my said granddaughter, Mary King, together with her father's picture at large in Oyle. * * * My Father (by name of John LeRoy), in English John King, departed out of this world the 11th day of October, 1615, and on the 14th day of the said October, 1615, was buried in the Parish Church of St. Andrew Undershaft, London, living and Dying a parishoner of the said Parish. I, John King, his only child, desire that my body may be buried in the same grave or neare to it in the said Parish Church."

Dr. King d. 19 March, 1688. He appears to have taken a keen interest in the history of his family, and in 1677 compiled a genealogy of his ancestors and descendants entitled: "A brief and true Narrative of the Life and Death of Sir John King, Kt., late one of the Bench of the Inner Temple, together with the text and conclusion of Dr. Craddock's Sermon, preached at his burial, and also of two epitaphs made on him by two of his endeared friends since his death 'written' Anno Dom. 1677." It is to this Narrative that Dr. King refers in his will as a "parchment book" in the back of a picture of Sir John King, his son.

After being lost for over one hundred and fifty years, this picture and the parchment manuscript back of the frame were discovered by Mr. George Henry Sawtell during a visit to the Jersey Island in 1853, at St. Heliers. It passed from Mary King, granddaughter of Dr. John King, to a Mr. Green, said to have been her grandson, whose daughter married Wigmore Whisken, Esq., and by that gentleman's daughter, the widow of the Rev. E. Mourant, of Guernsey, it was given to Mr. Francis Bertram, of St. Helier, Guernsey, in whose house it was seen by Mr. Sawtell. Mr. Sawtell caused the parchment to be published under the title of "A Memoir of the Life and Death of Sir John King, Knight, written by his Father in 1677," London, Fleet St., Bell & Daldy,

Elizabeth Hale, daughter of John Hale, of London, Merchant. She d. on 15 Jan., 1636, and he then m. (2) on 22 Feb., 1633, Anne Roberts, dau. of Barne Roberts of Willesden, Middlesex. She was a sister of Sir William Roberts, Bart., and d. on 6 Feb., 1666. He lived at St. Albans, Herts, for many year, practising his profession there, and took an active part in the Civil War, being a partisan of the Cromwellian party and serving on various county committees.

Mr. Sawtell caused the parchment to be published under the title of "A Memoir of the Life and Death of Sir John King, Knight, written by his Father in 1677," London, Fleet St., Bell & Daldy, 1855 (see Brit. Mus. No. 10826—B 10.) It is to the interest and courtesy of Mr. Sawtell that this valuable record of the John King Family has been preserved for future generations.

Dr. John King also made a strong effort during his lifetime to have the arms above set forth allowed and registered by the Herald's College, but for some reason the Heralds refused his request. He claimed that they were the LeRoy arms as borne by his ancestors in France. The fact of a chevron sable being placed on a shield azure, however, is in violation of the heraldic law of never tricking color on color, and the lion rampant was the distinctive sign and property of such English King Families as had the right to bear coat armor. It looks as if Dr. King assumed the Lion as he did the name "King," and perhaps this was the reason the Heralds refused to recognize the arms.

Dr. King had issue as follows:

By first wife:

John, b. Aug., 1633; d. Sept., 1633.

Richard, b. Sept., 1634; slain by a lance in Hispaniola during Cromwell's expedition thither, 2 April, 1655.

Mary, b. 3 Oct., 1635; m. Giles Blomer of London, and had issue, none of whom survived her. She d. 25 Sept., 1675.

Elisabeth, b. 19 Jan., 1636; m. 29 Sept., 1657, at St. Alban's Abby, Richard Sadlier, Citizen and Merchant Taylor, of St. Marie Colechurch, London; b. 1628; and had eight children, of whom Richard d. 2 Oct., 1698. The great-grandson of said Richard sent a Memoir of the King Family to the "Gentleman's Magazine," Vol. 52, page 110, in 1781, in which it is stated that at that time the male line of the family was extinct.

By second wife:

John, b. 5 Feb., 1638; bp. at St. Alban's Abbey 16 Feb., 1638–9.

Anne, bp. at St. Alban's Abbey 8 Nov., 1640; buried there 15 Dec., 1640.

James, b. 1646; bp. at St. Alban's Abbey, 30 Aug., 1646. He was twice married, and had issue five children.

Asahel, b. 1647, Feb. 14; bp. at St. Alban's Abbey 20 Feb., 1647–8.

Bethiah, b. 1649; bp. at St. Alban's Abbey, 6 March, 1649–50; buried there 25 Aug., 1659.

1855 (see Brit. Mus. No. 10826—B 10). It is to the interest and courtesy of Mr. Sawtell that this valuable record of the John King Family has been preserved for future generations.

Dr. John King also made a strong effort during his lifetime to have the arms above set forth allowed and registered by the Herald's College, but for some reason the Heralds refused his request. He claimed that they were the LeRoy arms as borne by his ancestors in France. The fact of a chevron sable being placed on a shield azure, however, is in violation of the heraldic law of never tricking color on color, and the lion rampant was the distinctive sign and property of such English King Families as had the right to bear coat armor. It looks as if Dr. King assumed the Lion as he did the name "King," and perhaps this was the reason the Heralds refused to recognize the arms.

Dr. King had issue as follows:

By first wife:

John, b. Aug., 1633; d. Sept., 1633.
Richard, b. Sept., 1634; slain by a lance in Hispaniola during Cromwell's expedition thither, 2 April, 1655.
Mary, b. 3 Oct., 1635; m. Giles Blomer of London, and had issue, none of whom survived her. She d. 25 Sept., 1675.
Elizabeth, b. 19 Jan., 1636; m. 29 Sept., 1657, at St. Alban's Abby, Richard Sadlier, Citizen and Merchant Taylor, of St. Marie Colechurch, London; b. 1632; and had eight children, of whom Richard d. 2 Oct., 1698. The great-grandson of said Richard sent a Memoir of the King Family to the "Gentleman's Magazine," Vol. 57, page 110, in 1787, in which it is stated that at that time the male line of the family was extinct.

By second wife:

John, b. 5 Feb., 1638; bp. at St. Alban's Abbey 16 Feb., 1638-9.
Anne, bp. at St. Alban's Abbey 8 Nov., 1640; buried there 15 Dec., 1640.

These arms indicate that Isaac King was a descendant of Jean LeRoy, but no such Isaac appears in the pedigree. It may be, however, that he was a son of that James King (Dr. John, Jean), b. 1646, who is said to have had five children. (Lyson's Environs of London.)

Here the subject of this sketch attended the Grammer School, entered Rutgers College in 1863, and was graduated in 1867. After his graduation Mr. Taylor studied architecture with Renwick and Sands and John B. Snook in New York City, and subsequently practiced his profession in Newark, N. J., where his father was for twenty years pastor of the Clinton Avenue Reformed Church. Among the more prominent buildings erected from his designs were the Newark Free Library and Winants Hall, the large dormitory on the campus of his Alma Mater.

Mr. Taylor was widely known and popular in Newark society, and was held in friendly esteem by men of all classes. He was a member of the Essex Club, Newark, and later of the Crescent Athletic Club, Brooklyn.

On April 22, 1897, he married Miss Anna Buckham Wright, daughter of George Wellman Wright and Georgianna Buckham of Duxbury, Mass. The wedding took place in Boston. During the later years of his life Mr. Taylor was not in good health, and with his wife, spent much time abroad.

Van Campen Taylor was a man of the artistic temperament, resisting in in his work and in his point of view every encroachment of commercialism. Quick in his discernment of aesthetic possibilities, he nevertheless planned in a large way for domestic comfort and business convenience. He was obserlawyer; her mother being Catharine McLean, daughter of John McLean, of Salem, N. Y. He left him surviving Lyman, Jr., Assistant Secretary of the Equitable Trust Co., Katherine, and Stephen Payne Rhoades. Mr. Rhoades was President of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Co., and of the Mercantile Electric Co., and Trustee of the American Deposit and Loan Co., the Home for Old Men and Aged Couples, and the Society for the Relief of the Destitute Blind. He was a member of the Lawyers, Richmond Gull, Stockbridge (Mass.) Gull, and Harvard Clubs, the N. Y. Historical Society, the St. Nicholas Society, the Sons of the Revolution, the Society of Colonial Wars, and the Society of the War of 1812. He was deeply interested in historical and genealogical research, and was largely connected with the Bloomingdale district of this city through the Dikemans, Coutts, Hoppers and Harvens, all of whom owned large farms there in early times. As president, for twenty-five years, of the Safe Deposit Co., he presided over the affairs of the company with such consummate ability as to make him the recognized head of the safe deposit business of this country. As a member in either business or charitable society Boards of Management, by his strict sense of justice, his genial and pleasant manner and good judgment, he endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact.

TAYLOR, BENJAMIN VAN CAMPEN, of New York and Duxbury, Mass., an Annual Member of this Society since Dec. 8, 1899, died Sept. 8, 1906. Mr. Taylor was born in Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 15, 1816. He was the son of the Rev. William James Romeyn Taylor, D. D., and Katherine Rappelye Cowenhoven, daughter of Nicholas R. Cowenhoven and Anna Rappelye of New Brunswick, N. J., formerly of Long Island.

His grandfather, Benjamin C. Taylor, D. D., was for more than fifty years pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church, Bergen, N. J., and author of "Annals of the Classis and Township of Bergen." One brother, Isaac E. Taylor, M. D., was formerly years at the head of Believue Hospital. Another brother, Oduniel Taylor, M. D., was a leading physician of Camden, N. J. A sister, Martha, married into the family of "Citizen" Genet. Their father and mother were married in England. His ancestry along other lines is Dutch. Benjamin C. Taylor married Anna Romeyn, daughter of Rev. James Van Campen Romeyn, son of Rev. Thomas Romeyn. The Romeyn family have been prominent in the ministry and at the Bar. Mr. Taylor has three brothers who are still in the ministry, the fifth generation of ministers. Benjamin C. Taylor and his son, W. J. R. Taylor, served long terms as Trustees of Rutgers College. The Romeyns are connected with the Zabriskies of New York, and by marriage, with John A. C. Gray, formerly of 700 Fifth Avenue.

Mr. Taylor's boyhood was passed in Jersey City, Schenectady and Philadelphia, where his father served successively as pastor of Reformed (Dutch) Churches. In 1850 his father became Corresponding Secretary of the American Bible Society and the family moved to New Brunswick, New Jersey. Here the subject of this sketch attended the Grammar School, entered Rutgers College in 1863, and was graduated in 1867. After his graduation Mr. Taylor studied architecture with Renwick and Sands and John B. Snook in New York City, and subsequently practiced his profession in Newark, N. J., where his father was for twenty years pastor of the Clinton Avenue Reformed Church. Among the more prominent buildings erected from his designs were the Newark Free Library and Wiman Hall, the large dormitory on the campus of his Alma Mater.

Mr. Taylor was widely known and popular in Newark society, and was held in friendly esteem by men of all classes. He was a member of the Essex Club, Newark, and later of the Crescent Athletic Club, Brooklyn.

On April 22, 1867, he married Miss Anna Buckham Wright, daughter of George Wellman Wright and Germaine Buckham of Duxbury, Mass. The wedding took place in Boston. During the later years of his life Mr. Taylor was not in good health, and with his wife, spent much time abroad.

Van Campen Taylor was a man of the artistic temperament, resisting in his work and in his point of view every encroachment of commercialism. Quick in his discernment of aesthetic possibilities, he nevertheless planned in a large way for domestic comfort and business convenience. He was observvant, critical, ready to question accepted ways of doing things, and both foresaw and anticipated in his practice important changes in method and in taste.

He was a gentleman in every instinct, frankly aristocratic in sentiment, but always persona grata among the roughest men with whom his profession brought him into contact—and this without any lapse on his part into familiarity. His manner was never quite that of unreserved familiarity with any one, though in a fine way free and friendly.

In his own home and among his relatives and friends Mr. Taylor was known as a man who lived the heart-life in all sincerity. There was a zest and enthusiasm in his devotion to the happiness of others which was entirely self-forgetful. He had a strong family feeling, and maintained perhaps more widely than any other member of the affiliated families his interest in and his acquaintance with his kindred.

WILCOX, DAVID, lawyer, a member of this Society since 1899, died at sea April 24, 1907. He was born in Flatbush, L. I., in 1850, and was the son of Albert O. and Ann Elizabeth Wilcox. He graduated from Yale in 1872 and was valedictorian of his class. He studied law at Columbia and began the practice of law in 1874. He was for several years the legal advisor of the Delaware & Hudson R. R. and Canal Co., and afterwards its president.

His legal acumen made him the leader of the hard coal road presidents in all their struggles with the striking anthracite coal miners, and he was tacitly understood to be the mouthpiece of all the anthracite roads. His appeal to the President in 1902 that the coal strike was a conspiracy to hamper interstate commerce, brought to the front for the first time the application of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law to the situation, and his letter to John Mitchell setting forth the position of the employers was so clear and forceful that the labor men backed down for lack of public support.

Mr. Wilcox was also a director of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific R. R., and a member of many clubs, including the Metropolitan, University, Century, Union League, New York Yacht and Tuxedo. His estate was left to his four nieces, Mary A. Duer, Elizabeth Stewart Hamilton, Elise S. Kinkead, and Edith B. H. Kinkead. W. G. Wilcox, a cousin is professor in Cornell University.

KISSAM, BENJAMIN ADRIAN, died suddenly in Elizabeth, N. J., near his late home 66 Cherry Street, on Monday afternoon, June 3, 1907. He was born at 11 Walker Street, New York City, Feb. 26, 1836, and was the son of the late Dr. James Brooks Kissam and the late Mary Margaret Butler of New York City.

Mr. Kissam was a descendant of the old New York City family of Kissam, the American progenitor of which was John Kissam, Sr., a Puritan, whose family lived at Flushing, L. I., in 1645. Mr. Kissam's entire life with the exception of the last few years, was spent in New York City, where he was engaged in business. He was identified with the Protestant Episcopal Church and took an active part in the affairs of some of its philanthropic and religious activities. He was a man who never courted publicity, but having clear views of great breadth on all subjects and an unusual executive ability, he was looked up to and much called upon for advice and service by his intimates and associates. Of great culture, courteus address, polished manner and genial personality, he moved quietly through life, esteemed by his friends, beloved by his family, leaving the memory of an upright life and a helpful life, as his ancestors had done before him.

Mr. Kissam was married Feb. 11, 1857, to Sara A. Snyder, daughter of the late Col. Henry D. H. Snyder and the late Ann Beers at her father's home in Woodland, Ulster Co., N. Y. Col. Snyder was a descendant of the Palatinate Wilhelm Schneider of East Camp, N. Y., 1710. Mr. Kissam's wife died at Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 14, 1906. Six children survive, viz.: Ella K. Kitching, Elizabeth, N. J.; Albert Ward Kissam, East Orange, N. J.; Henry Snyder Kissam, New York City; Delia K. Johnson, Cynwyd, Pa.; James Benjamin Kissam, New York City; and Charlotte K. Ward, London, England.

BOOK NOTICES.

ALBANY CHRONICLES. A History of the City Arranged Chronologically From the Earliest Settlement to the Present Time. Compiled by Cuyler Reynolds. Albany. J. B. Lyon Company, Printers. 1906. 8vo, half Morocco, pp. xxiv+815. Profusely Illustrated.

This work, in its thoroughness, care for detail and interesting arrangement, is the most valuable recent contribution to the general history of Albany. Mr. Reynolds has arranged his facts chronologically under each Mayor's administration, prefacing each section with a brief tabular biography of the Mayor for that period, which in many cases is accompanied by a portrait of His Honor. The compiler has not confined himself to a mere outline of events, but has given many illuminative details relating to the persons and places mentioned, and in the case of important incidents has made his account both full and interesting. The book is very completely illustrated with many historical pictures, and reproductions of the Robert C. Pruyn collection of Mayors of Albany. No one interested in Albany or early New York State history can afford to do without this valuable work.

THE HISTORY OF THE BRIGHAM FAMILY. A Record of Several Thousand Descendants of Thomas Brigham, the Emigrant, 1603-1653. W. I. Tyler Brigham. Collated and edited by Emma E. Brigham. William E. Brigham, Associate Editor. New York. The Grafton Press. 1907. 8vo, cloth, pp. 636. Price, $10.00.

The English origin of Thomas Brigham has yet to be discovered, but the result of Mr. W. I. T. Brigham's researches has been printed with this genealogy as a guide for future effort. The work is divided into six sections, namely: History, Genealogy, Appendix, Addenda, Owner's Lineage and Index. It would have been quite as useful and perhaps better, from a searcher's standpoint, to have placed the history with the appendix in the second part of the book, beginning the volume with the very full and valuable data concerning the Emigrant. In grouping the children of Brigham daughters, the compiler has been careful to head the list with the family name, and in the case of son's children to specify by which wife they were borne. Daughters' grandchildren are printed in italics. The volume is exceedingly attractive in its make-up. Good judgment has been shown in the arrangement and printing of the records, and in many cases attention is called to Colonial Wars service. The appendix contains, with other interesting matter, the military records of the Brigham family. A separate sheet for additions and corrections to be sent to the editor is enclosed with the volume, and there are 67 pages of indexes and many excellent illustrations.

A GUIDE TO MASSACHUSETTS LOCAL HISTORY. Being a bibliographic index to the literature of the towns, cities and counties of the State, including books, pamphlets, articles in periodicals and collected works, books in preparation, historical manuscripts, newspaper clippings, etc. Compiled by Charles A. Flagg, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C. Salem. The Salem Press Company. 1907. 8vo, cloth, pp. ix+256. Price, $6.00.

The sub-title amply describes the plan and scope of this invaluable work, but only the practical searcher can realize what a boon the book is. The work is arranged by counties, under which the towns are placed in alphabetical order. Each county is preceded by a township map, and a brief topographical history, under which are placed the general works relating to its history. Each town also has a short account of its formation and setting off, and a practical index to the towns and counties adds further to one's comfort and convenience. One hates to make any criticism of a work so nearly perfect, but in a second edition, a better label on the back of the book will add not only to its usefulness, but also to its appearance. Excellent taste has been shown in the selection and printing of material, and one feels deeply grateful to Mr. Flagg for his very helpful production.

THE ST. JOHN GENEALOGY. Descendants of Matthias St. John of Dorchester, Mass., 1634, of Windsor, Conn., 1640, of Wethersfield, Conn., 1643-1645, and Norwalk, Conn., 1650. Orline St. John Alexander. New York. The Grafton Press. 1907. 8vo, cloth, pp. xv+624. Price, $9.00.

This is one of the representative families of Norwalk, which has been active in all her history. In the genealogy before us, the daughters are not placed as heads of families, their marriages and children being given under their father's section. This arrangement seems a most sensible one, in that it preserves the dominant place of the family name. Index references are to personal number. In accordance with the best present usage, authorities for important statements are freely given, especially in the earlier generations. Paper and makeup are good, and as with all genealogical publications of the Grafton Press, a blank is bound in for the owner's lineage. In its general appearance and arrangement it is one of the best genealogical books of the year.

THE JONES FAMILY OF LONG ISLAND. Descendants of Major Thomas Jones (1665-1726) and Allied Families. John H. Jones. New York. Tobias A. Wright. 1907. 8vo, cloth, pp. 435.

This volume opens with a most thorough and interesting account of Major Thomas Jones, the ancestor, setting forth the contemporaneous documents which give color to the belief that he was a pirate, as well as others to show that he was really a privateer. He was an important man in his day, and his descendants have always been prominent on Long Island. A perusal of the names of allied families, of whom an excellent account is given here, will show the race to have been connected with most of the old Long Island families. Among the best known names are Willett, Washburne, Van Wyck, Wood, Weekes, Underhill, Remsen, "Tangier" Smith, Kissam, Cornell, Valentine, Thorne, Lawrence, Youngs, Gardiner, Woodhull, Hallett, Skidmore, and others too numerous to mention. There is a particularly full account of the Mott family. The book is well printed and indexed; has a number of excellent illustrations.

THE VARNUMS OF DRACUTT (IN MASSACHUSETTS). A History of George Varnum, his son Samuel who came to Ipswich about 1635, and grandsons Thomas, John and Joseph, who settled in Dracutt, and Their Descendants. John Marshall Varnum. Boston. David Clapp & Son. 1907. 8vo, cloth, pp. vi+308.

This is the family of which the late General James Mitchell Varnum was so distinguished a member. No attempt is made to show a British pedigree, although the family tradition that they originated in "Drawcutt (supposed to be in Wales)" is cited. The book begins with the accurate and interesting history of the family, written by Squire Parker Varcum in 1818 when he was 71 years of age. Indeed the whole compilation is more of a family history than a genealogy. The biographical matter is by different hands, and is illustrated by silhouette and still-life pictures. Some of the more important members of the family were Hon. Joseph Bradley Varnum, U. S. Senator and speaker of Congress, Joseph Bradley Varnum, merchant and railroad financier, Major-General James Mitchell Varnum, member Continental Congress, Judge Supreme Court N. W. Territory, and others, including General James Mitchell Varnum, a member of this Society, who filled many important offices, besides being Vice-President of the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati, Governor of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of New York, and a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France.

EARLY DAYS IN DETROIT. General Friend Palmer. Detroit. Published by Hunt & June. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 1032. Price. $5.00.

In May, 1827, General Palmer arrived in Detroit with his mother and two sisters. He died there on October 9th. 1906. It will therefore be seen that his reminiscences, covering a period of so many years, will be of the greatest local value. His accounts of Detroit merchants of long ago, of the old hotels, express days, belles and beaux of by-gone days, the first theatres in Detroit, and other old-time matters, well repay perusal. A number of personal and family sketches will be found very helpful to the genealogist. The book is well printed, bound and indexed, and will be found indispensable to the student of Michigan history.

SUFFOLK MANORIAL FAMILIES, VOL. II, PART 9. Being the County Visitations and Other Pedigrees. Joseph James Muskett. Privately Printed. Exeter. William Pollard & Co., Ltd. 1907. Folio, pamphlet, pp. 321–360. Price, 5*s*.

This number deals with Beaumont of Bildeston, Stubbing of Naughton, with a Royal Descent, and Collett of Westerfield, showing their armorial bearings, pedigrees and wills, all in the usual admirable manner of this publication.

GENEALOGY OF THE STIMPSON FAMILY OF CHARLESTOWN, MASS., AND ALLIED LINES. Charles Collyer Whittier. Boston. David Clapp & Son. 1907. 8vo, cloth, pp. 206.

The name Stimpson is a corruption of Steavenson or Stevenson, Andrew, the progenitor, having used both the latter spellings. The family remained at Charlestown for several generations, where they were respected citizens. This genealogy carries the daughters' lines through several generations, and, where it does not make the book too bulky, this is a very desirable thing to do, for, though the name is lost, the blood remains, and daughters' children have the same descent as those of sons. The book is fully illustrated with portraits, and there are 20 pages of index.

FIRST RECORD BOOK OF THE SOCIETY OF THE DAUGHTERS OF HOLLAND DAMES. Compiled by Mariana Velasquez, Registrar, and Mrs. Levi Holbrook, Secretary. New York. The Grafton Press. 1907. 8vo, cloth, pp. 129. Price, $3.00.

of age. Indeed the whole compilation is more of a family history than a genealogy. The biographical matter is by different hands, and is illustrated by silhouette and still-life pictures. Some of the more important members of the family were Hon. Joseph Bradley Varnum, U. S. Senator and speaker of Congress, Joseph Bradley Varnum, merchant and railroad financier, Major-General James Mitchell Varnum, member Continental Congress, Judge Supreme Court N. W. Territory, and others, including General James Mitchell Varnum, a member of this Society, who filled many important offices, besides being Vice-President of the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati, Governor of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of New York, and a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France.

FAMILY DAYS IN DETROIT. General Friend Palmer. Detroit. Published by Hunt & June. 1906. 8vo, cloth, pp. 102. Price, $5.00.

In May, 1837, General Palmer arrived in Detroit with his mother and two sisters. He died there on October 6th, 1906. It will therefore be seen that his reminiscences, covering a period of so many years, will be of the greatest local value. His accounts of Detroit merchants of long ago, of the old boats, express days, belles and beaux of by-gone days, the first theatres in Detroit, and other old-time matters, well repay perusal. A number of genealogical family sketches will be found very helpful to the genealogist. The book is well printed, bound and indexed, and will be found indispensable to the student of Michigan history.

This number deals with Beaumont of Bildeston, Stubbing of Naughton, with a Royal Descent, and Collett of Westerfield, showing their armorial bearings, pedigrees and wills, all in the usual admirable manner of this publication.

An appendix and vital Records, which concern many well-known families, will end the work, which will be profusely illustrated with portraits, old homesteads and maps locating the general topographical features. The broadest kind of an historical and genealogical background has been taken. Some well-known names treated herein are: Aghorp, Broome, Cline, Dean, delaNoy, Emmons, Gracie, Holman, Hopper, Horn, Jumel, Leggett, Mandeville, Mott, Oakley, Rhinelander, Striker and Varian. The work will be ready in the Fall.

GENEALOGY OF THE STEVENSON FAMILY OF CHARLESTOWN, MASS., AND ALLIED LINES. Charles Collyer Whittier. Boston. David Clapp & Son. 1907. 8vo, cloth, pp. 205.

The name Stimpson is a corruption of Stevenson or Stevenson, Andrew, the progenitor, having used both the latter spellings. The family remained at Charlestown for several generations, where they were respected citizens. This genealogy carries the daughters' lines through several generations, and, where it does not make the book too bulky, this is a very desirable thing to do, for, though the name is lost, the blood remains, and daughters' children have the same descent as those of sons. The book is fully illustrated with portraits, and there are 20 pages of index.

FIRST RECORD BOOK OF THE SOCIETY OF THE DAUGHTERS OF HOLLAND DAMES. Compiled by Marjana Velzquez, Registrar, and Mrs. Levi Holbrook, Secretary. New York. The Grafton Press. 1907. 8vo, cloth, pp. 120. Price, $1.00.

So far as can be ascertained, this is the first year-book of a patriotic society in which exclusively Dutch pedigrees are set forth. The requirements of this Society being that the propositus must have been a Hollander, born in Holland, who was at least a freeholder in America before 1700, not only limits the membership, but also prevents mention of many Dutch families, afterwards prominent, whose ancestor came too late, or died too soon after arrival to make his mark in the community. In spite of these difficulties, some 260 ancestors are represented, many of them with distinguished service. The Society, organized and incorporated in 1895, has over one hundred members and is growing. The present book reflects the greatest credit upon its compilers. It is printed on good paper, is attractively bound in buff and blue, with gold lettering, and has indices to members and ancestors.

BALCH GENEALOGICA. Thomas Willing Balch. Philadelphia. Allen, Lane and Scott. 1907. Quarto, cloth, pp. x+410.

It has not been the compiler's aim, in this handsome volume, to write a complete genealogy, but to publish all the information at present available of the family in England, and of the descendants of John Balch of Maryland. The first 85 pages are therefore devoted to the English records, the next 8 to John Balch of Massachusetts, and the remainder of the book to John Balch of Maryland, and his descendants. The book is really a collection of family papers, letters, sermons, and other biographical data, and is most beautifully illustrated. The result of Mr. Balch's labors is a very fine and dignified work.

MARTHA'S VINEYARD. A History of the Island and Its People; Comprising the annals of Edgartown, Tisbury, Chilmark, Cottage City, Bay Head, West Tisbury and Gosnold, constituting the county of Dukes County, Massachusetts. Charles Edward Banks, Surgeon, U. S. Marine Hospital Service. Boston. Printed for the author by George H. Dean. 1907. 2 vols.

This long-expected work is about to appear, and will be eagerly welcomed by a large number of persons, as it is the first history of Dukes County or the six towns embraced within it. Dr. Banks has been collecting material at home and abroad for the last fifteen years, and a great number of hitherto unknown facts will appear in the publication. While the historical part of the book will be most thorough, there will be an extensive genealogical part. A number of New York families, including the Ogdens, are descended from Island families. Some of the prominent names treated genealogically are, Adams, Allen, Bassett, Cathcart, Coffin, Dunham, Lambert, Smith, Waldron and Worth, Codman and Tabor. The price of the volumes at present is $6.00. Later it will be raised to $10.00.

YOUNGS FAMILY. A History and Genealogy. Selah Youngs, Jr., N. Y. Produce Exchange. New York. Privately Printed. 1907. Quarto, half-morocco, pp. 377. Price, $10.00.

The eastern end of Long Island has given us much in the way of genealogy and history, but no volume concerning this locality has yet been issued to compare in dignity and value with this one. The Youngs family has the advantage of knowing with certainty one English ancestor back of the emigrant, and even if proof cannot at present go back of Rev. Christopher Yonges, Vicar of Reydon, he makes a most desirable founder of the race. A full account of him, with a facsimile of his signature, will be found in the book. Rev. John Yonges was one of the emigrants, the first minister of the town of Southold, and the ruling influence there. His son, Col. John Youngs, was one of the most prominent and distinguished of early Long Island men, having served as Colonel, Assistant in Connecticut, Boundary Commissioner, High Sheriff of the East Riding of Yorkshire, and, for a number of years, member of the Governor's Council of New York. Captain Joseph Youngs, son of Rev. Christopher, also emigrated to Southold, and the Oyster Bay Youngs family comes from him. The book has been printed with great discrimination and excellent taste. Mr. Youngs endeavored not so much to introduce new ideas in printing, as to learn the best modern methods, and to this detail work he gave long and careful thought. It is this which has made the printed work so valuable. Some of the prominent Long Island names mentioned are, Albert-

Excellent paper has been used, there are many illustrations, and there is a fine index.

JOUTEL'S JOURNAL OF LA SALLE'S LAST VOYAGE, 1684-7. New Edition with Historical and Biographical Introduction, Annotations and Index, by Henry Reed Stiles, A. M., M. D., to which is Added a Bibliography of the Discovery of the Mississippi, by Appleton C. Griffin, of the Library of Congress. Albany. Joseph McDonough. 1906. 8vo, Boards, pp. 258.

La Salle's voyages read like some old romance, full of color and courage and adventure; and this new edition, with its valuable footnotes, its very useful historical introduction, outlining all La Salle's voyages, and its Bibliography, may be regarded as the final word on this interesting subject. Henri Joutel, who accompanied the final expedition, and who wrote this present Journal, has a quaint and picturesque style and will repay reading. Print and paper are good, and so is the index; and a fine heliotype reproduction of Gudebrod's statue of La Salle, and a reproduction in facsimile of Joutel's map, originally published in the Paris edition of 1713, illustrate the work.

THE EMMONS FAMILY GENEALOGY. A Record of the Emigrant Thomas Emmons of Newport, Rhode Island, with Many of His Descendants, from 1639 to 1905. Edward Neville Emmons. Syracuse. Lyman Bros., Printers. 1905. 6vo, cloth, pp. x+222+lv.

The introduction to this genealogy treats of various Emmons emigrants, preceded by an explanation of the arrangement of the book. The compiler indulges in no speculations as to the English origin of the ancestor, who first sat down in Newport, but soon removed to Boston, where he remained. The descendants of daughters are carried out in regular numerical order for about two generations. One unusual feature of the arrangement is the statement, after each head of a family of his relationship to the family just above him on the page. The index gives generation and personal numbers of an individual, and other identifying marks are used.

A GENEALOGICAL RECORD OF ONE BRANCH OF THE HEATH, CLARK AND CONE FAMILIES. Dewitt Stilwell. Syracuse. E. M. Grover, Printer. 1905. 8vo, cloth, pp. 40.

The compiler has herein set forth the descendants in brief of three of his ancestors, William Heath of Roxbury, Mass., in 1632, John Clark, whose residence is not given, and Daniel Cone, of Haddam, Conn., about 1662. The book is well printed and indexed.

PETER CHABOT AND HIS DESCENDANTS. Frank H. Titus, M.S., M.D. Portsmouth, Ohio. 1906. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 24.

Peter Chabot was born in France in 1767, and was one of the first settlers of Scioto County, Ohio. An interesting account of him will be found in the second part of the pamphlet, as well as biographical notes of others of his family. The first part of the little brochure is strictly genealogical. In this system of notation, the first figure of the enumeration of each descendant gives the number of the generation after the founder of the line; the second number locates the individual in that generation.

A HISTORY OF THE HINMANS. Containing also an Abbreviated Record of the Kindred Families, Showing their Relationship to Hinmans. Dr. A. V. Hinman. Youngstown. The Vindicator Press. 1907. 8vo, pamphlet, pp. 75.

These are descendants of Sergt. Edward Hinman, "the first and only emigrant of the name found in America," but the compiler has developed only his own line, although he has given some vital statistics concerning collatera relatives. Some of the kindred families noted are, Shaw, Tilley, Howland, Crocker, Swift, Gibbs, Skinner, Waring, Winchell, Richards, Oviatt and Ingraham.

THE WHITE FAMILY. H. K. White. Detroit. Privately printed. 1906. Quarto, pamphlet, pp. 35.

These are the Whites of Lynn, Mass., and Southampton and Huntington, Long Island, and the pamphlet exhibits the records of descendants without biographical matter. Pedigree Charts.

THE NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY
226 West 58th Street, New York.

This Society has for sale official forms of genealogical charts called "Register of Pedigrees." These registers are of two varieties, called "single" and "double" charts. They are each paper covered books of 11 x 16 inches in size, properly ruled and printed for the insertion of names of ancestors in successive generations. The single charts consists of 17 pages, and when filled in will give all of the ancestors in all ramifications for 9 generations, arranged so that the family name of each of the 16 great-great-grandparents occupies a page. Family names appear on the marginal index which is formed by the indentation of each leaf. The back of each leaf is arranged for special memoranda concerning the persons named on the page facing it.

The double charts are practically two single charts combined. The object being to devote the first half of the chart to the registration of the complete pedigree of the male line, the second half for a like registration of the female line, and the double chart therefore provides for the registration of 10 generations in both male and female lines.

The price of these charts to members of this Society is as follows:

Single Charts, - - -	$ .75
Double " - - -	1.50

To those who are not members of the Society:

Single Charts, - - -	$1.00
Double " - - -	$2.00

Members of the Society, or others who purchase these Charts and fill them in as fully as possible and present them to the Librarian of the Society for filing in the Society's Library, will receive a new one in exchange therefor without additional cost. These charts may be purchased by application to the Librarian.

It is the desire of the Trustees that the members will supply themselves with these registers, fill them out as far as possible and file them with the Society. When received these will be bound in volumes, fully indexed, and will thus form a record of inestimable value to the Society.

Those who have in their possession full information as to their individual ancestry are especially urged to obtain these Charts, fill them in and file them with the Society, as information of this nature is very frequently lost to posterity owing to negligence on the part of those possessing it to make record thereof, in special depositories provided for that purpose.

BOWEN WHITING PIERSON.

By BEVERLY CHEW, LH.D.

The ancestors of Bowen Whiting Pierson were probably of Yorkshire extraction, where the family can be traced back to 1400 and earlier. There are notices of the arrival at Boston of several of the name in 1637 to 1643.

The Rev. Abraham Pierson, who is presumed to have been the son of Abraham Pierson of Thornton, was baptized at Bradford in St. Peter's Church in 1613, and came to Massachusetts in 1639. Later he was in Lynn with his near relative, Henry Pierson, who was there married to Mary Cooper. In the year 1640 a colony of forty families from Lynn, Mass., set out to found a town of their own, and effected a settlement on the Eastern end of Long Island at what is still called Southampton. Among this number were Henry Pierson and his wife, Mary Cooper, and the Rev. Abraham Pierson, the pastor of the little band. Abraham remained at Southampton until 1647, when he crossed Long Island Sound to the Connecticut shore and joined the New Haven colony at Branford. His son, also the Rev. Abraham, who was born in Southampton in 1645, was the first President of Yale College. Henry Pierson remained at Southampton and was the father of a large family. He appears to have been a man of affairs in his community. He was Town Clerk from 1653 to 1669, faithfully performing his duty, and to him the town is indebted for the knowledge of the early history and such glimpses of the men of the period as these quaint records show.

He records very little about himself, though it is stated that: "Henry Pierson had four acres of land granted unto him upon the great plain lying headways toward Mr. Smith's, and sideways towards Mr. Wells, his lot, and down to the swamp."

It likewise appears that Henry was not always of a meek and forgiving spirit such as became one who fled to the wilderness to enjoy freedom from civil and religious oppression:

"On Oct. 6, 1646, Henry Pierson was censured by the Court of Magistrates for misscarriage in threatening that if any man should strike his dog, he would knock him down, and to pay for the said miscarriage ten shillings, and to be of good behaviour."

Either the fine or the threat proved effective, as we hear no more of this dog case.

Henry Pierson died in 1680 or 1681, and from his sixth son, Theodore, born before 1659, the line continues, as follows:

Job Pierson, b. 1697; d. 1788.
Lemuel Pierson, b. 1723.
Samuel Pierson, b. 1753; d. 1838.

Here were four generations of sturdy farmers who brought up their families in the plain and simple manner of those days, and no doubt in close conformity with habits of their New England neighbors with whom they were in full accord by religious traditions.

Job Pierson, son of Samuel, was born Sept. 23, 1791; was fitted for college under the Rev. Samuel Woolworth, the Bridge Hampton minister, and entered Williams College, from which he was graduated in 1811. He studied law, and upon his admission to the bar began practice with Judge Herman Knickerbocker of Schaghticoke, N. Y., with whom later he entered into partnership. He occupied the important position of District Attorney of Rensselaer County, Member of Congress for two terms, and Surrogate. He removed to Troy about 1835, and continued to reside there until his death, April 9, 1860. With him came the break from the old Long Island farm, although he always prided himself as being a "Landed Proprietor," and made frequent visits to the Long Island Farm, situated in the old settlement of Sagaponack, which, so far as is known, has been the property of the family since 1640. It is located on Sagg Pond, about one-half mile from the ocean, and one and one-half miles from Bridge Hampton village. The house on this farm was built about 150 years ago, and no doubt replaced an earlier one, possibly built of logs.

Job Pierson married Sept. 24, 1815, Clarissa Taintor Bulkley of Williamstown, Mass. Clarissa Bulkley was descended from the best New England stock. The celebrated Peter Bulkley, first minister of Concord, Mass., graduate of St. John's College, Cambridge, noted for his learning, benevolence and faithfulness in the ministry, as well as for his large family of fifteen children, was the first of the race in America. He was followed by a distinguished line of ministers, educators, farmers and merchants, and his descendants so intermarried with other New England families that there are few of New England birth who cannot trace back to some Bulkley ancestor.

Job Pierson, D.D., son of Job and Clarissa Taintor Bulkley, was born at Schaghticoke, N. Y., Feb. 3, 1824; was graduated from Williams College in 1842, and from Auburn Theological Seminary in 1847. He occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Churches at Pittsford, N. Y., Catskill, N. Y., Victor, N. Y., Kalamazoo, Mich., and Ionia, Mich. He retired from active clerical work July 1, 1878, and for a number of years was engaged in literary work, chiefly on the New Oxford English Dictionary, for which he furnished 47,000 words. He was Librarian of Alma College, Michigan, for three years, and retired to his home in Stanton, Mich., where he died Feb. 3, 1896. Dr. Pierson married Feb. 7, 1849, Rachel Williams Smith, born Dec. 11, 1820. Her parents were natives of Gloucester, Mass. Bowen Whiting Pierson was the fourth child and third son of this union. He was born Jan. 5, 1858, at Victor, Ontario Co., New York, where his father was the pastor of the Presbyterian Church. When he was five years old, in 1863, he was taken by his parents to Kalamazoo, Mich., and there his early boyhood was passed and his education begun. From 1869 to 1872 he made his home with an uncle residing at Geneva, N. Y., attending school during that period, returning home to Ionia, Mich., to which place his parents had in the meantime removed. He resided there for a few years, beginning his business career in a drug store. The Rev. Dr. Pierson was a scholarly man, a close student of literature and the possessor of a large and valuable library. The association with his father at this time and several years later, when after a period of four years in and about New York he returned to the west, was of the greatest importance to young Pierson. His father's sound learning together with the constant use of his library served to develop and strengthen in him that love of literature that was so prominent among his characteristics in later life. Indeed it can be safely said that this association with his father, and the benefit of his sound advice in directing his studies, was quite as valuable to him as a collegiate course could have been. In December, 1881, he finally left the west and began his connection with the firm of H. R. Worthington, manufacturers of hydraulic machinery, and remained with that house about nineteen years, leaving them on Nov. 30, 1900, and shortly after assisted in founding the Alberger Condenser Co., of which he was elected Secretary and Treasurer, and held both positions until his death.

Dr. Pierson married Feb. 7, 1849, Rachel Williams Smith, born Dec. 11, 1820. Her

Pierson was a man of a pleasant and social nature, naturally optimistic in temperament he always looked on the hopeful side of things, at the same time his strong will and tenacity of purpose enabled him to contend against adverse conditions when they arose and to carry his plans to a successful conclusion. He had the collector's temperament from boyhood, first minerals and stamps being the object of his interest, next coins, and finally books. His devotion to literature was always a pronounced characteristic, and his love of books and bibliography lead him to become one of the early members of the Grolier Club when it was founded in 1884. In this association he found many congenial spirits and entered into the Club work with intelligent zeal. He was a contributor of great value to the Club's "Collations and Notes" published in 1894. In the same year he was elected a member of the Council, and was several times re-elected, retiring in 1905. During his service in the Council he was a member of several important Committees and was particularly active as a member of the Library Committee.

He was elected an Annual Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, Nov. 9, 1894. Genealogical research had always been an attractive subject to him, therefore, he was from the first an interested member. He was elected Treasurer in April, 1897, and held that important office to parents were natives of Gloucester, Mass. Bowen Whiting Pierson was the fourth child and third son of this union. He was born Jan. 5, 1858, at Victor, Ontario Co., New York, where his father was the pastor of the Presbyterian Church. When he was five years old, in 1863, he was taken by his parents to Kalamazoo, Mich., and there his early boyhood was passed and his education begun. From 1869 to 1872 he made his home with an uncle residing at Geneva, N. Y., attending school during that period, returning home to Ionia, Mich., to which place his parents had in the meantime removed. He resided there for a few years, beginning his business career in a drug store. The Rev. Dr. Pierson was a scholarly man, a close student of literature and the possessor of a large and valuable library. The association with his father at this time and several years later, when after a period of four years in and about New York he returned to the west, was of the greatest importance to young Pierson. His father's sound learning together with the constant use of his library served to develop and strengthen in him that love of literature that was so prominent among his characteristics in later life. Indeed it can be safely said that this association with his father, and the benefit of his sound advice in directing his studies, was quite as valuable to him as a collegiate course could have been. In December, 1887, he finally left the west and began his connection with the firm of H. R. Worthington, manufacturers of hydraulic machinery, and remained with that house about nineteen years, leaving them on Nov. 30, 1906, and shortly after assisted in founding the Albreger Condenser Co., of which he was elected Secretary and Treasurer, and held both positions until his death.

During his service in the Council he was a member of several important Committees and was particularly active as a member of the Library Committee.

He was elected an Annual Member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, Nov. 5, 1894. Genealogical research had always been an attractive subject to him, therefore, he was from the first an interested member. He was elected Treasurer in April, 1897, and held that important office to January, 1901, when he resigned. His excellent business training and careful methods of administration made him an efficient and useful officer. He served twice on the Board of Trustees, from January, 1898, to January, 1904, when he resigned. Re-elected January, 1905, he served until his death. In 1904 he became a member of the Century Association and thoroughly enjoyed his connection with this well-known literary and artistic body. He was also a member of the City Club, and was scrupulous in the performance of every civic duty. He was a parishioner of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin and for more than ten years a member of the Board of Trustees. His funeral was held in this Church on July 6.

Pierson was married Oct. 12, 1887, to Nannie Meech, daughter of Stephen Meech of Norwich, Conn., and to them a daughter, Clarissa, was born June 8, 1890. He was most fortunate in his home life, and in all his domestic relations was exhibited that perfect harmony that is the ideal of the married state.

With the exception of the year beginning October, 1886, when he experienced serious lung trouble, from which he recovered, Pierson enjoyed good health and was a diligent and faithful worker in business. In the Autumn of 1906, however, he appeared far from well, was easily fatigued, and felt obliged to give up many social and other engagements. Towards Spring, on his physician's advice, he went away for a change for about a month and returned seemingly improved. His Summer plans took him to Bridge Hampton, near the old "Long Island Farm" where he loved to be, and had hoped in time to establish his permanent Summer home. Here the fatal blow came June 30, and without recovering consciousness he died on the morning of July 4.

Cut off in the prime of life when all his prospects for the future were most promising, his death is mourned by a large number of friends who were sincerely attached to him and in whose lives there will always remain the memory of his loyal friendship.

Benson, Frank Sherman, one of the most widely known citizens of Brooklyn, and distinguished for his knowledge of numismatics, died suddenly of apoplexy, February 28, 1907, at his residence, 214 Columbia Heights, aged fifty-two years. His death came as a great shock to his family and friends inasmuch as he was in the prime of life, and until his last illness, apparently in robust health.

He was born September 15, 1854, in Brooklyn, N. Y., and belonged to the New England Bensons who were connected by marriage with the well-known families of Bacon, Buck, Cleveland, Fessenden and Sewall, all of New England. His father, Arthur W. Benson, was a merchant of Brooklyn who for many

His death came as a great shock to his family and friends inasmuch as he was in the prime of life, and until his last illness, apparently in robust health.

He was born September 15, 1854, in Brooklyn, N. Y., and belonged to the New England Bensons who were connected by marriage with the well-known families of Bacon, Buck, Cleveland, Fessenden and Sewall, all of New England. His father, Arthur W. Benson, was a merchant of Brooklyn who for many years was president of the Brooklyn Gas Light Company and a director of the Brooklyn Bridge; son of John Benson, of Boston, by his wife Sarah Buck, daughter of Daniel Buck, of Bucksport, Me., and Mary Sewall, daughter of Dummer Sewall, of Bath, Me., a colonel in the war of the American Revolution, and a great-grandson of Henry Sewall, of Newbury, Mass., who was the father of Judge Samuel Sewall, of Boston, the famous Chief Justice of Massachusetts. His mother, Jane A. Marks, was the daughter of Dennis Marks, of St. Louis, Mo., by his wife Anna Maria Bacon, daughter of Joseph Bacon—a descendant of Nathaniel Bacon of Middletown, Ct., 1653—and Abigail Cleveland, daughter of Ezra Cleveland, of Burlington, Ct., who was the great-grandson of Captain Samuel Cleveland, of Chelmsford, Mass., the son of Moses Cleveland, of Woburn, Mass., ancestor of the Clevelands in this country.

Mr. Benson well represented the better portion of our leisure class, who, instead of devoting themselves to pleasure, interest themselves in serious affairs, and render their lives useful to their fellow citizens. He graduated from Yale University in the class of 1876, and from the Columbia College Law School in 1879, and was admitted to the bar but never practiced his profession, devoting himself to study, and the many scientific, benevolent and patriotic organizations of which he became a member. He specially interested himself in numismatics and spent several years in the study of ancient Greek coins, of which he possessed one of the most valuable private collections in this country. He wrote a series of articles for the American Numismatic Journal, descriptive of the rare coins in this collection. At the time of his death he was engaged in the task of rearranging and renumbering the collection of Greek and Roman coins in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City. He was a member of the American Numismatic and Archeological Society of New York, of the Royal Numismatic Society of England, and the Society for Hellenic Studies of London.

Besides his scientific studies, Mr. Benson took much interest in the benevolent enterprises of his native city. For many years he was a director of the Brooklyn Hospital, and of the Brooklyn Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. He was also interested in many other associations. At the time of his death he was a director of the Long Island Historical Society, a member of the Executive Committee of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, the Brooklyn League, American Zoological Society, the American Geographical Society, the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, the Sons of the Revolution, and the Society of Colonial Wars. He was also a member of the Hamilton, Yale, University and Grolier Clubs, and Treasurer of the Heights Casino.

Nor was Mr. Benson less interested in the welfare of the church. He was an active member of the Grace Episcopal Church, of which the Rev. Dr. C. F. J. Wrigley is rector, served also as its treasurer, and was one of the best known layman in the diocese. Always a liberal giver, he made it possible for the Church Charity Foundation to rid itself of a large debt which was entirely liquidated last year. The Benson family in October, 1905, offered to give $40,000 to clear the debt provided the members of the church gave the balance. In a little over a year the amount was raised.

In his address at the last Diocesan Convention of the Episcopal Church of Long Island, Bishop Burgess refers to the subject of our sketch in these words:

"Frank Sherman Benson represents a noble type of American character. Throughout his school and college days, as his classmates will testify, he had set a high standard, nothing coarse or impure entered into his mind, he lived his life on a high plane; nor had he any of that greed to amass money for the sake of the power which it gives. He viewed with some misgiving that adulation of millionaire philanthrophists which ill accords with the thought of American independence, and that acceptance of huge gifts for public institutions which might better be provided by popular subscription or taxation. At any rate he did not enter into schemes for the accumulation of power, but lived his life to the glory of God and for the good of mankind."

Mr. Frank Sherman Benson was married November 11, 1886, in New York City, to Elizabeth Woodbridge Hoe, daughter of Robert Hoe and Alvira Phelps James Hoe. She died May 5, 1889, leaving a daughter, Thyrza, who survives her parents.

INSCRIPTIONS IN MILLTOWN CEMETERY, SOUTHEAST, N. Y.

COPIED BY EMMA J. FOSTER AND JULIA R. LIVINGSTON.

Milltown is the name of a locality on the Croton River near the middle of the Oblong, and adjoining Doanesburg in Putnam (formerly Dutchess) County, N. Y., and took its name from mills built on the Croton at this point, before the Revolution. Its early settlers were members of Rev. Elisha Kent's church at Doanesburg, then East Philippi, and some of them are buried there. They were the Halls, the Cranes, the Sears, the Weeds, etc. Charles Cullen, who married Lucy, daughter of Rev. Elisha Kent, in 1773, had a house and store at Milltown, where at a later date Capt. Ichabod Doolittle kept a tavern, a favorite resort for travellers to and from Danbury.

In the Milltown burying-ground are found the same names and representatives of the same families as are found in Doanesburg.

YELLIS JANSEN DE MANDEVILLE OF GARDEREN, HOLLAND, AND GREENWICH VILLAGE ON MANHATTAN ISLAND, AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS

CONTRIBUTED BY LUCY DUBOIS ANSLEY.

1. YELLIS[*] JANSEN DE MANDEVILLE, the founder of the family in this country is traced as early as 1657 at Voorthuizen, a village near Garderen in Holland. His father's name was Jan, perhaps that Jan Jansen who in 1647 was Candidate at the Reformed Church at Kooiwyk, also near Garderen, and died at the latter place in 1651.

Mandevil is a frequent appellation in the Low Countries, and this spelling is usual in the early Dutch Records in America.

church there, mostly unintelligible, to a younger son of the de Mandeville family who died 14 Oct., 165–.

Yellis de Mandeville came to America in the de Trouw (Faith), 12 Feb., 1659, with his "wife and four children of 1¼, 5, 6 and 9 years." The children's names are not given, and Yellis is called Gilles Jansen Van Garder. (Garderen in the Veluwe, Guelderland, Holland.)

He paid f50 for the passage of his wife and himself, and f10 for each child; or 90 guilders in all.*

The name of Gillis de Mandeivile on the original list of the vessel Moesman, in April, 1659, indicates that he was not a passenger, but only a debtor to the Dutch West India Company, for a small sum advanced by them.†

Yellis probably lived for a time somewhere on Long Island. Two of his children were from New Amersfoort (Flatlands). He was perhaps that Gilles Jansen rated there in Sept., 1676, for 10 morgens of land, etc.‡

Riker states that Yellis de Mandeville bought a farm at Flatbush (probably the land in the jurisdiction of Hempstead, valued above all his other possessions, devised by will to his son Hendrick), and received afterwards a grant of 30 acres at Greenwich, N. Y., laid out 5 Dec., 1679; patented 30 Dec., 1680.

No lands granted or sold to Yellis de Mandeville are recorded in the Flatbush Records, but many Dutch Patents and Indian Deeds were destroyed or sent to England after 1664.

No New Amsterdam Records mention him, but we find Gilles Janszen Mandiviel and his wife Elsje Hendricx as members of the New York Dutch Church, 31 May, 1677, and Jillis, Elsje and Grietie Mandeviel living above the ancient pond Kalch-hock in 1686.§

The Mandeville estate extended from below 14th street to 21st street, though not parallel to either, and from the Hudson River to Warren Road. This part of Manhattan Island was known as Greenwich, Sappokaniken, Shappanaconk, or New Nordwyck.

Yellis sold to David Mandeville, doubtless his son, on 14 May, 1700, 53 morgens of land (126 acres), including the Greenwich bowery then occupied by the said David Mandeville, and apparently meadows on the west side of the Hudson River. The land was particularly described in a grant from Governor Nicholls, and in a deed of Johannes Vanbroughen and Jacob Veranger to Jacob Vandegrift; the latter sold the same to Yellis Mandeville, 2 June, 1679.‖

Yellis and his wife were sponsors at a baptism, 16 March, 1701, and his will was proved 22 May, following, by his widow.

This will, dated 15 Sept., 1696, signed Yeelise de Mandville, mentions all his children, eldest son Hendrick, son David, daus.

Jan Meet (Meek, Mead), b. in Holland about 1656, was son of Pieter Jansen Meet, whose second wife was Gerritie Mandeville (ante). Jan sold a lot in Flatbush in Feb., 1692-3, and was one of the Pacquanac, N. J., Patentees in 1695.* In 1703 he was apparently of New York with one male, one female and six children in his family. Issue: Pieter, bap. 20 Oct., 1689; Johannes, bap. 25 March, 1691; Jacob, bap. 18 Jan., 1693; Christina, bap. 27 Oct., 1695; Elsje, bap. 12 July or Aug., 1699, at Hackensack; Maria, bap. 31 May, 1702; Gilles, bap. 14 Oct., 1702.

vii. Jan (prob.), Bergen, the De Camp Genealogy, and Munsell's American Ancestry, all attribute a son Jan to Yellis de Mandeville, some say b. at 1695, and of Westchester Co.; evidence neither quoted nor found. Probably Janneke Mandeville, sponsor at the baptism of Joannes de Camp in 1677; Janneke Mandeviel, witness at the baptism of Henricus Bantis (ante), and Jan above were indentical. There are numerous entries relative to Jan Gilles in the early Dutch Records, but no others with the surname Mandeville attached.

viii. William, prob. son of Yellis, is said to have lived on the paternal estate at Shippanacock. William Mandeville, merchant of New York, d. at Scarborough, in the North Riding of Yorkshire on Long Island, where the principal part of his property was situated. Letters were issued to his widow, Elizabeth, 30 Oct., 1679.†

His marriage entry reads: "Hendrick Jilliszen de Mandeviel, j. m., Uyt Gelderl[d]. & Annetje Pieterse Scholl, j. d., woonende d' Eerste op Noortwyck, & twede op Hempstede, ingeshreven 6 Iuni, 1680, getrouwt den 18 Iul. op N. The Dutch Church Records of Flatbush, L. I., where the above marriage was also recorded give Hendrick's then residence as New Nordwyck, showing that Nordwyck, in connection with the Mandevilles, whether accompanied by the word new, or not, meant Greenwich, N. Y., or adjacent parts.

Annetje Scholl, b. in Hempstead, bap. in New Amsterdam, 16 July, 1662, was daughter of Pieter Jansen Scholl (Scholt, Schal), from the Hague, Holland, who was sometime of Byooklyn and Flatbush, N. Y., and on the Hempstead Census in 1673. Her mother was Margaritje Provoost.

Adam Mott, Jr., sold to Hendrick Mandefell 50 acres in the south woods at Hempstead, 18 March, 1684, and Peter Johnson Scoll, the 14th of the next June gave 50 adjoining acres to his beloved son-in-law Hendrick Mandefell.† No further disposition of this land is to be found in the printed Town Records of Hempstead.

Cornelius Mandeville sold before 2 March, 1763, a lot to David Pennoyer, on the road to Travis Landing, and another lot to David Bernard before 3 Aug., 1764. His holdings were in the heart of Peekskill.

The will of Cornelius Mandeville dated 24 March, 1768, proved 30 May, the same year, names wife Rachel, children David, John, Nathan, James, Martha, Anne and Hannah Mandeville. Wife Rachel and cousins Joshua Nelson and Daniel Birdsall executors.†

Rachel Horton, his wife, according to the statement of her granddaughter, Johanna Odell, came from Long Island. Mr. George W. Cocks of Glen Cove, L. I., believes Rachel to have been the dau. of Joseph and Rachel (Coles) Horton. The said Joseph, doubtless a descendant of Barnabas Horton of Southold, L. I., was of North Castle, Westchester Co., N. Y., in 1725, and of Oyster Bay, L. I., in 1730.

Rachel (Coles) Horton was dau. of Nathan Coles of Musketa Cove, whose will mentions his grandson, Lazarus Horton. Note that one of the sons of Cornelius Mandeville was called Nathan.

EDITORIAL.

THE current number ends the 38th Volume of the RECORD, and the Society can look back with honest pride upon a publication which for thirty-eight consecutive years has been devoted to the best interests of biography and genealogy. The early years of the RECORD's existence were those of constant struggle, not only to obtain means of perpetuating in print records which were rapidly disintegrating, but also to select out of an immense mass of undigested data such material as would attract the interest of the general public toward the study of family history.

Although ancestor worship flourished from the earliest period of history among the primitive nations, curiously enough the advance of civilization brought contempt upon religious reverence for our more remote sires. The independence of the American Colonies also tended to do away with many of the patriarchal customs, and notably with the respect for ancient and honorable lineage, so cultivated and cherished in all the mother-lands.

To the New England States must be attributed the first important step to revive interest in American genealogy, and by the publication of the New England Historical-Genealogical Register, Boston gave the first impulse toward the gentle science of tracing descent in this country.

The RECORD may justly claim to be the next magazine in importance to take up biographical and genealogical publications and to attempt to accomplish for New York City and State the task of creating interest in early ancestry.

From 1869–1884 the publication of the RECORD appealed only to a limited circle of family historians, but in 1883 a great movement for the organization of patriotic societies took place and gave the first general stimulus to genealogical research. Hundreds of ancestral, patriotic and semi-military associations sprang up, counting their members by the thousands, all of whom were eager to trace lineal descent from a Colonial or Revolutionary grand-sire. The larger libraries soon found it important to acquire for their shelves those leading family histories then in print and to organize as complete a genealogical department as possible. The RECORD soon felt the influence of this movement by increased subscriptions and a series of valuable contributions for publication, mainly consisting of military lists and muster-rolls dealing with the early Colonial and Revolutionary Wars. In the last few years, however, the mem-

Rev. Melatiah Everett Dwight, D. D., M. D., late President of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, died at his summer home, Mount Holyoke, Northampton, Massachusetts, Saturday, September 14, 1907, in the 66th year of his age.

He was elected a Life Member of this Society December 28, 1894, and since that time has occupied with energy and the best of judgment almost all of the offices in the gift of this Society.

In his death the Officers and Members of the Society suffer an irremediable loss.

As Editor of The Record and Chairman of the Publication Committee, in addition to his excellent judgment in his official capacity, he bestowed upon The Record marked evidences of his love and generosity which have been largely instrumental in bringing that publication to its present high standard.

His lovable and gentle disposition will always be a delightful memory to those with whom his association with the Society have brought him in contact.

(An obituary of Dr. Dwight will appear in the January issue of The Record.)

bership in these patriotic societies appears to have reached a more or less stable maximum and there has been a falling-off in the number of those searching for descent from the early patriots.

A spirit of critical analysis in tracing out pedigrees, has developed, however, and greater accuracy in proving beyond reasonable doubt all heraldic and genealogical claims will in the course of time add invaluable private family documents to the present public records.

In spite of the apparent halt in the pursuit of ancestral problems, the object of the RECORD is steadily maintained—the perpetuation of town, county and church records in New York State and the publication of the portraits and biographical sketches of such citizens as deserve to be enrolled in the history of families.

The time appears to be opportune for an earnest appeal to those who possess portraits and biographical data of the early settlers in New Amsterdam to put such material into shape and send it to the Publication Committee. The life annals of these early Dutch and English worthies should prove of the highest interest and be an agreeable variation from the useful but dry records of minor families, churches and tombstones throughout the State. There is also a demand for material showing the lineage of the early settlers in their native lands of England and Holland as too few families have succeeded in tracing a connecting link with kith and kin over the sea.

The RECORD may now be said to be on a self-supporting basis but to insure its future for all time a liberal endowment fund is needed. Any member or group of members of this Society who would set about securing such a fund would not only earn the thanks of all interested in genealogical research but raise up a permanent memorial to the founders of this land.

Extract from the 1896 Year Book of the Sons of the Revolution: Admitted to membership in the Society, 1890 Grandson of Capt. Samuel Stanton; also great-grandson of Lieut. Peter Tappan; also great-great-grandson of Major Christopher Tappan; also great-great-grandson of Col. Charles De Witt.

Stiles Franklin Stanton was educated at the College of the City of New York, and was a member of the New York Stock Exchange for thirty years. He retired ten years ago. Mr. Stanton was at one time president of the St. Nicholas Society, a member of the Union Club, the Sons of the Revolution, and the Downtown Club. He was actively interested in the Samaritan Home for the Aged, as its Vice-President, and served as manager of the New York Infant Asylum. He was also a Trustee of the New York Dispensary. He was unmarried. Two sisters survive him, both residing in New York.

NOTES.

THE following in the Church at Garderen, Holland, was received too late to be included in the Mandeville article (see p. 285 of this magazine):

"Noch soise Nann B / De Mandeville / Jonsste Soonjen / In den Heere ejerunt/In jaaren 1651 Den / 14 October met name / Michgie . . . / . . . 19 Augustus." /

The latest advices from the State Archivist, Mr. van Lehr, mentions the price paid by Yellis de Mandeville for his passage in 1659 as 36 guilders for himself, and 90 for his wife and four children, total 126 guilders, or about $50.40 (see p. 285 of this magazine). L. D. A.

CONNECTICUT TOWN RECORDS.

The Connecticut Historical Society is actively engaged in copying and printing the ancient vital records of the towns in that State. In their appeal to members of the Society and others for funds to carry on this praiseworthy work, it is stated that of the 106 towns incorporated before 1800, the records of only 15 have been printed verbatim, and even then not always completely. The records of about 10 more have been partly printed in periodicals. Upwards of 60 towns, including some of the oldest, and historically most important in the State, have never had any part of their records printed. Owing to the remoteness of many of these towns from railroads, the records are extremely difficult of access, and even when found are entered on the leaves of the volumes of deeds, wherever the clerk chose; sometimes in the order of date, but without any regard to arrangement by families, and without index. The Committee who have volunteered to superintend the copying, arranging and printing of these records estimate that $5,000, together with the proceeds of sales, will be sufficient to publish the records of all towns incorporated before 1800, and it is expected that at least one volume will appear during the present year. The amount of money is very small when the value of these records is taken into consideration, and as the committee gives its service without remuneration, this plan to publish and so perpetuate these early town records deserve support and should prove successful. Would that the prospect of publishing the town records of our own State was as promising.

Can I obtain the name and address of "M. M. E." or any information whatever concerning the above statements. REV. WILLIAM WHITE HANCE, Palenville, N. Y.

. . . MEMOIRS . . .

Those who are desirous of having memoirs published may be pleased to know that Mr. LINCOLN CHILDS SMITH, 35 Nassau St., Room 616, has arranged with Willis Fletcher Johnson, A.M., L.H.D., author of "A Century of Expansion," "Four Centuries of the Panama Canal," etc., and Josiah Collins Pumpelly, A.M., L.L.B., member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, to take in hand and prepare and print in the best manner any data of the kind mentioned.

Mr. Smith will be pleased at any time to meet persons desiring such work done, and show samples of memoirs, printing, etchings and phototypes for consideration.

MANWARING'S DIGEST OF THE EARLY CONNECTICUT PROBATE RECORDS.

1635--1750. Volumes 1-3.

More than five years have been expended by the compiler upon this work, which has resulted in three large octavo volumes of seven hundred or more pages each, containing a very full exhibit of every estate, so far as the records are known to exist. These records are contained not only in the several manuscript volumes and many bundled files in the Hartford Probate Office, but are also scattered through the records and archives of the State, and many are not recorded.

These and much related matter from other sources, together with an annotated list of Connecticut towns and probate districts, have been included. Each estate is presented, so far as possible, complete by itself. Two indexes—one for the estate and one for the individual—render the contents of the volume easily and quickly accessible. There is also a competent plan of references to the original records and papers. Price, $7.50 per volume; express additional. Orders may be sent to
